Fate Shows Its Ironies in Case of Deschanel, France's Invalid Ruler

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ

AFTER one has passed a few months in the United States, Europe offers surprises at every turn. Everything seems small; and it takes you some time to educate your eyes to the dimensions which the Old World in all its aspects presents.

In a subsequent article I shall speak of the changes that most impress the traveler newly arriving in Europe from the United States. For the moment, I am interested in what I found alike in both places, as though the life I had just left behind me were miraculously rising to bid me welcome on the oposite shore of the ocean.

At the time of my departure from America, the election was at fever heat. Republicans and Democrats were selecting the two men who are to represent the great parties in the coming struggle and one of whom will become President in the near future. Meanwhile, the country was continuing to be governed by the present chief executive, an illustrious invalid whom sickness keeps in close confinement in the White House.

Curiously enough, that is exactly what I found on setting foot in Paris.

In France, also, the President is an invalid and is living in retirement in the historic palace of Rambouillet, the most lonely and isolated of all French public mansions.

Some Important Divergencies.

In this coincidence, to be sure, an American politician would find a number of important divergencies. The President of the United States is in personal touch with everything and deals with Government directly. His physical condition is, therefore, of immediate interest to the welfare of the country. The French President is a sort of constitutional monarch, one of those chiefs of state who, in the language of modern public law, "rule but do not govern." France is a parliamentary republic. The houses of Congress play a very influential part in the government. The ministry has a President (at present, M. Millerand) and the Prime Minister, as he is called, has charge of everything and is the virtual ruler of the nation.

Nevertheless, the office of French President is eagerly sought after and as a result, the illness of M. Paul Deschanel is quite as much the subject of comment, speculation and calculation as that of President Wilson.

I have known M. Deschanel for a long time. He was born outside of France in exile, while his father was a political fugitive. The tyranny of Napoleon III had either shot or imprisoned all the supporters of the second French Republic proclaimed in 1848. The Republicans who managed to escape the persecution went wandering through Europe. At their head could be counted the creator of Jean Valjean—Victor Hugo.

His Father in Exile.

Among such exiles was Prof. Emile Deschanel, a famous lecturer, remembered as the first man to succeed in keping a fashionable and frivolous audience quiet for a whole hour while he orated on nothing more exciting than literature.

Prof. Deschanel's son came into the world in the midst of all the poverty and obscurity of an emigre's life. Such a birth promised neither comfort nor fame. Yet it would seem that the good fairies of glory and fortune both waited at the cradleside of Paul Deschanel. Victor Hugo, Edgard Quinet, and all the most celebrated of the Republican fugitives greeted his birth as though they had been his godfathers. Later, when the Republic was restored and the exiles were able to return to France, young Deschanel found the broad and easy road to success opening before him.

The future President was a handsome man. Some people have found too much delicacy and softness in his elegant appearance. Women, for their part, found him exceedingly attractive. To good looks, he added a talent for readily grasping the essentials of all branches of learning and a surprising facility for public speaking—a gift, doubtless, inherited from his father, the noted lecturer. In demeanor and manner of living Paul Deschanel has been spoken of as the "Prince of the Third Republic." He affected the courtly speech and bearing of a gentleman of the ancient court at Versailles and, in fact, he introduced something of the spirti of Louiv XIV's age into the modern democracy of France.

He encountered no serious obstacles in his political career. When he first ran for the Chamber of Deputies he campaigned by distributing visiting cards with the simple words: "Paul Deschanel, born in exile." And he carried his district by an enormous majority.

In reality, the fact that he had been born in exile was of no significance whatever. Any merit attaching to such sacrifice belonged to his father, who might have lived peacefully in Paris by deserting his republicanism and subscribing to Napoleon III's empire. Most of us, in fact, are born where other choose to have us born and little credit or discredit is due us in consequence. But the public which votes at the polls does not reason so deeply as that. People like phrases that sound well and the more silly such phrases are the better chance they have of winning votes.

Honors Thrust Upon Him.

When Deschanel took it into his head to dabble a bit with writing the French Academy at once elected him as one of the Immortals.

It was the same way when he decided to get married. Millionairesses by the dozen were standing in line hoping his attractive eyes might fall on one of them.

At that Deschanel was not in a hurry about making his choice and he was under obligations, in fact, to make haste slowly. He had very serious work to accomplish as a politician—a well-dressed and handsome politician. As the inevitable presiding officer of the lower house—the Chamber of Deputies—and as a bachelor, he attracted the most elegant ladies of Paris to the galleries of Parliament. Under Deschanel's chairmanship a session of the chambers became as fashionable a diversion as the opera itself, but no tenor was ever so much admired and adored as he. There is no lady—at present married or unmarried—in Paris, between the ages of 40 and 60, who has not dreamed of marrying Paul Deschanel.

However, the admiration of women is a deadly thing in the long run.

Who knows but what the gossip at present rife about the President's health and his fitness to hold the presidential chair, do not go back to the time, not so long last, when he was the idol of feminine Paris

• • • • • •

I met M. Paul Deschanel several times during the war, usually at ceremonies in honor of France's allies. As habitual chairman of the Chamber of Deputies, he always presided over such assemblages and made the opening speech.

A Striking Orator.

He was a very striking orator, but too suave, I thought, a trifle too formal, too fond of delicate shadings and subtle effects. As I listened to him, I was remined of those wonderful lands that children dream of, where the trees are of sugar, the houses of candy, the streams of syrup and honey, while the rains that fall are scented with the most rare of perfumes.

The war beyond a doubt added body to Deschanel's eloquence. He felt his country's sacrifices deeply and he was able to suggest his sense of them in his speeches.

With the coming of peace, the National Assembly, the joint session of Senators and Deputies, elected him President of the republic against one competitor, Clemenceau, no less.

The reason for this choice perhaps was that Deschanel was the younger man. Perhaps it was because of his gentle, harmless disposition, which aroused less uneasiness than the vigorous aggressiveness of the Tiger.

The first noteworthy public act of President Deschanel was to fall from a train at night time, while he was sleeping in the presidential coach.

The story is known to everyone.

After striking the ground, M. Deschanel rose, and walked for more than a mile along the track in his pajamas, till he met a railroad employe, who took him for a lunatic when he announced in all seriousness that he was President of the republic.

I was in the United States when all this occurred and I remember the impression there by the strange event.

President Not Intoxicated.

Some Americans, with nothing but prohibition on their minds, and who attribute everything that happens either to the excess or to the lack of strong drink, at once found a solution for this mystery also.

"Lucky man to have been President," they affirmed. "I would fall from a train myself for a drink of the size he must have had inside."

My knowledge of M. Deschanel's personal habits was sufficient in my own judgment to clear him of any such suspicions. The President of the republic is a sober man, incapable of going to excesses in drinking. Besides, drunkenness is one of the least "distinguished" of indulgences, and M. Deschanel is one of the most "distinguished men in the world."

I explained the President's fall, myself, in a simple hallucination. I believe, half asleep, he took the window of his stateroom for the door and simply walked through it, falling to the railroad track without getting hurt by that good fortune which often attends somnambulists.

At any rate, I laughed with my American friends and thought no more of the matter.

Speeches Cause Alarm.

But on my arrival in Paris I learned that after his accident the speeches made by M. Deschanel had been causing Senators and Deputies much alarm. The President has always been an extempore speaker, delivering his orations without notes and without requiring, as many heads of state do, any assistance in preparing them. M. Deschanel is an easy, rapid extemporizer. But in his most recent utterances everybody had noted a certain incoherence quite at variance with the President's former style.

This has been sufficient to divide the French political world into two camps on the subject of the President's condition. M. Deschanel's intimate friends, the small minority making up his "court," assert that the occupant of the Elysee could not be in better health, that his fall from the train and certain strange speeches of his are details of no importance in his busy life. Those who would like to see the presidential chair vacant—either because they would like to sit in it themselves or because of party interest—and such people are in the majority—are exaggerating the President's illness, describing it as a case of stupor, pure and simple.

Both these extreme views are erroneous. M. Deschanel is not out of his head, as some insist. On the other hand, he is not the man he used to be, nor will he ever entirely recover. The President is a sick man. He has lived too intensely; and at the very moment, after years of arduous toil, when he began to break down and was most in need of rest, he found himself suddenly elevated to the presidency.

M. Deschanel is still at the very beginning of his term of office. He has something over five years still to serve. The charge of incompetence has already been made against him, and in that period of time he will probably get worse rather than better—all the more because so many will prefer to have things that way.

It is practically certain that M. Deschanel will not finish the full term of his presidency. A safe bet, indeed, would be that before the end of the present calendar year he will have resigned his exalted post.

He has definitely left the Elysee Palace and is living in the solitary Rambouillet mansion, where only his most intimate friends are admitted. On the 14th of July, France's great national holiday, M. Deschanel was absent from the capital. For the first time in the history of the Third Republic, the great military parade of that day took place without the honor of the President's attendance. Fortunately the heat in Paris was intense and most of the politicians were themselves away at the seaside resorts. There were few people around at the moment to make trouble for M. Deschanel.

This armistice is likely to last also for the month of August.

Test Comes Next Month.

But on the fourth of September next, the fiftieth anniversary of the Third French Republic (it was proclaimed in 1870), will be celebrated with great pomp. If M. Deschanel is able to be present and make a creditable appearance on the stage, there will be a let-up in the attacks upon him, and in the closeness with which he is being watched. If he fails to come forward on that occasion, steps will at once be taken to elect his successor. On this the Senators and Deputies have definitely agreed.

The French Constitution takes account of the possible death of a President in office. What it never foresaw was the chance that a President might remain alive but be unable to perform his duties.

The post of Vice President does not exist in France, and such a personage will have to be improvised for the present case. The future Vice President will be M. Leon Bourgeois, now presiding officer of the Senate.

Mr. Bourgeois happens also to be known to me personally.

He is a much older man than the President. He suffers from an extreme near-sightedness which causes him great inconvenience. But otherwise he is a strong, robust man, able to survive not one term in the presidency merely, but a dozen if necessary, with no fear of death overtaking him unawares.

M. Bourgeois is one of the "free thinkers" who have brought about

71 Missouri Counties Lose Population; 11 of 19 Showing Gains Are in Southeast

Only Four North of Missouri River Report Increases

Drift From Rural Districts Shown in Fact That Only Joplin, St. Charles and Webb City of Cities Whose Figures Have Been Announced Have Failed to Increase Population.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.

THE decadence of rural Missouri is being reflected day by day in the official population returns from the Census Bureau. While St. Louis and Kansas City show gains, respectively, of 12.5 and 30.6 per cent in the last decade, the great majority of counties have gone backward. Outside the large cities, the only section of the State that can take comfort from the returns is Southeast Missouri, with a cluster of at least 11 counties showing increases.

The Southeast counties thus far reported on the plus side are Howell, Shannon, Washington, Reynolds, Carter, Iron, Cape Girardeau, Scott, Stoddard, Dunklin and Butler.

Only eight others in the whole State, out of those for which official announcements have been made, gained population between 1910 and 1920. Four of these—McDonald, Stone, Barton and Greene, the last-named containing the important city of Springfield—are in Southwest Missouri. Jasper County, with Joplin, had not been reported at the time this summary was compiled.

Only Four Counties North of Missouri River Gain.

North of the Missouri River, only four counties have been credited with increases. These are Buchanan, with the city of St. Joseph; Clay, with Liberty and Excelsior Springs; Grundy, with Trenton, and Randolph, with Moberly and Huntsville. The increases in Clay and Buchanan were slight.

As only six counties remain to be reported in the section north of the river, it is impossible that later returns should improve the standing of that section in comparison with the southern. On the other hand, figures are yet to be given for 18 counties south of the river, some of which judging by the gains made by towns and cities in their borders, undoubtedly will show gains. Jackson County, of which Kansas City is a part, probably will show a considerable increase by virtue of the city's growth.

Summing up, reports have been made for the city of St. Louis and for 90 of the 114 counties. Of the 90, losses are shown in 71 and gains in 19. Eleven of the 19 are in the southeastern part of the State, four in the southwestern, three in the northwestern and one in the north central.

Only Three Cities Show Loss in Population.

Gains shown by the Missouri cities of more than 5000 population are in striking contrast with the country losses. Only three cities of this class out of the 25 that have been reported show a decline of population since 1910. The figures are as follows:

Control of Senate Likely to Depend on Result in Missouri; Seven States Genuinely Doubtful

Republicans Sure of Only Seven of 32 Seats to Be Filled and Have Advantage in Six Others—Democrats Count on 12

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.

SO close is the fight for control of the next Senate that it is quite conceivable the result will turn on the outcome of the contest in Missouri between Senator Spencer, Republican, and his Democratic opponent, Breckinridge Long. Certain it is that politicians of both parties are watching Missouri with more than usual interest, and that the State will be one of the principal battlegrounds of the campaign.

The present Senate is Republican by only two votes. A switch of only one vote would mean a tie, in which case the Democratic Vice-President would cast the deciding ballot.

Only by virtue of the election of Senator Newberry in Michigan, by means which a Federal court has declared beyond the pale of law, were the Republicans able to organize the Senate, take control of the vitally important Foreign Relations Committee and dictate the form in which the peace treaty question was brought to a vote.

This same question will be up again before the next Senate. Neither party can hope to win in the next election the two-thirds control necessary to ratify the treaty, but the party that gains the majority will have a decided tactical advantage. Gov. Cox takes the position that his election would be tantamount to a mandate from the people to the Senate to ratify the treaty, and that the treaty would be ratified, even though the Senate remained Republican. With a Democratic Senate, his hand would be greatly strengthened; the Democrats, in that event, and not the Lodge Republicans or the Borah-Johnson bitter-enders, would propose the wording of reservations. If Harding should be elected a Democratic Senate would be able to block his plan for a separate peace with Germany, no matter how overwhelmingly a Republican House might vote for it.

"Toss-Up" in Missouri.

Alive to the various possibilities in the situation, national leaders on both sides are watching with anxious concern the political developments in several doubtful states. Missouri is one of these. Publicly, the State is claimed as a virtual certainty by both sides, but the private view of those who have examined into the internal dissensions that brought Missouri into the political spotlight at both conventions, is that it's a toss-up between Long and Spencer. Most observers believe the result will be determined by the way the presidential election goes.

Other states on which interest is centered just now are Indiana, Utah, Wisconsin and New Hampshire, in each of which the Republican Senator up for re-election is facing serious troubles in his party. In Indiana, Senator Watson, who was chairman of the Resolutions Committee at Chicago, is in a cat-and-dog fight with that astute politician, former Senator Taggart. Serious doubt is expressed whether Harding, even if he carries the State, will be able to pull Watson through. The Indianapolis News, a powerful independent newspaper, has not committed itself as between Harding and Cox, though it opposes Harding on the League of Nations; but in the senatorial campaign it is out in the open against Watson and for Taggart.

In Utah, Senator Reed Smoot, one of the inner ring of Republicans controlling the Senate, is having the battle of his life and the Democrats are claiming they will be able to oust him. Latest reports from Utah, however, indicate that Smoot is getting his difficulties ironed out. He has had factional rows on his hands before and always has been able to settle them.

Hard Fight on Moses.

The Republican candidate for re-election in New Hampshire is Senator Moses, one of the most outspoken of the enemies of the treaty and of President Wilson. Moses is reported to be in extremely hot water in his own party. Democrats are counting upon the Republican fight to stir up enough bitterness to kill off Moses, or his opponent, whoever is nominated. Nothing would please the administration better than to see Moses defeated, not only because of his fight on the treaty, but because of his notorious activity in circulating reports magnifying the character of the President's illness. Every possible effort will be made to get Moses' scalp.

The hardest fight of all, however, is that faced by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, who voted for the treaty with the Lodge reservations. Lenroot is one of the really able men of the Senate—one of the very few men who can tangle in a rough-and-tumble debate with Senator Reed with a fair chance of coming out on top. He is a quick thinker, a good speaker and a shrewd parliamentarian. Lodge used frequently to leave him in charge of the floor to answer Democratic attacks on the Republican treaty program, and Lenroot acquitted himself with conspicuous ability.

What Lenroot did in the treaty fight did not improve his standing with his colleague, La Follette, a bitter-ender against the treaty. La Follette is now out to beat Lenroot in the primaries, and if Lenroot wins there he is up against the possibility of a bolt by the La Follette followers in the election. It was because of Lenroot's serious plight that some of the Republican leaders at Chicago attempted to get him the vice presidential nomination. His Democratic opponent in Wisconsin is Paul S. Reinsch, former American Ambassador to China.

Besides the five states named, the Republicans are having troubles in two other states—New York and Connecticut. Apparently they have the edge over the Democrats in both, but the margin is not enough for absolute comfort. In each case the anti-suffrage record of the sitting member—Wadsworth in New York and Brandegee in Connecticut—is being effectively used against him. Wadsworth probably will win if the State goes for Harding by a majority of any size, while Brandegee is said by Republican scouts to have his fences in good order, despite the attacks of the women. Brandegee is an out-and-out treaty opponent. Wadsworth was for the Lodge reservations.

Lively Contest in Ohio.

Ohio is another State rated as close. Like New York, it probably will return a Senator of the same political complexion as the winner of the State's presidential vote. The candidates are Julian, Democrat, against Willis, Republican, who nominated Harding at Chicago, and the battle is for the seat vacated by the presidential nominee.

But the factional squabbles are not all on the Republican side. The Democrats have troubles of their own in several states, in consequence of which the Republicans have hopes of gaining a few members. One of the seats at stake is that of Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, who incurred the ill will of the administration early in the war through his fight on the War Department. Oregon is normally a Republican State, and on the face of the facts it looks as if a Republican should win. Chamberlain, however, is personally popular, and the best bet is that he will be sent back to the Senate with the aid of Republican votes.

A somewhat analogous situation exists in California, where Senator Phelan, Democrat, is up for re-election. The Republicans generally win California, but the Democrats are looking to Phelan's popularity to pull him through. His chances are strengthened by the fight of the Republicans over the nomination. The old guard is in a war with the progressives, and reports indicate that the losing faction is likely to go to Phelan in the election.

Situation in Western States.

In Colorado the Republicans are conceded to have a good chance to capture the seat now held by Senator Thomas, an anti-league Democrat. Thomas has refused to run for re-election on the ground that he would stultify himself in seeking office on a platform with which he is not in agreement in such a vital particular as the league issue. Owing partly to the stand of Thomas against the league, there is considerable anti-league sentiment in Colorado.

Henderson in Nevada also faces a contest, but is supposed to have the advantage at present. The four states in which the Republicans are most hopeful of ousting the Democrats are South Dakota, Idaho, Maryland and Kentucky.

The South Dakota situation is complicated by the fact that an independent Republican has got in the race against Gov. Peter Norbeck, the regular nominee of the party. Norbeck is believed to have the best chance of victory, but the Democrats are hopeful that the split will let their man get by. Senator Johnson, Democrat, is not a candidate for re-election in that State.

Senator Beckham is up for re-election in Kentucky and Senator Smith in Maryland. In both States a hard fight is brewing, with the Democratic nominees having only about an even chance. In Idaho the advantage appears to be on the Republican side, due to the fact that the Borah faction, which two years ago supported a Democrat, is back in the Republican fold. Borah, for weeks, has been speaking in the State against the league, and if the Front Porch Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It surely must have occurred to the voters of the country that the Republican leaders have some vital object in view when they decide to keep Senator Harding at home.

We know that after the Chicago convention the Republicans were very busy for a few days making excuses to justify the nomination of Senator Harding. Conditions, they thought, furnished sufficient reason for recommending a second rate man to the country for the high office of President. They hushed up all whispering as to Senator Harding being more likely to rule for the benefit of the party rather than the country. In view of these facts it is not surprising that the Republicans ordain that their candidate stay at home. They know that the Ohio Senator will not appeal to the public. They know that as long as the public does not "get on" to him things will go all right.

But he must, to a certain extent, appear before the public; so they have decided that he shall appear on his home ground. They gain two objects when they do that. First, not many people will care enough to make the pilgrimage to his home, and, second, he will appear to better advantage to the few that do see him, as everyone makes a better appearance on home ground than elsewhere. In other words, the Republicans are trying their old swindling trick of selling the country a "pig in a bag."

The action of the Democrats in respect to the coming campaign is in striking contrast to that of the Republicans. The Republicans a year ago were overconfident of victory in November, but they are getting less confident each day.

Bar Association's Influence.

In view of Mr. Percy Werner's regret as expressed in his letter in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch, that the voters of St. Louis fail to follow the recommendations of the Bar Association and refuse to vote for men having its indorsement, it may interest the association to be informed of the facts as well as the reasons why the influence of the association is negligible and will remain so until the lawyers convince the public that they are desirous of elevating the personnel of both the bench and bar. The voters know that members of the Bar Association have received and continue to receive exorbitant fees, allowed to them by the bench, in cases, for instance, where business concerns are put in the hands of a receiver, and the Bar Association has made no protest. The amicus curiae has ceased to exist and the curia parasiti has taken his place. Each Court, circuit and probate, has its ring of favorites—Bar Association members—who are appointed and given large compensation for their services by the Court, and no protest comes from the Bar Association.

In the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court it is mandatory on the Judge to appoint counsel to defend those charged with crime, and those of us who serve on juries know that incompetent young lawyers are always appointed, no fee being allowed. Mr. Curia Parisiti is never appointed to defend indigent persons charged with crime, and if appointed he would refuse to serve. Drop into the Circuit Court—civil division—any morning and there in all his receptive preparedness you will find Curia Parisiti—dozens of him—awaiting the toothsome viands that fall off the Judges' bench and no protest from the Bar Association.

Monkey Glands.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Some months ago the journals of the medical profession gave rather broad publicity to the theory of grafting monkey glands into old men to make them young again, first practiced or rather experimented with in France, where "race suicide" has given birth to the demand that some sort of rejuvenation be practiced, even if it must be at the expense of the monkey family.

It is doubtful if virile young America will ever stand for any such vivisection practice for the introduction of an animal physiology being grafted into his organism, even though it postponed old age.

Another question may also have its influence, to-wit: Would not this engrafted animal gland transmit a part of its own character into the matrix of life, to the extent that the offspring would show monkey tendencies?

The writer would never lift voice or pen against the idealistic search for the mythical fountain of youth, for he himself has been tireless in the selfsame search and is happy enough to think that he has found it—by the gift of the Supreme Being, not in monkey business, but rather through a daily care of himself, of that wonderful machine of the human body into which nature set the [illegible] breath of life.

REUBEN.

"IRREDEEMABLE FAILURE."

Mr. Harding has pronounced the League of Nations an "irredeemable failure." This verdict has been rendered in his latest speech, which the public has been awaiting with expectancy. In the publicity given it, it was to be the candidate's greatest effort, in which he was to dispel the obscurity of his own and his party's position on the great issue of the world's aspiration for a just and permanent peace.

The verdict which he has rendered against the League is derived from a process of reasoning from which the intelligence of the American people will turn with disappointment, not unmixed with resentment. Shallow and specious are the mildest terms which, in honest criticism, can be applied to such lack of information or deliberate misstatement of facts, bizarre hypotheses and amazing conclusions.

In the blundering of Poland Mr. Harding finds the League of Nations has failed utterly and irretrievably, and vindication, also, for the Senate's refusal, under the Lodge leadership, to ratify the covenant presented by Mr. Wilson. The League of Nations has impotently left Poland to face ruin and destruction, Mr. Harding says, despite its solemn pledges to protect its members and proteges. But had the United States joined the League by the Senate's ratification the other nations would have assumed that we could readily come to Poland's aid with munitions and men, and under the authority of Article X we should have been called upon to do so, and under the obligations of that provision we should have had no choice but to answer the call.

It is hardly conceivable that the pressure of campaign duties has prevented Mr. Harding from even glancing at the news from Europe, but what other excuse can be offered for unfamiliarity with the rudimentary facts of the League's attitude towards Poland and its freedom of any covenanted responsibility? Alone of ordinarily informed men he seemingly does not know that Poland, in invading Russia, was herself the offender and was guilty of this offensive attempt at conquest over the remonstrance of several of the most powerful European members of the League. So far from being a just claimant for the protection of the League, Poland, by violating the spirit and letter of the covenant, had forfeited every right and equity of membership. It is fair to say, we believe that had Russia been other than she is—a menace to civilization and the openly avowed enemy of orderly government—had she been on anything like decent terms with the world, the League would have been obligated at the outset to go to Russia's aid, if Russia needed it.

A Poland bent on conquest and a Poland defending her territory and independence, however, are different situations. And though the League of Nations has sent no troops to Poland, can Mr. Harding sincerely say that it has abandoned Poland? The truth is, regardless of what Mr. Harding says, that the League of Nations has not deserted Poland, but, on the contrary, the great European members of the League have declared that Poland shall not be destroyed, that the Poland re-created by the Versailles treaty shall be preserved. That pledge, it should be observed, is in no wise conditioned upon our entrance into the League.

But if campaign burdens have prevented Mr. Harding from acquainting himself with facts which are common knowledge, no explanation can be fashioned for his willful misconstruction of Article X. The persistence of the League's enemies in reading into that provision a degree of obligation it does not contain, while the Senate was engaged solely in beating Wilson, may be understood. That was politics. But Mr. Harding, as a candidate for President, ought to rise above the level of pettifoggery to which the Senate stooped. The time for telling the truth about the League covenant surely has arrived, and that much is the least to be expected from the candidates for our highest office. Mr. Harding has not done so.

This latest speech of Mr. Harding's is an "irredeemable failure."

END OF REEDY'S MIRROR.

Though at least two offers for the purchase of the journal have been made and other plans suggested for its continuance, it has been decided to abandon the publication of Reedy's Mirror. A magazine which, utilizing in some part the prestige and organization Mr. Reedy created, would devote itself to literature, public affairs and the humanities so successfully as to become one of the assets of the town, can easily be imagined. As completely as the daily press covers its field, there yet remains a further field of importance and opportunity. The viewpoints which the leisure of weekly and monthly journalism is enabled to present and elaborate have a value for many thoughtful citizens. On such a magazine, perpetuating the Reedy's Mirror name, the Reedy traditions might be expected to have great weight, but it would never be the Reedy's Mirror we have known, the magazine of such stripe and flavor as to win a foremost place in the affections and intelligence of America. Reedy's Mirror ended with Reedy. Why disguise the fact?

After the pledge of the supreme, the dearest quality, the wineglass used to be broken, that from it nothing less worthy might be pledged. It is as well that the graceful cup from which Reedy drank so gaily to the frailties and paradoxes of life and pledged his faith to certain great verities, is to be shattered. We may have no doubt as to the many perfumed memories that will linger about its fragments.

FUNDAMENTALS OF CIVIC LIBERTY.

Recent assaults on personal rights, including that of free speech, were the subject of ex-Senator A. J. Beveridge's address before the American Bar Association.

An assemblage of men deeply learned in the law, its history, its limitations, its scientific aspects, its important relation to human progress, was pre-eminently the place for such a discussion. A partisan weighing of its phases only contributes to cheapened, distorted conceptions.

The drag-net raids on aliens by the Department of Justice were condemned by Mr. Beveridge as conducive to injustice rather than justice. He deplored the introduction of the European theory of "guilt by association"—the theory that mere membership in some unapproved organization may be held an offense—in a country that has always heretofore clung to the principle that guilt must be personal. He showed how old repressive policies of England, in a period of prolonged war, had in part led to some of the guarantees of our system—guarantees which we in turn seemed to depart from during a state of war. He denounced restrictions on the right of free expression, whether imposed through court procedure or the arbitrary act of a Postmaster-General, as not only the possible source of great wrong, but as contributing the very evils they are designed to control.

With the cells of the Federal prisons occupied by many whose only crime was the exercise of what they thought was the privilege of uttering their opinions, surely no discussion could be more timely. With the Federal bureaucracy's amazing growth, not merely in personnel, but in the authority it assumes to wield, has come a need for guarding these rights more and more jealously. Acquiescence in their invasion at some points only establishes precedents for invading them at others.

These popular guarantees are set forth in plain, easily-grasped language in the Constitution. A phase of the subject Mr. Beveridge did not touch on relates to the effect on many wondering minds of practices that seem to set them at naught. If Congress and high functionaries may make scraps of paper of them on plausible excuse, does it not tend to inculcate an impression that mere scraps of paper make up the entire body of the law?

"We must stand for all American fundamentals—all, not some," said the ex-Senator. "If one is prostrated, all will fall." To see that all are sustained in the full scope and liberality of our original heritage is one of the duties of citizenship, feminine as well as masculine.

THE SPEED MARVEL OF THE CENSUS.

Census statistics a couple of weeks ago showed Woodriver, Ill., as having made a gain of 4038.1 per cent in population, and the trophy was at once awarded that city as the country's champion scorcher by an overwhelming majority. The overwhelming majority was wrong. Woodriver may furl its flag, muffle its drums, silence its ukelele and tip its toque to a swifter rival.

The latest claimant for the national speed crown is the zinc mining town of Picher, Ok. This now has a registered population of 9676 and, but for certain thrifty reasons having to do with taxation, might easily have exceeded the 10,000 mark, according to rumor. As for the percentage of Picher's expansion in this second decade, the science of mathematics cannot calculate it at all.

Back in the lost world of 1910 Woodriver may have been an unpromising infant, but Picher, Ok., had not been born. It was slumbering dreamlessly in the unsuspecting oblivion of posterity. It was only so much Indian hay land. It wore a simple but rather becoming gown of green in April and May, but that was its one brief essay at beauty. Under the pitiless suns of midsummer it fretted and fricasseed, after which it faded into the sallow monotony of dreary, wind-swept prairie. It was not until March 15, 1915, that a drill probed into zinc in the 40-acre tract of Chief Crawfish. And then the deluge. The pastoral calm departed. Entered Pandemonium, with all the "merry men of circumstance."

The hectic cradle days of that mining camp are dim, gray memories now. The town has grown in dignity and aspiration as well as in wealth and stature. Churches and schools, social and business organizations, cottages and bungalows, with here and there a statelier home—such are the signs and tokens of rooted citizenship and civic pride. A wholesome city is this Oklahoma speed marvel. The secretary of its Chamber of Commerce narrates its miracle in prancing figures. But there are ballads in the breezy, swaggering annals of Picher which will be written, let us hope, by some future poet of the prairies.

LO, with mine ain hands
Would I make ready the wicker
For the bird of my hope.
I have heard it call
From the hills in a melancholy tone,
Half pleadful, half commandful.
There is a promise in the upward cadence
And a sorrow in the mellow tones.

With mine ain hands I would Build me the wicker yea and place
Within it bread from a fine loaf
And seed, yea and sup, and I
Would say: "Behold, here is the labor

Which wert directed by my love."
And I would watch tenderly
The spot unto the time
When I might ope the door
And bid the bird enter.

One of our readers thinks the different schools of journalism cannot be doing much for reporting when we can read so much about the skeleton found at the mouth of the Missouri River and so little of the flask of whisky found with the skeleton. Evidently he thinks the flask of whisky far exceeding in news importance the skeleton itself; and unless there was something very unusual about the skeleton, which seems not to have been the case, we rather agree with him. Whisky is about the most interesting word in our lexicon at this time, and we don't know what the front page of a paper would do without it. Anyway, our changing times keep the schools of journalism humping, and the criticism of our reader shows pretty clearly what is expected of them.

A member of an eminent St. Louis law firm went to Chicago to consult a client. When he arrived he found that he had unaccountably forgotten the client's name. He telegraphed his partner, "What is our client's name?" The answer read, "Brown, Walter E. Yours is Allen, William B."

The young woman cast a glance of scorn at one or two men hiding behind newspapers. "Please don't get up," she said to the old man. "I beg you won't." The conductor rang the bell and the car went on. The old man's features worked convulsively and he mopped his face with his handkerchief. At the next corner he again tried to rise, and again the young woman tried to stop him. "I would much rather stand," she said, continuing to block his way. "I don't care whether you would or not," said the old man, crimson with fury. "I want to get out. You've made me ride two blocks too far already. Here, you, stop the car." But it was too late, the bell had already rung, and he waited until the next block was reached.

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

POWER UNDER FALSE PRETENSES.

From the New York World.

EVERY voter knows what James M. Cox would do with the treaty of peace and the covenant of the League of Nations in the event of his election to the presidency.

The treaty would be resubmitted at once to the Senate, in accordance with Gov. Cox's pledge that "the first duty of the new administration clearly will be the ratification of the treaty." Mr. Cox would accept any reasonable interpretations that might be agreed upon by the Senate, provided they did not impair the "essential integrity" of the covenant, but he would "stand against anything that disturbs the vital principle." There would be no crippling of the league on the part of the United States, no denial of responsibility for helping to maintain the peace of the world, no repudiation of the obligations assumed by all the other members, no refusal to finish the task for which 2,000,000 American soldiers went to France.

Nobody knows what Warren G. Harding would do about the treaty. He has never said. Senator Lodge admits that the Republican platform "makes no promises for the future," and the speeches of the Republican candidate are equally sterile. Senator Harding refuses to say whether he would favor ratification with the Lodge reservations for which he twice voted. He is committed to nothing except a separate peace with Germany along the lines of the Knox resolution and to sympathy with a fantastic "association of nations" that has no existence.

All attempts to obtain a definite statement of policy from the Republican candidate have been unavailing. Mr. Taft insists that Senator Harding means one thing and Senator Johnson insists that he means another. While the Republican friends of the league are trying to interpret the Harding speeches to square with their own belief, the Republican enemies of the league are daily declaring that the candidate is in accord with them on the issue.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

From the Ohio State Journal.

NO matter what may be thundered from the political platform as the paramount issue of the campaign, it is certain most listeners would vastly prefer to hear some practical recommendation for reducing the cost of living and lightening the burden of taxation. The belief in the minds of many people is that taxation burdens ought to be growing lighter, now that so many months have passed since the war was ended. It is not at all certain the public, all the millions of people of the nation, will agree to the choice of questions by the candidates, or be ready to accept the recommendations of the platform writers and campaign managers as to what is the real issue. If some speaker should appear during the campaign with a promising means for reducing living costs, he would make himself and his plan immensely popular, would be in demand everywhere, and the public sentiment he would rouse would definitely make and fix the paramount issue. There is a tremendous feeling in the hearts of people that taxation burdens ought to be lightened and could be without injury to any governmental activity. There is keen disappointment in the hearts of consumers that governmental powers have not availed to protect the public from being plundered by profiteers, who are still squeezing their profits from the public. Thus far not a single definite, rational plan for curing these troubles and righting these conditions has been given the public.

Much Gaiety for the Younger Set Is Promised in Festivities Accompanying Long List of Wedding Dates This Fall—Announcement of the Bridal Parties for Some Notable Marriages.

AUTUMN wedding dates are being announced almost daily. The "who's who" of the bridal parties is a subject of great interest to society, and the festivities attendant upon these weddings give promise of much gaiety for the younger set during the fall.

Miss Prudence Zeibig has chosen Sept. 20 as the date of her marriage to Oliver N. Clifford. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Zeibig of 37 Kingsbury place. The bride's only attendant will be her sister, Mrs. James Powell Whitehead. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Miss Zeibig was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Clifford is the son of Alfred Clifford of 22 Westmoreland place. He is a graduate of Yale and a member of the St. Louis Country, Bellerive Country and Racquet clubs.

The marriage of Miss Anne Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Block of 4555 Pershing avenue, and Hugh Scott will take place Oct. 6 at Christ Church Cathedral. Miss Margaret Block will be her sister's maid of honor and among the bridesmaids will be Misses Helen Gratz and Alice Scott. George D. Scott, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. A wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony. Miss Scott received her education at Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr, Pa., and at a French school in the East. She made her debut last year, and was one of the special maids to the Queen at the Veiled Prophet's ball. Mr. Scott is the son of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott. He is a graduate of Yale and a member of the Imperial and the St. Louis Country clubs.

Another wedding of Oct. 6 is that of Miss Harriet Edwards and Walker McMillan, which will be solemnized at 8:30 in the evening at the Grace Episcopal Church in Kirkwood. Miss Edwards will have as matron of honor Mrs. Walter Skinner, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Constance Edwards as maid of honor. The other attendants for the bride will be Mrs. Carrington Cabell and Miss Katherine Curlee. Douglas McMillan will be best man, and the groomsmen will be Murray Edwards, brother of the bride, Kehlor Carr and Edward Norvell of Indianapolis, formerly of St. Louis. A reception for the bridal party and members of the families will follow the ceremony. The young couple will reside in Indianapolis.

Miss Edwards is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Green Edwards of Woodlawn, Kirkwood. She is a graduate of Mary Institute, and later attended Stuart Hall in Virginia. Mr. McMillan is the son of Mrs. E. W. McMillan of Kirkwood.

Oct. 9 is the date which has been set for the marriage of Miss Jane Bemis and Oliver Anderson. The ceremony will take place in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bemis of Brentmoor. A reception will follow. Miss Bemis was educated at Mary Institute and Miss Porter's school at Farmington. She made her debut three years ago. She is a member of the Junior League and Imperial Club. Mr. Anderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo F. Anderson of the Aberdeen Apartments. He is a member of the St. Louis Country and Racquet Clubs, and the Imperial. He served as an Ensign in the navy during the war.

Miss Charlotte Reyburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amedee V. Reyburn, and Wilkins Jones will be married Oct. 13. The ceremony will take place in the evening at the Reyburn home, 4634 Lindell boulevard. The bridal party will include six girls and six men, most of the bride's attendants being out-of-town girls. Miss Reyburn was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent in St. Louis, and later attended a finishing school in Philadelphia. She made her debut about four years ago, and has been a prominent member of the younger set. Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Silas Jones of the Usona Hotel, and a nephew of Charles P. Senter of 1 Beverly place, with whom he resides. He is a graduate of Harvard, and served as a Captain in the army during the war.

The marriage of Miss Edith McCormack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. McCormack of 4522 Westminster place, and Richmond Dana Moot will be solemnized Oct. 2 by Rev. John W. McIvor at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Noble McCormack will be matron of honor, and Misses Berkeley Sloan and Margaret Shapleigh will be bridesmaids. The wedding guests will include only relatives and a few intimate friends, and the ceremony will be followed by a large reception. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Europe, and after Nov. 15 will be at home at 20 Ardsley road, Schenectady, N. Y. Mr. Moot is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Moot of Buffalo.

The first of the fall weddings will take place Thursday, when Miss Harriet Wickard becomes the bride of Robert Carter of Minneapolis. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Father O'Conner at noon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wickard, 5885 Nina place. The bride's only attendant will be Miss Coleen Wrape, and Mr. Carter will have as best man his father, W. C. Carter of St. Louis, formerly of Dallas, Tex. The guests at the wedding will include only members of the families. Following a honeymoon trip the couple will reside in Minneapolis.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Lucy Louise Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wilcox of 4627 McPherson avenue, to Emons S. Free. The wedding will take place late in October. Miss Wilcox is the granddaughter of the late Mary E. Bryant the Southern novelist. Mr. Free is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Free of 5933 Julian avenue. He is a graduate of Western Military Academy at Alton and served as a Captain in the aviation corps during the war.

BILL WOULD FORCE PLEDGE OBEDIENCE

Proposed Measure Provides That Voting Against Platform of Party Be Punishable as Felony.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Passage of bills to make platform pledges binding is to be sought in every state Legislature. The act that makes failure of a legislative official to vote according to the platform on which he is elected a felony was drafted by a member of the President's Cabinet and has been sent to the Governor of every state for introduction at the first session of the Legislature of that state.

The object of the bill is to make candidates live up to promises of reforms to their constituents. The theory is that a candidate is elected on certain specified conditions, and when he violates them he is as much guilty of embezzlement as a man who violates a contract.

The bill provides in part that an official who "casts his vote upon any proposed measure in violation of any principle or policy set forth or declared for in the party platform upon which he was elected shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary for any term not to exceed 10 years and in addition thereto shall forfeit his right as a citizen to vote.

"Provided: That any such political legislative official who shall have publicly declared before his election that he would not be bound by a particular party declaration set forth in the platform upon which he was elected shall not be deemed guilty of an offense if he casts his vote against a proposed measure or bill carrying into effect such particular party declaration which by him was so publicly renounced."

The bill would, for example, make it impossible for a Democratic United States Senate elected on the platform adopted at San Francisco to vote against the League of Nations.

The bill, its sponsor argues, is also calculated to make party conventions more careful of what they put into their platforms as vote-catchers.

TWO WIN PETTY OFFICER RANK

Eight Belleville Boys Mustered Out at Great Lakes School.

Two of eight Belleville boys who attended the Great Lakes Naval Training School during vacation were mustered out with the rank of Third Class Petty Officer. They are Colson Casey and Elmer Lill. Casey also made the second highest score of 1000 boys enrolled in rifle practice. Before entering the school he had never handled a rifle.

Many of the coats are in the longer length that typifies "1920-21;" others in ripple flared effect depict the medium length that is more becoming to many types of figure; the gathered peplum; the straightline models—all are here in many variations. Many are fur-trimmed and all are beautifully silk lined.

Other new models priced $29.50, $35.00, $55.00, $89.50, $95.00 and upwards.

The Sale of Sales

The largest quantity and greatest assortment of fine silk Stockings, we believe, that has ever been offered by any St. Louis store.

"Slight Irregulars" the manufacturers call them, but so slight that only an expert would be able to detect any imperfection. They'll give the same satisfactory wear as the more costly "firsts."

Silk Stockings are always acceptable for Christmas gifts! What better opportunity than to buy now at these great savings.

Arranged in sizes on 6 large Bargain Squares—also in the regular Hosiery Department.

$2.60 to $5 Marvel Stripe Stockings
Most of these Stockings are all silk from top to toe and are made plain and marvel stripe style, which prevents runners; heavy lisle and silk soles; made of heavy ingrain thread silk; they come in black and white, and some lisle top tans and browns; all sizes 8½ to 10.......... $1.98 son was the wedding at Saunderstown, across the bay from the Pier, of Miss Anne Leverett Chase, daughter of Mrs. Henry L. Chase, and John S. Lionberger of St. Louis at St. John's Chapel, on Thursday. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Chase, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Ruth Lionberger, sister of the groom; Ervin Hayward, Jane Bemis, Rebekah Chase, while Frances Chase acted as flower girl. Lionberger was attended by Andrew McCreery of St. Louis as best man, and the ushers included Oliver Anderson, Arthur B. Lionberger, Bayard Wharton, Andrew Monroe of Philadelphia, and Carl Coolidge of Boston. The bride's gown was of white satin with a tulle veil, and the attendants wore pink organdie frocks with hats to match. Following the ceremony there was an informal reception on the lawn of the Chase cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Lionberger took the boat to New York. The guests included the two sisters of the bridegroom, Mrs. Donald Cutler and Mrs. John Austin Amory of Boston.

Mrs. A. M. Blackwell of St. Louis, who has been spending the summer at the Imperial, Narragansett Pier, has gone to Watwick Neck to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Aldrich.

Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert of St. Louis entertained a dinner company at Sagamore Villa on Tuesday evening.

Another event of the week at the Pier was an informal clambake given by Mr. and Mrs. David S. Baker at the Scarborough Beach Bathing Club. The guests included Mrs. James Cahill and her daughter, Miss Leonora Cahill, of St. Louis, another daughter, Mrs. Robert J. B. Sullivan, of Providence, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Blaine Jr., and Mr. and Mrs Francis H. McAdoo, the former a son of ex-Secretary McAdoo.

W. G. Yantis of St. Louis has arrived at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, to spend the remainder of the summer with Mrs. Yantis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman and Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of St. Louis, who have been of the Watch Hill colony this summer, have returned from a motor trip to Buzzards Bay, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Black of St. Louis have been at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the late season.

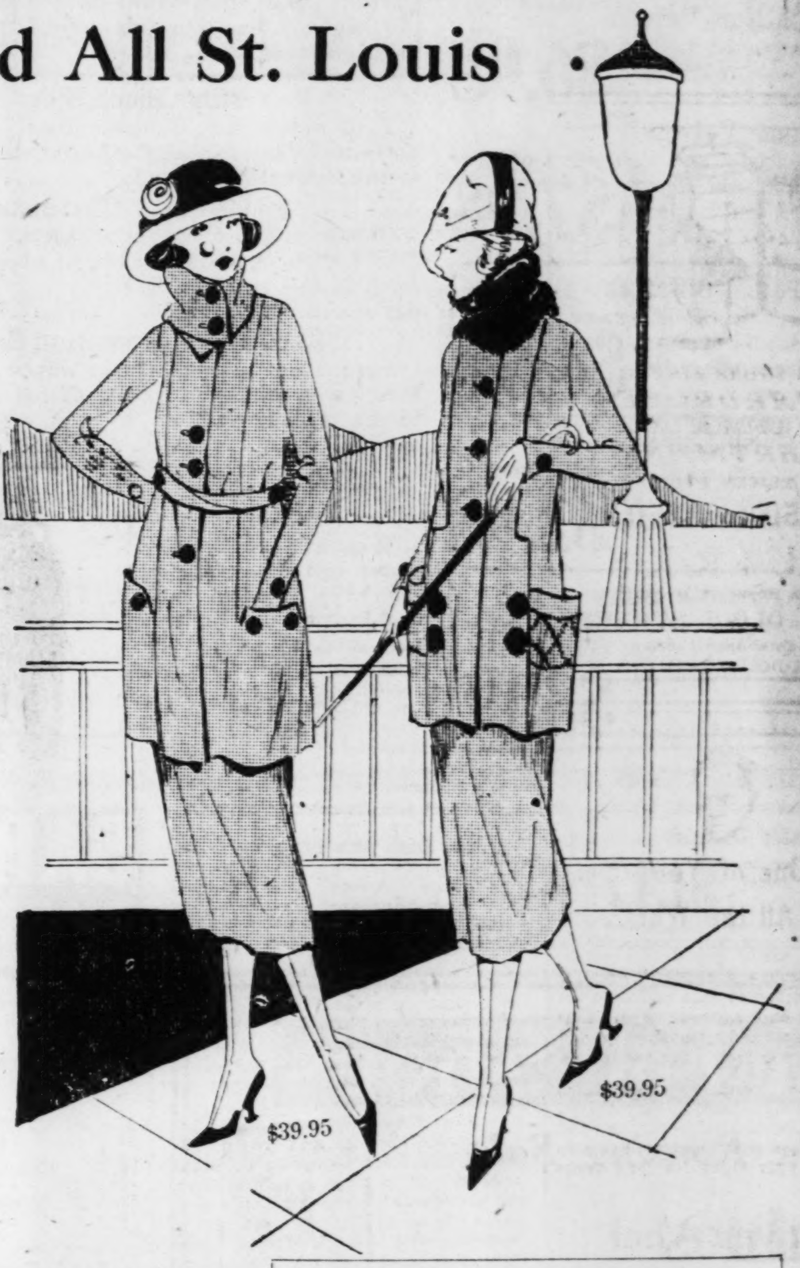
Monday—We Will Place on Sale

300 Fall and Winter Suits

At a Price That Will Astound All St. Louis

Just 300 of these wonderful, fashionable Suits of quality, and every one of them should be sold tomorrow, for we have not seen such excellent values for many a day



Suits Made to Sell From $45.00 to $59.50 Offered for Monday's Selling at $39.95

TO obtain a Suit of excellent quality and smart styling in this sale, it is not necessary to select a $59.50 value. Although the intrinsic value of these Suits is greater, you are likely to find many styles worth $45 and $49.50, that will appeal to you even more strongly. However, more than 50% of these Suits are worth above $49.50.

Suits are Fur, Braid, Button and Embroidery Trimmed

The Fabrics:

Tricotine Oxford Silvertone
Broadcloth Velour Checks Wool Velour

The Colors:

Mordore Nanking Navy Malay Black Brown

These Suits, purchased from the manufacturer at far less than the prices they were intended to sell for, are offered by us on a closer margin of profit than is possible at any other time of the year. In fact, we could not maintain this establishment, pay overhead expenses, etc., if all merchandise was sold on this basis all the time. It is only the desire to stimulate our business, which, in August, is normally slow, that we are offering this underpriced purchase of Suits slightly above cost.

All Regular Sizes Up to 42

....Important Notice....

Charge purchases made during this sale placed on October statements, payable in November. A deposit of 20% on cash purchases will hold Suits in storage until October 1st.

EXPERIENCES IN RUSSIA TOLD BY REFUGEE HERE

Robbed by Brigands and Plundered by Armies People Pray for Help, Youth Declares.

A story of persecution and starvation in Russia was told yesterday by Jacob Wax, 20 years old, who, with his mother, Mrs. Fannie Wax, 51, arrived at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ely Buchalter, 1339 Blackstone avenue, after having emmigrated from Costopolia, a small town several hundred miles northeast of Warsaw. Costopolia has a population of about 1200, and for many months has been the scene of combat between the Poles, the Bolshevikis and the Ukrainians under Gen. Petlura.

"People in America who take protection for granted have no conception of what it means to have to flee and hide in holes in the ground to escape harm from the roving bands of robbers that continually attack the village when it is not occupied by an army," Wax said.

"All industry in the village has been destroyed. Although in 1918 there were 11 factories in the town, none is operating today. There is practically no food to be had in the village, and it is considered a banquet if one can augment the regular rations of rye bread and water with a potato or two. Those who do not go about in rags have to be satisfied with coarse sack cloth wound about the body in place of clothes.

Want to Come to America.

"There is not one person in the town who would not come to America if the opportunity were given, and all the Jews are praying for the restoration of Palestine. All rights of property have vanished, and chaos rules. No sooner would the Bolsheviki become established and some order appear than they were driven out by the Poles, who in turn would have to give way to the army of Petlura. When the village was not in the possession of an army, an armed band would organize and take possession.

As an example of the disorder that exists, Wax told of an illiterate peasant named Stepanovitch, who, as soon as the Bolshevik army vacated the town in the autumn of 1919, entered with 20 armed followers and declared himself Czar of the village. Several hundred men flocked to him and he began his reign by immediately taxing the people. His officers and men had the privilege of helping themselves to anything in the village and to offer resistance meant death. For recompense one had to petition Stepanovitch's Minister of Finance, and if the petitioner was too zealous in presenting his claims he would be cast into irons or be killed.

Fled From City at Night.

Wax said that he and his mother had to flee from Cstopolia by night in order not to be seen and robbed, and it was only through the American embassy at Warsaw that he was released after having been taken from the train by Poles to serve as a conscript against the Bolsheviki. There are thousands of persons living and sleeping on the streets near the American embassy at Warsaw waiting for their turn to get passports for America, he said.

Although in St. Louis only a few days, Wax has already taken out his first naturalization papers.

THREATENED STRIKE MAY CLOSE N. O. NELSON PLANT

Marble Workers and Machinists Persent Demands, President Says He Cannot Grant.

The Edwardsville plant of the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co., 920 Chestnut street, will shut down next Wednesday if 200 marble workers and machinists employed there carry out their threat to strike, according to L. D. Lawnin, president of the company.

The marble workers and machinists yesterday presented formal demands for an eight-hour working day, a closed shop and 15 cents an hour increase in wages, and informed Lawnin that they would quit in a body Sept. 1 unless the demands are granted.

The concern, which manufactures plumbing supplies, was founded by N. O. Nelson, and, like all of the company's plants, was conducted on a co-operative basis, the employes sharing the profits in the shape of cash dividents in proportion to their wages. Recently, when employes joined unions they were cut off from the profit sharing. The brass workers and some of the cabinet makers employed at the plant are affiliated with unions.

Lawnin said that, as the company was not in a position to grant the demands of the marble workers and machinists, the strike in all probability will be called and that if it is the plant will make no effort to run with a reduced force.

CONSUMPTION OF GASOLINE STILL AHEAD OF PRODUCTION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Although production of gasoline for the first six months of this year was 13 per cent greater than for the corresponding period of 1919, the increase in consumption was 32 per cent, it was reported today by the Bureau of Mines. Gasoline stocks at the end of June were 89,841,000 gallons, or 15 per cent less than the amount on hand on June 30, 1919.

Gas and fuel oils showed an increase in both production and stocks for the six months compared with the first half of 1919.

Gasoline Here Up One-Half Cent.

Gasoline at oil filling stations here advanced Thursday one-half cent a gallon to 28½ cents. It was said at offices of oil companies that no explanation of the reason accompanied an order for the advance.

CONTROL OF THE NEXT SENATE MAY DEPEND ON RESULT IN MISSOURI

result hinges on that issue, Senator Nugent, the Democratic incumbent, though personally popular, is likely to lose.

Thirty-four senatorial seats are to be filled at the November election. Twelve of them are counted as surely Democratic, while the Republicans can bank with absolute certainty on not more than seven. Even though they apparently have the edge in half a dozen others, the field of genuinely doubtful states is big enough to give the Democrats a rosy hope of upsetting the present scant Republican majority. If that hope should be realized in connection with a Harding victory, the country will be in for another deadlock between Senate and executive.

NOVELIST IBANEZ'S ARTICLE ON FRANCE'S INVALID PRESIDENT

the separation of the church and State in France. Nevertheless, he lives in the clerical quarter of Saint Sulplice, where all the religious images and sacred objects of worship are manufactured. His residence, a silent old mansion in the very shadow and under the very bells of the church of Saint Sulplice, has all the atmosphere of a Bishop's palace. In fact, M. Bourgeois has been referred to as a lay Bishop of Agnostics.

Fate is always showing its ironies. The young and elegant Deschanel may, within a few weeks, see himself replaced on grounds of mental debility, by a 70-year-old man almost able to be his father.

If this happens, it will be a triumph of prudent, reasonable old age over passionate, impetuous youth.

When the President fell from the train in his sleep, it was amusing to read the comment in the newspaper edited by M. Clemenceau. The Old Tiger wrote: "This episode proves that men of 80 can be stronger and abler than men of 60. It all depends on the capers you cut while you were young. For obviously there are some capers which insist on being cut at an age when you ought to know better."

WARRANT ISSUED FOR ELECTRIFIER OF FENCE

Information Made After Women and Children Are Shocked by Live Wire.

An information has been issued against Charles Kulp, of 2146 Curtis Lane, Pine Lawn, St. Louis County, after complaint had been made to St. Louis County authorities that Kulp had maintained a wire charged with electricity along the top of a fence enclosing a garden in the rear of his home and that women and children had been shocked and burned by it.

Kulp is an employe of the Curtis & Co. Manufacturing Co., adjoining Curtis Lane.

Mrs. Edna Gilbert, whose home is two doors from that of Kulp, related that on Wednesday evening her 12-year-old daughter, Hazel Elder, had accidentally seized the wire while playing tag with other children and that the hand was held fast.

She endeavored to release it with the other hand the second became fixed on the wire. She screamed and neighbors gathered. During their efforts to free the girl, it appeared that the electricity was suddenly shut off and the girl was released. The girl has gone about since with her wrists bandaged. She exhibited scars, as if from a burn, to a reporter.

Mrs. Mary Tracy of 6211 Bailey place related that on June 6 her son, Harold, 6, had become caught in the same way by the wire and that he was burned.

Mrs. Margaret Crommie of 2140 Curtis Lane related that she was burned on the arm by the wire.

Miss Theda Walker, who says that she has been employed by Kulp as a housekeeper for about 10 days, said to a reporter, in Kulp's absence, that Kulp had come home during the excitement of Wednesday night, when Mrs. Gilbert's daughter was fast on the wire, had gone to the basement and had shut off the electricity from the wire.

She said that Kulp had admitted to her that he had run a wire from the basement to the barbed wire on the fence and had connected the wire with electric current. He said, Miss Walker related, that he had been troubled by thefts from his garden and by people trampling on it and had conceived the idea of charging the wire as a warning.

He said that there was not enough electricity in the wire to harm anyone. She said that men in the neighborhood called upon him after the experience of the Elder girl and that he had shut off the electricity from the wire.

BANKRUPTCY ON INCREASE IN GERMANY, REPORT SAYS

Unemployment Also an Increasing Problem for the Government.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The Department of Commerce has made public the following cablegram received from Berlin regarding present economic conditions:

Bankruptcies are increasing monthly—a total of 62 in April, 75 in May, 106 in June and 136 in July being reported. This characterizes the economic situation in Prussia. Frankfort figures show the necessities of life declined in price from 289 to 277. Prices are slowly diminishing, if irregularly, with the exception of price of hard coal, which is expected to increase. Food prices showed a slight decline in July. Wages have not been reduced by the downward tendency of prices. Instead, there have been demands for increased wages on account of the workmen's taxes being deducted from the payrolls, but owing to the unsettled condition of the labor markets no considerable increase is likely to be granted. The problem of unemployment has caused the Government great anxiety and measures to prevent the increase of unemployment are being sought.

The number of unemployed in July was about 312,000, against 270,000 in June. As one preventative the Government has adopted the so-called Arbeits Losenfursorge, which provides that the men are kept at work by the state of community in Cassel. For example, it was intended to close a large shoe factory, so the community ordered 6000 pairs of shoes for use in the community, and raised the sum in cash, which enabled the factory to run four days a week and gave work to a large number. The sales were handled by the co-operative societies and trades unions and the men kept at work.

However, this plan can only be carried out under certain circumstances, and other preventative means for unemployment are sought by legislation which provides insurance of the unemployed. The adjustment of labor questions which arise between the employer and the employe by an adjustment board is aimed at by important bill of social political character brought before the Reichstag in July. A compromise between capital and labor tendency is a characteristic feature of the economic development in July.

EDITOR ARRESTED IN NORWAY

Publisher of Socialist Paper Must Face Various Charges.

By the Associated Press.

CHRISTIANIA, NORWAY Aug. 28—Government athorities have taken into custody Madsen, editor of Nytid, the leading Norwegion Socialist newspaper, who is alleged to have tried to smuggle into Norway 70,000 gold rubles from Russia upon his return from the Moscow Congress, at which he represented the Norwegian Socialist party.

He is charged with attempting to bring into this country Bolshevik propaganda and succeeding in smuggling over the border two Soviet agents.

British Official Assassinated in India.

By the Associated Press.

SIMLA, British India, Aug. 27.—Deputy Commissioner Willoughby has been assassinated in his residence at Kheri, Province of Oudh, by a Mussulman fanatic. The assassin, who was aided by accomplices, entered the residence of the commissioner when all the servants were absent.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

SAFETY CRUSADE IN "JAY-WALKING" WEEK

Efforts Will Be Made to Discourage Careless Crossing of Streets.

The week beginning Sept. 12 will be "Jay-walking Week" in St. Louis. At the suggestion of the Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce traffic policemen and those interested in safety work will make special efforts to discourage the practice of crossing streets at points other than corners or specially designated crossings. Signs will be placed on street cars, trolley poles, department store windows and street crossings with such slogans as "Don't Jay-walk," "Cross Here Only," "Don't Cross Here," "Cross at Crossings" and "Obey the Traffice Officer."

Four-minute speakers are scheduled for addresses at clubs, theaters, schools and churches. Slides are to be released to movie theaters. Teachers will co-operate by instructing children where and how to cross the streets. Stickers bearing safety slogans will be placed on motor vehicles and wagons; in short, every effort will be made to bring home to the general public the dangers of jay-walking.

Traffic safety officials, in pointing out the dangers of the practice, say that more than 300 people have been injured through accidents resulting from jay-walking. Many such accidents have proved fatal. Many times, they explain, jay-walking results in danger to persons other than the jay-walker. The driver may swerve only to lose control of his machine and cause perhaps an even more serious accident.

The National Safety Council set aside the past week as "Accident Statistical Week." During this period, data of each fatal accident was procured from the entire country. The statistics will be classified and the total of industrial and public fatalities will be published during the safety week to be held in conjunction with the National Safety Congress at Milwaukee Sept. 27.

It is planned to direct the attention of the general public, not only to the aggregate number of accidents occurring throughout the nation for each day of a given week, but also to detailed information concerning each accident. The publication of the reports will be similar to casualty lists published during the year.

JANE BURR IS CHARMED WITH LONDON SPOONING

Says Husbands "Should Be Sort of Week-End Institution, but Short Week-End."

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Jane Burr has arrived here from New York seeking an English publisher for her latest feminine book. American publishers having declined to take the responsibility. She is delighted with London.

"Look at the way your young men and girls kiss each other in the public parks," she said. "It is perfectly charming. I simply love to see it. But in America they would be arrested straightaway."

She explains that she has no use for marriage, having tried it twice.

"What I want is romance, and marriage knocks that on the head. I like men, but can't stand one in the house. He might have his own, where I could stay if I wished, but it is impossible to have him always about the place. The husband should be a sort of week-end institution, perhaps, but a short week-end."

Jane Burr will find plenty of admirers here on these terms, especially as she is credited with belonging to the multi-millionaire Guggenheim family.

CONFEDERATE REUNIONS MAY BE HELD IN SPRING, HEREAFTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 28.—Reunions of the Confederate Veterans, Sons of Confederate Veterans and Mothers of the Confederacy may be held in the future in the spring instead of the fall. This question will be decided at the next reunion, to be held at Houston, Tex., in October, according to Gen. J. Bailey Wray, Quartermaster in Chief of Sons of Confederate Veterans. Gen. Wray has written a letter to the Knoxville Board of Commerce, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, urging that this city send a committee to Houston and extend an invitation for the 1921 reunion.

ONE FAMILY, ONE ROOM

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 28.—Startling living conditions as the result of high rents in Buenos Aires are disclosed in a report by Alejandro Bunge, Director General of National Statistics.

"Eighty of each hundred families occupy only one room," he says, "19 of the families consisting of four persons, 20 of five, 11 of six, 4 of eight, 2 of nine and 1 of eleven persons—all living in one room in each case."

He cites the case of a bricklayer who in the United States with the wages earned in "600 working days, could have built a house in 1919 which here would have taken the wages earned in 3500 days."

However, he finds that the cost of necessities in the United States other than rent is about 60 per cent higher than in this country.

10,000 Americans in France in June.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Morethan 10,000 Americans visited France in June, which is the record month. Most of that number, some of the arrivals reported, were men who came on business. The real tourist wave is expected next year. Many toured the battle front on bicycles.

BOOM FOR BALDHEAD BOYS

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 28.—The objects of the Baldhead Club of America, as set forth in articles of association just filed with the Secretary of State, are to assemble its members at a banquet annually; to promote and foster fraternity among "those whose domes of thought protrude through and tower above the foliage that merely affords shade and adornment," and—

"To inculcate and exemplify the evident truths that hair is not essential to happiness or beauty, else would the wild man of Borneo be the envy of humanity; that the pompadour is no open sesame to popularity or preference, else would baldheaded burlesque patrons be assigned rear seats; that hyacinthine locks count for naught as a sign of trustworthiness, for what shall it profit a man if he have the ringlets of a Grecian god and no credit at the butcher shop?"

Keeps Beauty at 50 by Not Smiling.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—In connection with a beauty contest conducted by a Paris newspaper the story is told of a woman of 50 who, by a brilliant surgical operation, has every line and wrinkle removed from her face, and is assured that for ten years she will have the appearance of a woman of 25 on condition that she refrains from smiling more than she can help and keeps her face as expressionless as possible.

Illinois Livestock Exchange Formed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The Illinois Agricultural Association has established a livestock exchange under its livestock marketing department. It is designed as a medium through which breeders and feeders can purchase and sell their stock. The association announces that the exchange will operate through the 87 county farm bureau organizations of Illinois and probably similarly to their present county exchanges.

OIL BURNING ON LINER SUCCESS

Aquitania, With New Fueling System, Maintains Regularity of Speed.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The first Atlantic voyage of the great Cunarder Aquitania as an oil burner ended at Southampton early in August. The company's expert engineers, who made the round trip on the ship, expressed the greatest satisfaction with the results obtained. The average speed of the ship from New York to Cherbourg was 23.38 knots.

A striking feature of the oil installation was the remarkable regularity or continuity of speed, several days' runs being for almost identical distances. Apart from making the fastest crossing since the war, the Aquitania confirmed her position as second in speed to the Mauretania. Fuelling at New York was accomplished in under 20 hours, half a dozen men only being necessary to effect the transfer of 7000 tons of oil from a big tanker lying alongside.

AUTOS COST PUBLIC ALMOST AS MUCH AS THE RAILROADS

Spending Approximately the Same for Cars as It Is Spending for Railway Transportation.

$280 PER FAMILY AUTOMOBILE COST

Total Cost of Operation, Maintenance and Depreciation for Year Put at $6,019,822,966.

The Railway Age has compiled statistics which disclose what it calls the "astonishing fact" that the American public is spending approximately the same amount annually for running and riding in automobiles as it is spending for all of its railroad transportation—freight, passenger, express and mail. It points out that if the public should find the recent advance of $1,580,000,000 in railway rates burdensome it can completely offset this additional cost of railroad transportation by reducing its use of automobiles 25 per cent.

It estimates that after the recent advances in railway rates of $1,580,000,000 a year have been put into effect the annual cost of railroad transportation to the public will be about $6,700,000,000 (which is $200,000,000 above the estimate usually accepted as correct, or assuming that the average family contains five persons, about $305 per family. It estimates that the public already is spending over $6,000,000,000 a year, or $280 per family, for operating and riding in automobiles, 87 per cent of which are passenger cars.

Some Astounding Figures.

"The reader who has never given any study to the data regarding the comparative amounts that the American public is paying for the two kinds of transportation—railroad and automobile—doubtless will have some curiosity regarding the details of the American public's automobile bill," says the Age. "In the year 1919 the number of motor vehicles of all kinds registered in the United States was 7,623,551, and at an average cost of $1200 they represented an investment of $9,148,260,000.

"The valuation placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on all the railroads in its recent rate decision was only $18,900,000,000. Therefore, the public now has invested in automobiles almost one-half as much as the valuation placed by the commission on the railways. The Railway Age has gathered information regarding the details of the nation's automobile bill in 1919 from various sources, and, so far as we have been able to ascertain, it was made up as shown in the following table:

Where the Money Goes.

Depreciation on 7,623,551 cars at 20 per cent on an average cost of $1200 each	$1,829,000,000
Interest—7,623,551 cars, average cost of $1200 each, or a total of $9,148,261,200, at 6 per cent	549,000,000
Gasoline consumption of 2,178,729,000 gallons at 25 cents per gallon	554,682,250
Lubricating oil—7,623,551 cars, average consumption per car of 8.33 gallons at $1.25 per gallon	729,280,225
Tires—30,000,000 manufactured at an average cost per tire of $33	1,000,000,000
Accessories and parts used in repairs, etc.	621,722,048
State license fees	65,000,000
Insurance premiums—60 per cent of all cars insured, at $72 per car	329,337,432
Garage storage and service charges, average $15 per month	1,372,289,180
Labor cost for repairs—63,026 garages and service stations employing an average of 5 men each at an annual wage of $1000 each	310,180,000
Total cost of operation, maintenance and depreciation in 1919	5,497,555,220
Increase in costs of operation, maintenance and depreciation based on increase in the number of cars in operation in 1920, of 725,290 cars, or 9.5 per cent	522,267,746
Total cost of operation, maintenance and depreciation, 1920	6,019,822,966

"It is estimated that the number of new cars which will be built and sold this year will be 2,250,000, while the number that will be retired from service will be about 1,525,000. This would result in a net increase in cars of service of 725,000, or 9½ per cent. It seems safe to assume that an increase of 9½ per cent in the number of cars in service will cause an increase of at least 9½ per cent, or $522,270,000, in the country's automobile bill. This will make it in 1920 approximately $6,020,000,000.

"These estimates include nothing for expenditures made by the public for the construction and maintenance of highways for the automobiles to run on. Nor do they include anything for the economic cost of automobile accidents. If data regarding these points were available they probably would disclose the astonishing fact that even after the advance of $1,580,000,000 in railway rates has been made, the American public will be spending as much for its automobile transportation, most of which is a luxury, as for its railway transportation, most of which is a necessity.

"It cannot be said that the automobile is any longer a luxury of the rich. There is now one for about every 13 persons in the country, or about one for every 2½ families. It has become a very democratic institution. The expense of owning and running automobiles is being incurred voluntarily by the same large consuming public which doubtless in the last analysis pays the bill for railroad transportation."

Mustard Gas in Scrap Kills Man.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—"Poisoned by mustard gas, contracted while engaged handling scrap metal drums at engineering works, Barrhead, near Paisley," was the jury's verdict in a public inquiry at Paisley regarding the death of a Barrhead laborer. The drums were the property of the American Government, and they had been retained for disposal as scrap. The usual methods of chemical cleaning by neutralizing agents had been followed.

G. A. R. COMMANDER TO ATTEND SPANISH VETERANS' MEETING

Commander-in-Chief Hale of the Grand Army of the Republic, who resides at Columbus, O., will attend the twenty-second annual encampment of United Spanish War Veterans in St. Louis, Sept. 13 to 16, and will deliver an address in the Municipal Theater on the evening of the opening day.

There are 980 camps of United Spanish War Veterans in the United States. One or more delegates are expected from each of the camps. The annual parade will be Wednesday, Sept. 15, the veterans marching from Twelfth street, down Olive street to the Mississippi River where they will board steamboats for Jefferson Barracks. There will be a dress parade by the regulars at the Barracks, followed by the ceremony of "escort to the colors" and a dinner in the Barracks' mess hall. Officers will be elected and installed at the Planters' Hotel on the closing day.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans will hold its annual meeting in connection with the encampment, as will the Order of Snaix, a subsidiary organization.

Beautiful Actress Attributes Her Wonderful Success to Her Famous Complexion

Tells How You Also May Have One

MISS DOROTHY DALTON

New York—When Miss Dorothy Dalton, the beautiful actress who was selected for the leading role in that mammoth New York production, "Aphrodite," was questioned as to the secret of her phenomenal success, she unhesitatingly said, "My complexion." When asked further details she explained: "Every one of my friends always raved about the texture and coloring of my skin, and I have no doubt that my first engagement was made possible through the reputation I had acquired for a beautiful complexion. Managers are like ordinary mortals, they admire a beautiful skin as much as anyone, and in selecting their casts they naturally prefer those whose complexions are attractive. I think the best asset any girl or woman can have is a beautiful skin and complexion. It is easy to have this if one will spend only a little time in taking care of the skin. A girl may have irregular features, but if she possesses a beautiful complexion she will attract attention anywhere. I am always glad to tell any girl or woman just how she may possess a skin like mine. Here is the recipe: Night and morning cleanse the skin first with warm water, then apply a good cold cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best) after massaging it into the skin take off the superfluous cream with a soft cloth. Then before going out during the day or evening I apply Derwillo, a simple toilet preparation which can be purchased at the toilet counter of any up-to-date drug or department store. The first application of this wonderful Derwillo will astonish you. It imparts instant beauty to the skin and makes a rosy-white complexion—every one will talk about it. I find it excellent for my complexion as it protects my skin in all kinds of weather. That's why I prefer it to all other toilet preparations and am never without it. Now that short sleeves are in vogue you will want beautiful hands and arms. There is nothing like Derwillo for this purpose. Many of my professional friends to whom I have recommended Derwillo use it in preference to all other face powders or beautifiers." Just try it once before going to the theater, dances, parties or an afternoon call and note the favorable comments of your friends. Derwillo instantly puts a life-like tint on your cheeks which defies detection. It takes the place of face powder and stays on until you wash it off. Perspiration does not affect it nor will it rub off on clothing; it also prevents the nose and face from shining. It's wonderful for a dark, sallow, rough skin, blackheads, coarse pores, oily skin, freckles, tan, and for the instant beauty it imparts. Over 500,000 girls and women are using it. It's absolutely harmless to the most sensitive skin. Just try it once and you will need no further argument to convince you that there is nothing "just as good," "better," or "just like it." Insist on Derwillo, then you will not be disappointed.

NOTE—Druggists and department stores everywhere sell Derwillo with the guarantee that if you don't like it you get your money back. It is the one beautifier that gives satisfaction at all seasons of the year. You can secure it at all toilet counters in this city. Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Stores.

GIRL CONFIDENTIAL MANAGER OF ALL OF PONZI'S AFFAIRS

Lucy Meli, Born in Sicily, Only One Who May Be Able to Straighten Out Tangled Business.

HANDLED THE CASH AS IT POURED IN

Claims She and Her Family Were "Investors" and Thinks Things Will Prove All Right.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—If there is anyone who can evolve order out of the chaos into which Charles Ponzi's affairs have fallen since the Government and State forced him to shut up shop it is Lucy Meli, a young woman scarcely past 20, born in Sicily, who has been Ponzi's private secretary, general manager, and the most important cog in the complicated business—whatever it may turn out to have been—that Ponzi engaged in.

This young woman, black-haired, modestly dressed, who speaks English without a trace of her native tongue, and who appears to have a clear grasp of business affairs, still holds the fort in the Ponzi offices in School street, though the Securities Exchange Co. technically no longer exists . She is awaiting the will of the receivers and is going over the books alone, having discharged the 32 assistants that composed the one-time office force.

Miss Meli is still loyal to Ponzi and visits him frequently at the Charles street jail, where he is awaiting trial on charges of larceny. She is confident that her employer will still be cleared of his charges, despite the fact that he has been declared insolvent to the extent of probably $4,000,000, and that thousands of depositors have sent their notes to the Attorney-General for collection if possible.

Has Faith in Ponzi.

"I can't understand what has happened," she told a Post-Dispatch correspondent. "I still hope that it will all be straightened out. I hate to think of anyone losing money here.

"My family invested with Ponzi, and I have three notes myself. My brother is the only one whose note was due and paid before the closing of business. If the business is insolvent we will lose as well as the others."

Miss Meli is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giatano Meli of No. 73 Temple street, Revere. She was brought to this country when only eight years old. As she explained to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, she finished her schooling in May, 1918, and that she had sought a job where she would not be obliged to be a slave to routine work.

She Handled the Money.

In the space of a few months since she became Ponzi's assistant, she rose from the duties of only office helper to that of general manager and private secretary, hiring the 32 assistants herself. She was burdened with the responsibility of taking in the money which poured into the Ponzi office so fast that the clerks were unable to count it at the end of the day's business. She not only directed the force of clerks, but when Ponzi was absent, she kept the crowds of investors moving and signed Ponzi's checks.

"Liking the work, I frequently worked as much as 16 hours a day," said Miss Meli. "None else could do my work, and though Mr. Ponzi offered me a vacation and though other people wanted me to go to work for them at higher wages I stayed here and worked every day from the time I came until now. Until the receivers take charge I will rmain here, and when everything is done, and I have done all I can to straighten things out, I shall take a good rest," she said.

CLEANS HOUSE THREE DAYS AFTER ARRIVAL OF TRIPLETS

Brooklyn Woman Keeps Open House and "Bambinos" Are Viewed by Most of "Little Italy."

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Three youngsters arrived recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pagano of Brooklyn. Three days after the event Mrs. Pagano was at work tidying up her home for the reception of her relatives and many neighbors who she knew would flock to see them.

The triplets have been viewed by most of Brooklyn's "Little Italy," wherein the Paganos live. Joe Pagano kept open house and spent the greater part of the day exhibiting his "bambinos" to the admiring throng.

The triplets are two boys, each weighing four pounds, and a girl, three and one-half pounds. All are doing well.

PART TWO. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 29, 1920. PAGES 1—14B.

JERRY by MRS. JACQUES FUTRELLE

THE manager of the MacNutt Opera Company sat upon an inverted bucket in a darkened corner of the stage and held his head. Once he had had an ambition. It was to be the greatest impresario the country ever knew. Now ambition dwindled until it was merely an uncontrolled longing for a ham sandwich.

Hope had fled; at least she was just flirting her airy skirts around the corner, going fast. He listened, with an eyebrow cocked and his mouth quizzically aslant, to the rain booming on the roof. It was the last straw. It meant no house, consequently no money, no railroad fares, no next town. There wouldn't have been this town if a soft-hearted railroad official hadn't brought the company with the prospect of a good week ahead. The "good week ahead" had resolved itself into nineteen dollars in real money—not a third enough for the official—and the rainstorm.

It didn't matter so much for MacNutt. He could turn scrub lady or shift scenes or slap signs on a fence, or punch a policeman and land his dinner; but there were others depending upon him.

The men didn't matter so much, either. They could turn scrub lady, too, et cetera, et cetera. But the girls, all of them pretty and pitifully helpless, and not one capable of being more than a mediocre member of the chorus! He watched them come in by twos and threes looking for the bucket to drip the umbrellas in, and finally leaving them in a dejected, bedraggled state along the wall.

The MacNutt Opera Company had long ago dispensed with its leading lady, its substitute L. L., its adored tenor, its sub-cellar basso, and the best part of its splendid chorus. Then it began to dispense with wigs and costume, and the 15 operas, in repertoire, dwindled to five. Finally an obliging sheriff brought the number down to "Bocaccio," the one they were playing when he appeared. Hotel trunks had fallen by the wayside, and hotels were dispensed with as a useless and expensive luxury. Then the remnant of the MacNutt's began sleeping in waiting rooms until the next train out, catching a meal here and there when anything was left over from railroad fares. To get home was impossible. He didn't even see railroad fares now. The company hadn't had a square meal for a month, and he had made all sorts of vain promises to the landlady of an extremely shabby rooming house.

His gloomy meditations were interrupted by the entrance of a slim, girlish figure and a stout, womanly one. The stout woman unlocked the door to what was known as the star dressing room and disappeared inside. The locking was a matter of habit. There wasn't anything there but a suit case, a make-up box, and one costume.

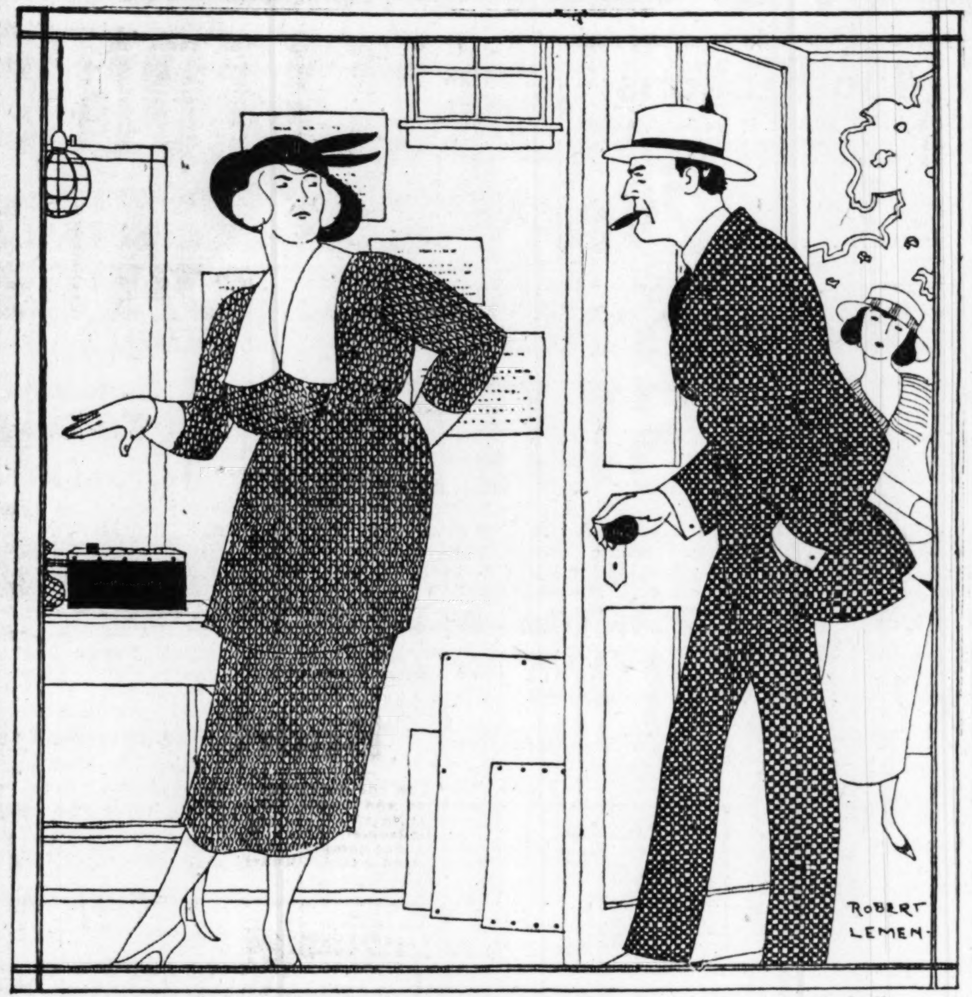
McNutt rose from the bucket, kicked it meditatively in the direction of the umbrellas, and after slowly, thoughtfully, placing them in it one by one, he knocked upon the door of the dressing room and entered. The stout woman was Geraldine Baker, the backbone of MacNutt's.

"Pretty bad storm, Jerry?" he queried.

"Pretty bad?" Jerry snapped. "Aw quit your kiddin,' Mac. The flood wasn't a marker. It's the end of the rope, the sum total, the finish, Mac, we've weighed luck in the balance and there ain't no balance. It's so bad it's almost funny. We're simply down and out at last. Ain't we?"

"Well, something like that," Mac admitted ruefully.

"Aw," she flared, "if you don't know when you're beaten, I do. You make me laugh, hanging on by your teeth when you've been knocked sky-western crooked."



"Aw," she flared, "if you don't know when you're beaten, I do."

She kicked two shabby, run-down, soaking shoes into a corner and pulled her chair near the radiator. He looked at her squarely, but he really didn't see her, for he was thinking. And, anyway, she wasn't much to look at. She had pudgy face, a small nose, a very large mouth and an aggressive, determined chin. Her skin was coarse and her hair a mop of straw-colored stuff. It had been curled and crimped until now, with the wind-blown, wet ends hanging about her face, it looked like a neglected doormat. Still she tried to look like Lillian Russell, and she knew the opera business from "a" to "izzard."

When the leading lady and the substitute L. L. washed their dainty fingers of the MacNutt Opera Company, she waded valiantly into the leads to help Mac out of the hole, and had succeeded ever since in making an A flat sound like high C to the unitiated. She bluffed through what she didn't know about singing and used all the old tricks of "handing" things to an audience. She had turned stage manager, too, when that necessary personage left the MacNutts for a circus, and had transformed the chorus people into shining lights, nagging, working like a fiend and taunting them into really creditable efforts. But it was no use. They had landed at last with a good, sound bump.

"We're not so awfully rotten," she remarked, finally, "even if we are leftovers. It's just luck's against us and we're out of heart. A man can't be funny when his stomach's empty, and he don't see a bed once a month. Life's a joke when you're making fun of life, but when life's making fun of you, that's another matter. Aw, what's the use?

Mac stroked his lean face and meditated.

"If we could get on just once more I can see light ahead," he ventured.

"Of course you can, Mac. You're the champion long-distance looker when it comes to that light-ahead bunk. But I've lost faith in the light ahead, and the silver lining, and the long lane. I've thrown my hand in the discard and I'm not asking for a new deal. It's quits for me. I'm going to start out tomorrow to find somebody who wants a cook."

He tried to control the twitch to his mouth and stroked the lean chin harder in consequence.

"I'm sorry, Jerry," he murmured, "I'm sorry, but I'd hoped you wouldn't leave, too."

She pushed back her chair and stared at him.

"Leave?" she repeated. "You don't mean to tell me you're still going to try? Why, man, you're down and out!"

He swung his legs and didn't answer.

"You even owe the fares here," she went on.

"Except nineteen dollars."

"Nineteen—pooh! As well be nineteen stray cats so far as we are concerned. And the old lady, Mac, she's poor. She can't afford to lose that room-rent."

He turned his hands outward. "I'm sorry," he said again. "I know I'm a thief and a liar, but if we could get to Habersham—it's county fair week, and I tell you I see light ahead. We're booked for the week, and I managed to get out great paper there; just the kind to catch the eye and I see a chance. There'll be crowds there—show crowds. A college something or other of some sort is meeting there, too. Why, Jerry"——

"Been that way all along, Mac," she interrupted, "hoping, hoping. But we can't get there—so!"

"If we could," he persisted, "and it's such good paper."

"We can't get there," she repeated doggedly.

"Why, hang it, Jerry, I've got to," he burst out suddenly. "I've got to! I've got a company depending upon me and I've got to land 'em back home. It may be all right for you and me to be turned adrift—we can fight! But it won't do for the girls—it won't do. They're honest now—they wouldn't be here if they weren't—but they can't do anything else, and I wouldn't give two straws—I've got to," he finished desperately.

Jerry hung her head thoughtfully.

That old—old fool who has been chasing Bunnie around was at her heels again tonight. He was waiting on the steps as we came out. He escorted us to the theater, but I had the pleasure of putting my dripping umbrella in the middle of that immaculate shirt front when he tried to come inside. Mac, have you tried him?"

Mac sighed.

"Yes, I've tried him," he replied. He turned his hands outward again and shook his head. "Nothing doing, Jerry. He had a roll of money big enough to choke a horse, but"——

Jerry curled her lip and finally burst into a laugh.

"The old fool," she remarked. "Why Bunnie despises the sight of him. He ain't got no more chance than the snowball you've heard about."

"I'm not going to risk it, Jerry. I'm going to get to the next town." He rubbed his face and ran his long fingers through his hair. "Jerry," he remarked suddenly, "you can help us—if you will."

She came to her feet, overturning the chair, and glared at him.

"Mac, you're thinking of my ring, but not on your tintype!" She held out her right hand. "No, I ain't wearing it but I've got it and I'm going to keep it! You know—every one of you—how I feel about it. I've gone hungry and grimy and barefooted nearly; I've set up night after night wild for sleep, but I've kept my ring. Why, Mac, I'd scrub this town on my knees before I'd part with it. You make me froth at the mouth to suggest such a thing."

Mac looked at her for a long while, then went toward the door and dropped his hand upon the knob.

"Forget it, Jerry," he said at last, gently.

"Of course you think I'm nutty about it, but it's a long story, as the heroine says in the third act. Mac, that ring was my grandmother's and Pa gave it to my mother for her engagement ring. We were down to cases more times than once, I can tell you—after we had to scramble for ourselves—but Ma always held on to that ring. It was a religion with us; the one thing we had to remind us that once we was folks! It ain't never been out of our family, and it never will! When she was dying she gave it to me and said—aw, I am nutty, I guess, but I wouldn't hock it if I was dying in a gutter—so there!"

"It's about time I was out front," Mac remarked inconsequentially, and disappeared.

Jerry put on a kimono that had once been Yum Yum's and began jerking the pins from her hair. At the end of half an hour she stalked out of the dressing room and hailed the musical director as he crossed the stage.

"Here, you Billy! Kick some life into that orchestra tonight. I don't want to wail through this again."

"I'll try, Jerry," he answered half-heartedly.

She walked to the curtain and looked out, then turned back again in a rage. She wanted to choke Mac for even hoping. How could they expect to make good with no scenery, no wigs and costumes, and the same opera night after night for a week in a one-night stand? She stumbled over Bunnie in the wings.

"Anybody out there?" Bunnie asked tentatively.

"Yep, our regular audience. He's on the end, three rows back."

Bunnie dropped upon a stool and looked at her out of two gorgeous eyes. Jerry didn't wonder somebody had gone crazy over her.

"Isn't it awful, Jerry? I think if we could change the opera somebody would come."

Jerry snorted.

"I wish we could play something besides 'Boccaccio,' don't you?" Bunnie ventured.

"Wish it? Of course I don't wish it. It would just tickle me to death to prance around for the rest of my days in these red tights! It's a hateful, immoral old thing, anyhow. Bunnie, take it from me, there's nothing in this poor old world worth anything unless it's good. Do you understand that?"

Bunnie looked at her and laughed.

Jerry leaned against a wing for a long time, while the sound of the orchestra tuning set the figures moving to and fro from the dressing rooms.

"Do you know that Mac's completely busted—down and out?" she asked Bunnie, suddenly.

"Really?"

"Absolutely. We break up tonight. We've all got to get out and hustle for ourselves. Mac can scramble back to New York, and I'm like a cat; I always land on my feet. The men ought to be digging ditches, anyhow, and Sam will have Broadway dippy about him in another two years with that face and figger, even if he don't ever learn to act—but you, Bunnie, I don't want you to let that"——

"Jerry!" The girl dropped her head upon her arm for an instant and Jerry wondered if she were going to cry.

"Don't do it, girlie," she advised; "it'll spoil your make-up."

"But next week?" Bunnie asked steadily after a time. "Mac says it's a chance—a big chance. He can pull us all out of the hole. He hopes"——

"Yes, you can bet on Mac hoping," Jerry cut in, "but he can't get there, I tell you."

Bunnie didn't answer but she sat thinking, and when Jerry had gone away to call the first act, she wandered toward the stage entrance and paced back and forth there for a while. Just before the curtain went up she held a whispered conversation with a stage hand, and after the first act a casual, a very casual one with Mac, who was standing in the wings. She merely asked him how much the fares would be to Habersham. Three minutes later she was in Jerry's dressing room.

"Jerry," she demanded, "has Mac thought of your ring?"

"Mac thinks of everything, you bet," Jerry snapped. "But Bunnie, my ring don't figger! My ring is mine, mine, mine, and I'm going to keep it! Oh!"—she banged the shelf with her clenched hands to express herself—"you know about me and that ring!" she said. "And don't, don't make me mad or I'll never grin through that second act. I don't like it anyhow. I hate that lover in the barrel. I don't think it's funny. Oh! How—how dare you?"

Bunnie looked at her dully, then turned and jerked frantically at the door.

"What are you going to do?" Jerry asked, suspiciously.

"I don't know, but Mac's going to have that money somehow—that's all."

The exit was magnificent. She couldn't have made Bunnie do it in a thousand years on the stage. She wanted to applaud, but she was on her feet in an instant.

She found Bunnie after a time in a secluded corner of the stage scribbling a note. She crumpled the paper in her hand when Jerry suddenly appeared, but Jerry didn't have to be told what was written—she knew.

"Now, see here, Bunnie, you're not going to do anything foolish," she said. "We"——

"Jerry how—how dare you!" The tone was taunting, mocking. She looked at Jerry squarely. "I can take care of myself," she finished coldly.

"You are so mule-headed, Bunnie, you can swing around just as hard the other way. Now here, we'll talk this thing over after the show. We'll se if there ain't a way."

"Mac wouldn't have asked you about that ring if there had been a way. We all know how you've starved yourself and swung on, and you said he was dead broke."

Jerry put a hand encouragingly on the girl's shoulder as the buzz sounded for the curtain.

"We'll see," she called back as she moved away.

Jerry did the pacing back and forth near the stage entrance after the second act, to keep an eye on Bunnie and to intercept a possible note. Once she opened the stage door and tried to peer out into the rain, but the swirl of water forced her back and threatened disaster to the crimpy curls.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

"JERRY"

Is one of the stories in the great series of short stories by most popular authors of today

TWO of the short stories by great authors are being printed each week in the Post-Dispatch, one starting on Sunday and being continued on Monday and Tuesday. The other will start on Wednesday and be continued on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Each will have one or more illustrations drawn by noted magazine artists of the day.

The story that will follow "Jerry" is "Ardelia in Arcady," by Josephine Dodge Baskam Bacon. It will begin in the Post-Dispatch next Wednesday.

The writers represented in this great series are George Barr McCutcheon, Ellis Parker Butler, Holman F. Day, Richard Washburn Child, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, George A. Chamberlain, E. Phillips Oppenheim, John Fleming Wilson, Fanny Heaslip Lee, Frederick Orrin Bartlett, Henry C. Rowland, Lowell Otus Reese, Leonard Merrick, Elizabeth Jordan, Holworthy Hall, George Weston, Bruno Lessing, Maude Radford Warren, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Vingie E. Why Scope and Plans of St. Louis Zoo Amazed Committee From Chicago

With Its Unique Method of Support, Local Animal Garden Should, Before Many Years, Equal Any in World.

"The St. Louis Zoo appears destined to outstrip any existing zoological gardens in the United States if the present plans of development are carried through."

This quotation, contained in the report of a Chicago committee which recently inspected zoos in the large cities of the nation with a view to obtaining ideas for a new Chicago zoo, was the basis for an inquiry by the Post-Dispatch as to what has been accomplished by the Forest Park Zoo and plans for its development.

Secretary George Vierheller of the Zoological Board of Control said:

"The St. Louis Zoo should be second only to the New York Zoo, in this country, within three years, should soon outstrip that at New York, and in not many years should be at least the equal of any of the famous European zoological gardens. It now ranks about third in this country."

St. Louis is unique among cities in its method of supporting its zoo; no other city has a similar scheme. For nearly four years—and that length of time is precisely the period in which our zoo gained its rank—the zoo here has been supported by taxation, at the rate of 1-5 cent on the $100 valuation on city taxes. This means that the zoo received $136,675 for the fiscal year ending April 1, 1918; $156,522 for the next fiscal year; $179,675 for the last one, and probably will get $185,000 next April. It is predicted the income will continue to increase about $5000 every year as the city develops.

Maintenance of the zoo for the year ending last April, including all costs except improvements, totaled $77,010, and the two previous years each cost somewhat less. The present term will cost about the same. Hence it will be seen that the amount that has been available and utilized fully—for improvements and increase of the number of animals—for three years now has been more than $300,000. Hereafter the board expects to have $100,000 of its income annually available for improvements.

Improvements, of course, will entail large maintenance costs, but that factor will be offset by enlarged tax collections. For the next four years, $25,000 of this surplus will be set aside each year to create a reserve fund, something the board has not before had, and which, among other things, will permit the board to purchase likely specimens at will.

The magnitude of the possibility of extension can be realized when it is remembered that taxation at a rate not burdensome to the individual will, in 10 years' time, provide $1,000,000 for the betterment of an already excellent zoological garden.

Zoo Has Site of 72 Acres.

The thought may arise, "What have we now in the way of a zoo that makes this expenditure worth while?" and the best answer consists of a visit to the zoo, which has a 72-acre site in the southwestern quarter of Forest Park, close to the Billon avenue stop of the Market street cars, a site noted for its verdant, restful beauty.

There, should one care further to delve into statistics, will be found nearly 800 zoological specimens, including mammals, birds, reptiles and amphibians. For these modern housing is provided in a setting of plazas, flower beds and waterways, nestled on a horse-shoe hill. There is a lion house, an elephant house, the bird cage (relic of World's Fair days), an eagle cage, bear pits, monkey house, sea lion and alligator pool, fox houses, refreshment stands (with moderate prices); deer, buffalo and zebra paddocks, an animal hospital, and other buildings. The variety of specimens is great and the names mentioned are by no means all-inclusive.

Under construction, and now temporarily held up by strikes, are the bear dens, comparable only to those at Denver, Colo., and Berlin, Germany, but which will have a much more natural appearance. They are being made of imitation rock, to be artfully camouflaged in appearance and surroundings, and when the eight contemplated sections are done will house nearly half a hundred bears. The three sections to be done by next year will accommodate the 14 bears now at the zoo.

Nothing, apparently, will hinder the bears from lumbering over the pseudo-crags and onto the spectators, but an unseen moat will serve as a barrier. Nothing, apparently, will be provided in the way of shelter, but within the man-made mountain will be concrete dens, flanked by a runaway for the keepers. These bear dens will be a feature of St. Louis' new zoo.

More than $40,000 already has been spent constructing the dens, patterns for the rocks of which were taken from Mississippi River bluffs at Herculaneum, Mo., and much more will be spent. The Chicago committee requested the privilege of using the St. Louis patterns and plans for its bear pits.

Zoological Society Helps.

The new dens will obviate such an occurrence as that of last Friday, when two grizzly bears escaped after locks on their cages had been broken.

The Zoological Society is deeply interested in the zoo, and a number of its members, including its president, George E. Dieckman, are members of the zoo board, which also includes city officials. In recognition of the society's activity, Zoological Society night was observed last evening at the zoo, being the one night of the year when the grounds were illuminated with floodlights. A special program of speeches, music and dancing was held.

The St. Louis Zoo dates from about the time of the World's Fair, the bird cake being then is nucelus, There was a small herd of buffalo and deer and a few birds. The Park Commissioner was in active charge, and the support was by appropriation of the Municipal Assembly, running $30,000 to $40,000 yearly, and subject to the usual vagaries of legislative appropriation.

In the years long gone by there had been a zoological collection of sorts in the old fairgrounds site, now Fairground Park, where parts of the ramshackle brick bear pits may still be seen.

The Forest Park Zoo, in 1913, was enlarged to a site of 72 acres, and the Board of Control created, but it was not until the general election in November, 1916, that an ordinance was passed making the zoo's income definite and large, by creation of the zoo tax. School children played an important part in campaigning for the passage of this ordinance.

It is a fact that many St. Louisans are unaware of the nature and scope of their zoo, but the attendance has shown a steady increase. It is now estimated at more than 300,000 yearly. A large portion of the visitors is made up of children. Day in and day out the children haunt the zoo, hanging on the rails of the monkey cages, shrinking at the frequent roars of the lions, riding on the back of "Miss Jim," the elephant purchased with the sum of school children's pennies, and laughing at the antics of raccoons as they curl up to sleep in the limbs of a dead tree.

More Animals to Be Bought.

To attempt to write or read of all the animals there would be a long, albeit interesting, task. It is scarcely possible, moreover, to tell now what the additions in the way of animals and other specimens will be. Secretary Vierhaller said specimens will be purchased hereafter just as opportunity presents itself.

"Quarantines on the import of animals are being removed," he said, "and I understand parties have embarked for South America, Asia and Africa in quest of specimens. We can simply say that every possible addition and improvement will be made.

"We plan to build fox, wolf, possum and similar dens of camouflaged, artificial rock, in low groups, in front of the bear dens. These lower heights will provide a natural approach to the eye before the bear mountains. We want also to build a tropical bird house, a pheasant aviary and a new monkey house.

"Eventually we are going to construct a big aquarium. This will be expensive to build and maintain, but it will be highly worth while. It will be necessary to bring salt water here for it and to have storage tanks for salt water, among other things.

"All other cities maintain their zoos on appropriations or popular subscriptions, or a combination of the two. That prevents their forging ahead as we are doing. Cincinnati, one of our rivals, charges admission to its zoo. Its buildings are old and dilapidated."

BITUMINOUS COAL OUTPUT FOR WEEK SHOWS 800,000-TON DROP

Decrease From Record of Previous Week Attributed to Strike in Indiana.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A slump in the bituminous coal output for the week ended Aug. 21, of more than 800,000 tons or 7 per cent, from the 1920 record established the preceding week was shown in a report today by the Geological Survey, placing the week's total at 10,981,000 tons.

The decline was attributed, in part, to the new outbreak of the day men's strike in Indiana, which by the end of the week had tied up four-fifths of the mines in that State. The report added that the high figure of the week before had been due to an accumulation of cars during the first period of the Indiana strike. Indications were, the report said, that production during the first two days of the current week had been at about the level of the week preceding.

Bituminous coal dumped at lake ports, it was reported, passed the million mark for the first time this season, exceeding the total for the preceding week by 96,000 tons, and also showing an excess over the corresponding week of last year. The cumulative movement of soft coal to the lakes at the end of the week stood at 9,731,000 tons, as against more than 15,000,000 tons on the corresponding dates of 1918 and 1919.

Tourists From 25 States Camp in Park in Month

Providing of Outdoor Housekeeping Facilities Has Attracted Motorists—Space for 200 Automobiles.

The outdoor housekeeping facilities in Forest Park, which have been provided through the co-operation of the Park Department and the Automobile Club of St. Louis, have attracted automobile tourists from 25 states to the city in the past month.

The accommodations at the camp in the southwestern corner of the park, include a shelter house, comfort stations, shower baths, sinks with running water, and huge cooking ranges.

It is estimated that from 10 to 15 touring parties occupied the site every night this month. Although motorists have been permitted to camp in Forest Park since August, 1919, accommodations have been provided for them only recently.

The objection to the camp a year ago, because it was visible from the driveways in the park and residences south of the park, was overcome this year by the removal of the site from Picnic Grounds 9 and 10 to a space across the gulley from "Vacation Village," which is screened in by trees and shubbery.

A large increase of tourist traffic through St. Louis is anticipated next summer when the National Old Trails road through Illinois, providing a continuous stretch of hard surface road from New York to St. Louis, will be completed.

A feature of the last issue of the Automobile Blue Book, a national publication devoted to automobile touring, was a double page display of photographs of the St. Louis camp. There is sufficient space in the camp for the parking of 200 automobiles, and the camp is reached by a cinder driveway from the southwestern entrance of the park.

MISSOURI WOMEN VOTE TUESDAY

Will Take Part in Special Aldermanic Election at Hannibal.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Aug. 28.—Women will vote in a special aldermanic election in Hannibal next Tuesday, the first occasion, it is believed, on which they have ever exercised suffrage in Missouri. Attorney-General McAllister, in a telegram today, rendered an opinion that women were now equally qualified with men to vote in Missouri.

PARADE TO PRECEDE JEWISH HOME DEDICATION TODAY

Mayor Kiel, Circuit Attorney McDaniel and Others to Participate in Grand Avenue Exercises.

An automobile parade, in which, it is announced, Mayor Kiel, Circuit Attorney McDaniel, together with other non-Jews and many Jews will participate, will precede the dedication of the new addition to the Jewish Orthodox Old Home at 1438 South Grand avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The institution has been in existence 14 years, supported by a society which now has 800 members. The property of the society has an appraised valuation of about $85,000 and $1500 a month maintenance is supplied. There are 55 residents at the home. The capacity is 80.

DIRECTION SIGNS IN THE COUNTY

St. Louis Auto Club Marking Crossroads to Aid Travelers.

Direction signs, for the guidance of automobilists, are being erected at every road intersection in St. Louis County. The work was begun Friday and is being directed by the Automobile Club of St. Louis.

Only the "made" roads are to be marked, unless unusual circumstances make it seem advisable to direct travel over unmade roads. In a number of cases, where a road is made only part way to the next crossroad, that information is placed on the sign.

The signs are of metal, 14 by 22 inches, and lettered in black on a white background.

The Guarantee of Reputation

In the purchase of a Piano or Player the first thought uppermost in your mind is to secure the very best instrument procurable at the price which you can afford to pay.

Now the average person can judge pretty accurately as to the tone value of an instrument and anyone familiar with furniture knows whether or not a case has been properly finished, but unless you are a piano expert the vital factor in determining the value of Piano or Player will be entirely beyond your power.

That is the question of construction. For upon the soundness of the materials employed and the skill of the piano craftsman depend whether your instrument will last but a little while or give you a lifetime of musical satisfaction.

Every one of the 18 different makes of Pianos and Players for which Conroy's hold exclusive representation is primarily a musical instrument of the highest quality obtainable, not merely a highly polished case. If there were any better instruments procurable Conroy's would have them, because Conroy's is the largest exclusive Piano and Player institution in America and at one time or another has been offered exclusive representation for nearly every American made Piano and Player.

All of Conroy's instruments are the products of long established manufacturers whose Pianos and Players have stood the test of years of service. The reputation of these manufacturers for highest quality products coupled with Conroy's ironclad guarantee and absolutely fixed price policy insures the most inexperienced buyer of getting as fine an instrument in tone, finish and construction from Conroy's at the price they wish to pay as a professional musician.

Whether or not you are in the market for a Piano or Player today, stamp the name Conroy's indelibly on your memory, as at this house you will always find instruments of exceptional quality, life-long service and perfect musical satisfaction.

Latest Medical Discovery Directed at Diesase That Claimed 292 Lives in St. Louis Last Year.

An immuizing agent against diphtheria has been obtained by the Health Department, and will be administered free to persons desiring such immunization, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. M. C. Woodruff, chief diagnostician.

The treatment consists of three injections under the skin of the new diphtheria serum (toxin-antitoxin), 15 drops each dose, at intervals of seven days. There are no ill results as the serum takes effect. The immunization will last for at least seven years, it was stated.

"Since the time of Jenner, and his work in preventing smallpox by the introduction of a prepared virus inocculated into the blood circulation, all research laboratories have devoted much time to experimental work along similar lines," said Dr. Woodruff.

"The results are shown in the prevention of smallpox, Bubonic plague, whooping cough, tetanus (lockjaw), hay fever, typhoid fever, influenza, rabies and anthrax. The latest addition to this list of preventable diseases is diphtheria, that most dreadful of all infectious diseases, which is prevalent at all times.

3976 Cases in Year.

"When it is realized that in the last year 3976 cases of diphtheria were reported to the St. Louis Health Department, and that 292 of them resulted in death, the necessity of action to prevent the disease can be appreciated.

"Health Commissioner Starkloff has watched the diphtheria toxin-antotoxin pass through its experimental stage, and having convinced himself of its merit, directed the Health Department to work in conjunction with the health centers conducted by the Municipal Nurses' Board, and by the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross, in waging war upon diphtheria in St. Louis."

Dr. Woodruff said the immunizing agent against diphtheria would be administered free at any of the following places:

West: 1243 South Vandeventer avenue; 507 South Euclid avenue; 4303 Easton avenue; 6401 Easton avenue.

East: Room 28, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

Adults only will be immunized at the Municipal Courts building. Orphan asylums and other institutions where the treatment is desired for a considerable number of persons, can arrange for the immunization by writing or telephoning Dr. Woodruff at his office in the Municipal Courts.

Large Supply on Hand.

In an ice-box belonging to the Health Department there is now enough of the diphtheria serum (toxin-antitoxin) to immunize 600 persons. Officials said this probably would be enough to last quite a long time, "because it was hard to make the general public realize the importance of such matters, and make them come forward for the free immunization against other diseases as offered for a long time by the city."

Plenty more of the immunizing agent is available whenever the city's supply runs low, and the officials hope to administer the treatment to several thousand persons at least.

Mortality in diphtheria cases formerly ranged as high as 40 per cent, but since the use of the antitoxin became general during the last 20 years the diphtheria antitoxin was used as an immunizing agent, according to Dr. Woodruff, but experience showed that the immunization was transient, lasting at most but a few weeks.

The agent now used, which has been thoroughly tried out, is a mixture of well-aged diphtheria toxin and antidiphtheretic serum, in the proportion of 80 per cent of one lethal dose of toxin to each unit of antitoxin.

This mixture cannot be depended upon to prevent diphtheria in the presence of immediate exposure, owing to the slow development of immunity in many individuals, but it is of great value in rendering a community or a school population immune from the disease upon later exposures.

Certain individuals are naturally immune from diphtheria, and what is known as the "Shick test" will be used in the case of each applicant to determine whether he needs the toxin-antitoxin.

CELEBRATION OF SUFFRAGE RATIFICATION NOT GENERAL

..Blowing of Whistles and Ringing of Bells in St. Louis at Noon Yesterday Isolated.

The request of St. Louis suffragists that whistles be blown and bells rung yesterday at noon, in celebration of the ratfication of the Federal suffrage amendment, was not generally observed. Isolated whistles blew and some bells were rung, but there was no din such as rose in all parts of the city at war-time events, notably the signing of the armistice and the departure and arrival of St. Louis troops.

The League of Women voters requested the celebration as part of a nation-wide blowing and ringing ordered by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt after the signing of the ratification proclamation by Secretary of State Colby.

HYDE CHALLENGED TO PROVE KANSAS CITY FRAUD CHARGES

Democratic Commissioner Offers to Meet Republican Nominee for Discussion of Election.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 28.—R. Emmett O'Malley, a Democratic member of the Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners, in a letter today to Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor, challenges Hyde to produce proof of election frauds in Kansas City, which Hyde charged in an interview in the Sunday Post-Dispatch a week ago. O'Malley offered to meet Hyde before any one or more of Kansas City's civic organizations for a discussion of the question.

In his letter O'Malley called attention to the big Republican majority in St. Louis and the big Democratic majority in Kansas City. "Democratic majorities in criminal Kansas City and Republican majorities in crimeless St. Louis have been the rule for several years," O'Malley wrote Hyde, "including the four years Mr. Hadley was Governor, and boards appointed by him supervised the elections. Notwithstanding this the cry of stolen elections in Kansas City is invariably raised. The inference from your interview is that all is well in Republican St. Louis, but Democratic Kansas City reeks with corruption, and only the Democratic members of the Kansas City board, one of whom I happen to be, are responsible."

SUICIDE OF SON DRIVES TRAINMAN FROM HOME TOWN

Roy F. Kidd, for 13 Years Employed on Railroad, Removes From Bonne Terre When Boy Shoots Himself.

NOTE LEFT BY LAD AROUSES FEELING

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BONNE TERRE, Mo., Aug. 28.—Roy F. Kidd, 35 years old, for 13 years a trainman employed here by the Mississippi River & Bonne Terre Railroad Co., has removed from Bonne Terre following the suicide here July 23 last of Le Roy Kidd, 9 years old, a son by a former wife, who has been dead a number of years. The boy shot himself with his father's revolver, while the others of the family were attending a meeting of a religious group known as "Holy Rollers," then holding a tent meeting here.

Kidd's present wife and their two small children have accompanied Kidd to St. Louis, where he said they intended to live.

Boy's Note Stirs Feeling.

Considerable feeling was aroused by a note left by the boy and by stories he had told citizens of not having had enough to eat. As a result, the Bonne Terre lodge of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen preferred charges against Kidd and held a trial of his case, Sunday, Aug. 15, at which Kidd presented no defense, according to J. C. Chitty, general chairman of the trainmen. Chitty declined to discuss the case in detail, or its definite outcome, but said that eight affidavits had been presented, dealing with the treatment of the boy while the Kidds lived here and during a short period during which they lived at Leadwood, a smaller town, not far from Bonne Terre. He also said that Kidd could not "railroad any more, very handy."

The note presented at the inquest held here the day after the boy killed himself, by Coroner Prather of Flat River, was said by a local newspaper to have read as follows:

> "Pappa I dont want to go to the reform school. Im going somewhere else. Goodbye Mother, Father."

The Coroner's verdict placed no blame for the affair.

The reference to "the reform school" is said to have been due to a whipping which Kidd had administered to the boy, after the latter had bought cookies and candy to the extent of 55 cents from Frank Richardson, a grocer, charging them to his father, and to a warning that if such acts were persisted in the boy would be sent to the reform school.

P. J. Spence, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, and S. J. Horn, City Marshal, said that the boy had sold them a preparation for use in gasoline for automobiles to prevent formation of carbon, with the explanation that he was hungry and had to sell the preparation to get money to pay for a meal. They said that at the time the boy had told these things that they were regarded only as the artifice of a child who wanted money to satisfy the little longings of children.

Kidd is said to have been considerably affected by the undercurrent of criticism and to have requested the advice of a number of men as to how "to square himself," but finally decided the best thing to do was to go elsewhere. His record with the railroad is said to have been good, and his general reputation here also had been good.

Inquiry at the St. Louis address where Kidd had said he intended to live, and at the business concern with which he said he had obtained employment, developed that Kidd is not known in either place.

SALVATION ARMY FRESH AIR CAMP CONCLUDES SEASON

About 1000 Mothers and Children Cared for at Maxwelton Park Up to Yesterday.

The Salvation Army Fresh Air Camp concluded its season at Maxwelton Park on the St. Charles rock road yesterday. During the summer season it cared for about 1,000 mothers and children from the congested districts of the city. The mothers and children were taken to the camp each Friday and remained there for one week, when they were succeeded by a second group. Each group was made up of about 100 mothers and children.

Brigadier David Dunham, who is in charge of all Salvation Army activities in St. Louis, said yesterday that the fresh air camp would be a permanent institution in St. Louis, and that next year the army hoped to take care of a greater number of mothers and children than were accommodated this year. If possible the fresh air camp next summer will be at Maxwelton Park.

It is the intention of the army to buy a suitable plot of ground in St. Louis County which may be operated the year round. In the summer it could be used as a fresh air camp and during the winter months as a home for such persons as are in dire need.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE PLANS FOR WOMEN ARE OPPOSED HERE

Politicians Affiliated With Kiel - Schmoll - Goldstein Faction Do Not Want Auxiliary Committees.

GOLDSTEIN CAN'T SEE REASON FOR SYSTEM

Serious Break Between City and State Organizations Anticipated if Opposition Continues.

Opposition of Republican politicians affiliated with the Kiel-Schmoll-Goldstein faction to the plan of the Republican State Committee to have auxiliary state and city committees of women became known yesterday when Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein, committeeman from the Nineteenth ward, announced his intention of opposing at Tuesday's meeting of the City Committee the instructions from State Chairman Hughes for primaries or mass meetings to elect committeewomen.

A serious break between the state and city organizations is anticipated by politicians if Goldstein's fight on the women's organization is supported by the City Committee, as there is thought to be little doubt that the State Committee will insist upon the organization of women into auxiliary committees.

Call Has Been Issued.

Hughes Friday issued a call, which, among other things, directed Chairman Strodtman of the St. Louis Republican City Committee to call mass meetings or primaries in all St. Louis wards for Sept. 4 to elect a vice chairman for the Republican City Committee for each ward, who shall act as chairman of the women's committee in that ward. These vice chairmen, the call stated, shall meet Sept. 11 to elect a woman vice chairman for the City Committee, and on Sept. 10 the ward vice chairmen shall meet to elect two members of the State Committee from each congressional district.

The plan differs little from that followed during the past year, providing for a Woman's City Committee to work with and auxiliary to the regularly elected City Committee, and state and congressional women's committees, bearing the same relationship to the regularly elected state and congressional committees.

Hughes made no provision in the call for the election of a chairman of the Women's State Committee, stating that that question would be decided at a joint meeting of the men's and women's committees in Jefferson City Sept. 14.

Goldstein's Statement.

"I am opposed to the plan," Goldstein said yesterday. "It cannot be carried out. Suffrage for women is now a fact and the individual woman as an elector is no different from the individual man. There is no occasion for a separate woman's committee.

"In my ward the women will be treated just as any other voters. They will come under the regular ward organization. In some precincts in which there are particularly well qualified women, I expect to have precinct committeemen resign and put women on in their places. I even expect to give my proxy as a member of the city committee to different women of the ward at different times to enable them to attend meetings of the committee and learn just what the duties of committeemen are.

"Then, when a new committee is elected, in two years, if a woman can be elected as the committeeman she will be entitled to the seat and will be a member of the city committee.

"I can see no reason why there should be a women's committee any more than there should be a committee of Hebrews, a committee of Germans or a committee of Irish, or a committee of any other kind.

"The city committee meets Tuesday and this question will be brought up. I hold that the State chairman had no authority to direct the city committee to arrange for the election of a women's commitee."

Other Differences Exist.

Before Hughes' call was issued there already had arisen a difference between the Republican City Committee and a faction of Republican women. The committee selected Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson for committeewoman from the Thirteenth Ward, the Schmoll ward, more than a year ago, and she was elected chairman of the women's city committee. Soon after the primary, Dr. A. H. Meyer, who defeated Schmoll for committeeman from the Thirteenth Ward, called a mass meeting of women, and Mrs. G. Whittelsey was elected committeewoman from the ward in place of Mrs. Hutchinson.

Hughes, in the issuance of his call specified that meetings need not be held in wards which already had held primaries or mass meetings and elected committeewomen. This specification is construed as a recognition by Hughes of Mrs. Whittelsey. A majority of the city committee continues to recognize Mrs. Hutchinson as the Thirteenth Ward committeewoman and as chairman of the women's committee.

COMMISSIONERS REFUSE TO UPHOLD CLAXTON'S CHARGES

Informations Against Judges and Clerks on Election Contest Case Are Withdrawn.

The Board of Election Commissioners Friday afternoon refused to sustain charges, made by Robert D. Claxton defeated candidate for Republican City Committeeman in the Twenty-sixth ward, who is contesting the election of I. Joel Wilson, against 12 judges and clerks, most of whom were appointed on the recommendation of Wilson. Six other judges and clerks, against whom charges were filed, withdrew their names, and Alroy S. Phillips, representing Claxton, withdrew the charges against them.

The charges were preferred in a petition signed by August J. Hahn, president of the Twenty-sixth Ward Republican Club, a Claxton organization. Wilson in withdrawing the names of Republicans said that he had recommended them without consulting them, and that they did not want to serve.

Those whose names were withdrawn were Peter G. Kenny, 5033 Wells avenue, Democratic judge; Sam F. Jones, 5123 Wells avenue, Republican judge; R. C. Schaffer, 1729A North Union avenue, Republican judge, and Edward Geisler, 5203 Pauline place, Republican clerk, all in the Fifteenth precinct, William R. O'Connell, 5041 Page avenue, Democratic judge, Fourteenth precinct, and George W. Loesch, Republican judge, twentieth precinct.

DIES OF INJURIES FROM FALL

Louis B. Cox Was Overcome by Fumes While Stirring Chemicals.

Louis B. Cox, 27 years old, of 3916 Sullivan avenue, died at the city hospital at 4 a. m. yesterday as the result of gas poisoning and injuries suffered when he fell from a runaway eight feet to the floor of the Nevin Chemical Co.'s plant, 6300 West Florissant avenue, where he was employed as a chemical cooker.

Cox's work was the stirring of chemicals in process of heating in large vats. Runways surround the vats and he was on one of these when he was overcome by the fumes from the chemicals. He said he managed to throw his body so as to fall away from the vat and onto the floor, where he was found by other employes and taken to the hospital.

MAN ACCUSED OF USING MAILS IN SALE OF IMPROPER PICTURES

S. B. Higgens, Claiming to Have Seen Service Overseas, Held on a Federal Warrant.

S. B. Higgens, 27 years old, 3718 Washington boulevard, who says he was an overseas soldier, was arrested in his office in the Victoria building yesterday on a Federal warrant charging him with using the mails in the sale of improper pictures. A large number of pictures was seized for evidence.

Complaint was made against Higgens by an Eastern society. He said he had been doing business under the name "The Rose Leaf Club" since last May and had been selling pictures and a book entitled "Swept by Mighty Waters." The complaint alleged that the pictures expressed were concealed in copies of the book after he had solicited orders by mail.

MOTORIZING FIRE DEPARTMENT

City to Spend $260,000 for Self-Propelled Apparatus.

With the spending of $260,000 out of the bond issue for new motor equipment for the Fire Department, the department will be 40 per cent motorized. Chief Panzer has recommended that the entire department be motorized.

Only 20 of the 50 companies now have motor equipment and not all of these have complete equipment. The department is now 30 per cent motorized. The first motor was put in service 10 years ago. Chief Panzer says the motor equipment has been found more efficient and less costly. The horses still in use number 167.

MILK WAGON DRIVERS WANT WAGE INCREASE

Present Contract Expires Wednesday, but Union Does Not Anticipate a Strike.

The 600 members of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union have asked their employers for wage increases ranging from $5 to $10 a week, to become effective next Wednesday, when the present wage contract expires. The milk distributing companies have made a compromise offer of a 10 per cent increase, but this has been rejected by the union. Union officials say there is little likelihood of a strike as they believe that negotiations now pending will result in a satisfactory settlement of the controversy.

The distributors say that any increase in wages will be followed by an advance in the price of milk and other dairy products. They point out that they are already paying a 20 per cent increase in freight rates, and that the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association, which furnishes St. Louis' milk supply, is not holding out any promise of a decrease in cost. Dealers now pay $3.75 a hundred pounds for milk.

Following is a schedule of wages now being received and those demanded by the milk wagon drivers:

	Present Wages Per Week.	Wages Sought.
Retail drivers	$29 00	$35 00
Wholesale drivers	30 00	40 00
Truck drivers	35 00	40 00
Route checkers and extra men	40 00	45 00
Special delivery boys	24 00	30 00
Ice cream wagon drivers	28 00	35 00

Retail drivers, in addition to their regular wages, are now paid commissions. These commissions, union officials assert, run from "nothing to $30 a month." The drivers ask for a flat increase of $6 a week, and no commissions.

The retail price of milk was advanced from 15 cents to 16 cents a quart Aug. 1. The present contract between the distributors and producers expires next Tuesday.

COUPLE WED FOR 70 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Chapman of Greene County, Ill., Are Well.

Greene County, Ill., has a pioneer couple who celebrated their seventieth wedding anniversary this month. They are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Chapman, who live with their daughter, Mrs. Kate Vinyard, in Roodhouse. Mrs. Chapman was Miss Harriet Bridgewater, daughter of pioneers who lived near White Hall, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman both are in good health, and hope to celebrate their diamond anniversary. Both are in good health, both physically and mentally.

RAINS CAUSE FLOODS IN TEXAS

By the Associated Press.

SHERMAN, Tex., Aug. 28.—Eight and four-tenths inches of rain, the heaviest precipitation in forty years, fell here last night and this morning. Many families living in the lower sections were forced to move and chickens and stock were drowned.

All Grayson County creeks are out of banks. Farmers report much damage to cotton. Four and one-half inches of rain was reported at Denison.

Federal Employes to Meet Here.

The national convention of the Federation of Federal Employes will be held in St. Louis from Sept. 6 to 11 inclusive. About 250 delegates will attend the convention, to be in charge of Branch 24, the St. Louis local branch.

UNPAVED CAR TRACK CAUSES LOSS OF TRADE, MERCHANTS SAY

Merchants on the north side of Olive street, between Broadway and Twelfth street, are complaining that their business is being seriously impaired by the fact that the paving of the westbound Olive street car track is torn up. They say that automobiles cannot stop before their places of business without blocking traffic and being ordered on, that paving blocks are thrown onto the sidewalk, causing pedestrians to seek other streets, and that trash has accumulated on the street because it cannot be swept.

The Olive street car tracks east of Twelfth street recently were reconstructed. The work of replacing the paving was completed on the eastbound track on Aug. 11, when pavers left their work, demanding $1 an hour instead of 81¼ cents.

Albert T. Perkins, manager for the receiver of the United Railways, said yesterday that he had offered the men 86¼ cents, retroactive to Aug 1, but that they had refused the offer. He said that he was hopeful that he could obtain pavers soon and close the pavement within a few days.

VILLA'S FOLLOWERS MUSTERED OUT; HE IS TAKEN TO FARM

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28.—Work of mustering out the followers of Francisco Villa, the former rebel chieftain, was completed yesterday at Tlahalilo, State of Durango, according to a report from Gen. Eugenio Martinez, who superintended the operation.

All of Villa's men surrendered their arms and ammunition and received pay for three months. The balance of their year's pay, which was promised, will be given them later. Officers were allowed to retain their pistols for self-defense, and all the men were given safe conduct and transportation to their farms. All took an affectionate farewell of Villa, who advised them to avoid politics and devote themselves to rustic pursuits. Villa and Gen. Martinez today departed for Canutillo, State of Durango, where the former will be established on a farm.

4345-MILE FLIGHT TO NOME IN 60 HOURS

Original Four Army Airplanes and Identical Motors Functioning Perfectly at End.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The first official account of the flight of the four army airplanes from New York to Nome, Alaska, has been made by the Manufacturers' Aircraft Co., co-operating with the Army Air Service in co-ordinating the reports of the officers in charge of the most significant aviation event on the western hemisphere this year.

Capt. St. Clair Street and his companions made the flight of 4343 miles in 60 hours' flying time. The original machines and identical motors were functioning perfectly when the flyers arrived at Nome.

The continuation of the expedition from Nome to Cape Prince of Wales, and possibly the 50-mile channel to Siberia, means the North American continent will be linked with Asia; that, instead of being an isolated possession of the United States, Alaska will become an important junction in commercial trade between this country and the Orient. In fact, this pioneering, trail-blazing flight, in the opinion of military and civilian aeronautical leaders, is epochal in its commercial importance as Bele Bleriot's first flight across the English channel; not that it alone proves the ability of the airplane to fly such distances, but because of the important bearing it has on Alaska in connection with continental and Asiatic aerial traffic.

Pioneering Work Need.

That there was need of pioneering work, such as that just completed may be seen from one of Capt. Street's reports to Maj. Gen. T. Mencher, chief of air service, in which he says:

'In general, the flyers consider the route across the Eastern States as having few landing fields, and those not ideal in any instance. The Middle West and Canada, as far as Edmonton, along this route are ideal for flying. The Rocky Mountains, Northern Canada and Southeastern Alaska, are rough and forested. The expedition sighted innumerable glaciers. Rain, low fog and clouds were prevalent. There was some snow. Yukon and Alaska are rough and partly forested, affording no natural landing fields except on river bars. The Seward Peninsula has absolutely no landing places except on the beaches as prepared at Nome. The route from Wrangell to Nome is ideal for water planes."

In this picture of the flight there is a background of a plane afire in midair, the expedition split up and lost in the fog, tire-blowouts, leaking gas tanks, broken propellers, emergency landings, and scores of adventures over territory never before mapped, charted or surveyed.

But notwithstanding these handicaps, which after all were minor ones, and incident only to such a long trip and one necessarily made over unknown country, without service station or supplies other than those packed overland in case of emergency, the aviators carried the mail safely through to Nome, brought the newspapers and other parcels from New York and points along the route, in far less time than that required to send them by ordinary means of communication.

Personnel of Flying Party.

The expedition left Mitchel Field, Long Island, at noon of July 15. In the four D. H. 4B planes powered with 400-horsepower Liberty motors, were Capt. St. Clair Street, commanding; First Lieut. Clifford C. Nutt, second in command; Second Lieut. Eric H. Nelson, Second Lieut. C. H. Crumrino, Second Lieut. Rosic Kirkpatrick, Sergt. Edmond Honriques, Sergt. Albert T. Vierra and Sergt. Joseph E. English. Capt. Howard T. Douglas of the air service, was advance officer. He went over the route in advance of the flight, with a radio for the landing fields and supplies along the entire route. His reports included all available data concerning topography, prevailing winds and weather and nature of the country. This data, submitted to the fliers before they set out, was of great value in making the flight successful. A record has been kept by all pilots and observers of landing fields, emergency fields, record of airplane and motor and other incidental features. Photos were made of practically the entire journey. By special arrangement with the Canadian Air Board supplies were distributed along the route in Canada without being detailed by the customs.

First Leg of Flight Hard One.

On the first leg of the flight, from New York to Erie, Pa., Capt. Street's plane was forced down at Elmhurst, Pa., near Scranton, due to a heavy storm which was negotiated by the other planes. Capt. Street became separated from the other three by a fog bank and finally landed with no other damage than a broken axle. On the first day the other three planes flew through 200 miles of rain and fog, breaking through at last for 150 miles of fair flying weather.

At Erie, Street rejoined his command and found the field covered with mud. Lieut. Crumrine was the first to take off, and he had such a narrow escape from wrecking his plane that the others waited until the field could be put in better condition.

All ships made good time to Grand Rapids, Mich., 300 miles away. The next day they made the flight from Grand Rapids to Winona, Minn., 310 miles, in two hours and 40 minutes. From Winona they departed from the scheduled route and visited Minneapolis, where a celebration was held. Thence on to Fargo, S. D., Portal, N. D., Saskatoon, Sask., and Edmonton, Alberta. Gen. Moncher received the following telegram from the Canadian Air Board on the arrival of the flyers at this destination:

"Please accept our hearty congratulations on completion of the Nome flight. Successful achievement of this arduous task is tribute to the soundness of your organization and perseverance, and fortitude of the officers and men engaged."

The importance of this sale cannot be overestimated, and with Autumn days quickly approaching such an opportunity as this should not be missed. Besides the Sample Coats, we have added many equally desirable Coats secured in special purchases so as to offer a complete size range for women and misses. All in all, these Coats are some of the richest and smartest we have seen in several seasons. The workmanship is of the highest order. The majority are generously trimmed with luxurious fur. The styles represented are definite in their authenticity. Beautiful full length Coats they are, with shawl collars of fur, draped so as to give the swagger, wrappy effect now so much in vogue. Some also have fur cuffs and pockets and all are beautifully lined with silk. At $58 the values are so remarkable that women will buy these Coats on first sight.

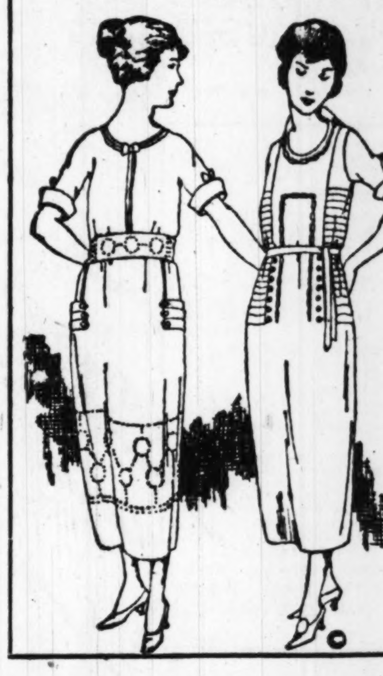
New Styles and New Trimming Ideas Lend Attractiveness in These

Dresses for Fall Wear



In Two Groups—and Unusual Values at

$19.50 and $24.50

¶ The in-between season, when Summer is waning and Autumn is not yet fully arrived, is with us now; and it is the time when Dresses in Autumn styles and of medium weight are exceedingly in demand.

Such Dresses are usually made of satin, taffeta, crepe de chine, Georgette and tricotine—the materials of which these Dresses are fashioned. Tunic and coatee effects predominate; but popular also are straightline and draped models; and many have the much desired pleated skirts. Braid and embroidery are used as trimming—and in many novel ways. Choose them in navy blue and a wide variety of Autumn's most attractive shades.

BIGGEST CIRCUSES IN ONE HERE THIS WEEK

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Open Saturday for 6 Performances in 3 Days.

The two biggest circuses combined to make the one biggest circus will be in St. Louis at the end of this week. It is the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which will be seen here for the first time since the merger, with matinee and evening performances next Saturday and the two succeeding days, Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

The circus as at present constituted is said to have retained the best and biggest features of the two big shows. The menageries have been consolidated and are said to contain more animals than any other single collection, including two-thirds of all the performing elephants in the United States.

The arena program will be preceded by a costume and dancing pageant which will depict many of the picture-book heroes and heroines dear to children.

Among the ring attractions will be May Wirth, an Australian girl who has achieved a reputation as one of the greatest bareback riders of her time.

Another woman performer of renown is Lillian Leitzell, aerialist and swinging rope acrobat. Other noted performers are Bird Millman, tightrope dancer; Hillary Long, "upside down man;" Josefsson's troupe of Icelanders; the Clarkonians and Siegrist-Silbon troupe of aerialists; the Picchiani and De Koe troupes of acrobats; Alf Loyal's dogs; the Artist Model horses, ponies and dogs, Kerslake's pigs and Huling's trained seals.

There will be no street parade.

ELIZABETH MORSE, Prin.

David Wark Griffith

the man who turned an original investment of $113,977 into assets of $2,275,000 in three years

David Wark Griffith, known internationally as director and producer of the photoplays, "The Birth of a Nation," "Hearts of the World," "Intolerance," and others—admittedly the most famous motion pictures ever produced—occupies the enviable position of the greatest contributor to the success of the Motion Picture Industry.

His genius for discovering and developing motion picture stars—such as Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Lillian Gish and many others—and his outstanding ability as a Director of Photoplays on a magnificent scale have placed his productions foremost as the largest money-earners in a very profitable industry, the fifth largest in the United States.

In order to finance wholly his own productions and thereby retain the profits in the business which heretofore had to be divided with outside financial interests, he has incorporated his motion picture interests in D. W. Griffith, Incorporated, which continues with the famous Griffith staff of Stars and principals—an organization whose photoplays have yielded gross returns of over $7,000,000 in twenty-seven months with final net earnings estimated at about $3,000,000.

Class "A" stock at $15 a share, is now offered. The investor is exceptionally protected as Mr. Griffith cannot in any year receive any dividends until holders of Class "A" stock receive dividends of $1.50 per share. Mr. Griffith advises us that the Company intends to pay semi-annual dividends beginning about January 1, 1921, at the yearly rate of $1.50 per share—10% on the present price, and these shares enjoy further sharing of profits as explained in our circular. We have carefully investigated this issue. Ask for complete circular 0000.

By our wonderful "VISUALIZED" method we can in "MINUTES" make you see and thoroughly understand that which it would take "HOURS" to tell you in the old way.

By our remarkable "SHORT-HAND" system we teach you in "DAYS" that which it takes "WEEKS" to learn by the old methods.

By our new scientific method of teaching "SIGHT READING" we accomplish in six "MONTHS" that which it requires two "YEARS" to do in the ordinary way.

To prove these statements, and for the purpose of introducing this modern method, we will give to each person (young or old, with or without previous knowledge of music) a FREE SAMPLE LESSON in which we will positively teach you to read and play a piece in 30 minutes.

If you are unable to come to the school for the free lesson just phone or write and we will send a teacher to your home to give the lesson without any charge or obligation on your part.

To each person who enrolls this week we will give "ABSOLUTELY FREE" their choice of these instruments.

Come or phone for the FREE Sample Lesson this week. Remember that it costs you absolutely nothing.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Intimate cooperation with the business and social, the musical and artistic life of the great city of St. Louis enables this institution to offer young men and young women the most effective training for the real leadership demanded by the affairs of modern life.

Location in a beautiful suburb of the chief city of the Mississippi Valley. Washington University is one of the ten great urban universities of America. It combines country surroundings with city advantages. In addition to its libraries, museums and opportunities for the enjoyment of Music and Fine Arts, it has at its service as a larger laboratory the whole city of St. Louis with all its commerce and varied industries.

Equipment Washington University has a campus of one hundred and sixty acres overlooking the city. More than a score of large, beautiful buildings, praised by the British Educational Commission as the finest group of college buildings in the United States. Complete modern apparatus. Libraries of 176,000 volumes. Faculties of carefully selected specialists, who are teachers as well as investigators.

Departments include the College of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, the School of Architecture, the School of Medicine, the School of Law, the Graduate School, the School of Dentistry, the School of Fine Arts, the School of Commerce and Finance, the Henry Shaw School of Botany and the Division of University Extension.

Ideals Washington University aims not merely to impart instruction, or to enhance the earning power of its students, but to inspire them with the love of learning for its own sake and to develop in them the true qualities of leadership.

Opportunities for Self-Development outside of the classroom are offered by the extensive residence dormitories provided by Washington University for both men and women; by well equipped gymnasiums; dramatic and debating societies, musical clubs and student publications which provide abundant facilities for human contact and for inter-student competition.

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE DELMONTE THEATER

Invites you to take part in a pigeon race which will be held in connection with the opening of the theater next Saturday afternoon, September 4. The instructions in detail follow:

An enttry blank in postal card form will be issued to any child at any of the following theaters:

Kings, Pershing, Mozart, Shenandoah, Juniata, Lindell, Grand-Florissant, Arco, Gravois, Russell, Lafayette, Rex, Compton and St. Louis.

You merely secure the postal, fill in your name and mail it. The first 1500 entries received will be officially listed and each child will be represented by a Rexall homing pigeon in the race.

The birds will be released in front of the Delmonte Theater, Delmar and Clara avenues, Saturday, September 4, at 1 o'clock. The birds will race to the Rexall pigeon loft and will be timed as they arrive. Prizes will be awarded to the three boys or girls whose representatives are first to finish.

The list of the 1500 names officially entered in the race will be published in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Post-Dispatch issue of Saturday, September 4. If your name appears in this list you should present yourself in the Delmonte Theater the morning of the race to receive a card designating the number of your pigeon. When these cards are distributed the pigeons will be released.

Motion pictures of the start and finish of the race will be exhibited at the Delmonte Theater during the engagement of the theater's inaugural attraction, "Humoresque," by Fannie Hurst of St. Louis.

EXPORTS REVEAL GREAT VARIETY OF U. S. GOODS WANTED

Foreign Trade for July Heavy Though Staples Shipped Decreased.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The showing of our own country's foreign trade for July was not only in many respects surprising in itself, but it emphasized the very peculiar nature of the problem of international finance. Our exports in that month have been considerably exceeded in numerous other months, this year at least. But this used to be the case in July, even during normal years, and the point of essential interest is that they far surpassed the exports of July in any preceding year. For the seven completed months of 1920 exports have not only run $275,000,000 ahead of 1919, but they actually surpassed by $1,241,000,000 the highest war time record for a corresponding period.

"This has occurred, not only in spite of a considerably smaller total shipment of grain and flour, but in the face of such a decrease as $460,000,000 in our export of such a staple product as meat. What it shows, therefore, is the astonishing variety of American products which the outside world apparently must buy. The July exports went out at a time when Europe (and with her Canada) was doing her best to cut down imports from America, in order to prevent the further depreciation of exchange, and when it was supposed that the great markets in other continents were either under the influence of severe trade reaction or were finding their storehouses choked up with goods already imported.

Foreign Trade Outlook.

"The persistence of an almost unprecedentedly large import trade in July, notwithstanding a home situation apparently unfavorable to such a movement on the recent scale, suggests other considerations. On the one hand, our people know by long experience that during the period of an industrial "boom," speculative excitement and lavish use of credit is always accompanied, in this country, by an immense increase of imports. Usually that increase will be greatest in the few months immediately preceding the severe financial or industrial reaction which terminates such a period, after which imports will decrease for a time even faster than they had previously risen. In the 12 months before the crisis of 1907, for instance, our imports increased $268,000,000 and decreased $240,000,000 in the next 12 months; in the 1893 period they rose $39,000,000 and then dropped $202,000,000.

"This is not a 1907 or 1893. But the same general principle appears in epochs of lesser credit crises which turn a movement of trade expansion into one of contraction, and the principle must be allowed for, both in explaining the recent movement of importations and in predicting the future. Yet on the other hand we have to reckon with the economic movement whereby, apparently the outside world must pay its debts to the United States (or at any rate the interest on those debts) through progressively increased exports of their goods to us. Some times these two influences on the American import trade will operate in a common direction. Sometimes, as apparently is the case at present, they will work in exactly opposite directions. When that happens, a highly interesting test ought to be in course of application, as to which economic influence is the stronger.

French Gold Coming.

Announcement that something over $5,000,000 gold is about to arrive in this market for the account of France and in connection with the Anglo-French loan maturity, was not unexpected. It was intimated from apparently official sources, some weeks ago, that total shipments of this kind, before Oct. 15, might reach $50,000,000. It is probable that the carrying out of this plan has been made a condition in the tentative discussions of a new loan to France to cover that portion of her half-share in the payment which should not have been arranged for through purchase of the bonds in open market and through anticipatory drawing of exchange on Paris. That the gold now on the way was not taken from the vaults of the Bank of France, the weekly statements of that institution have proved. Whether it was drawn from the $399,000,000 account, reported by the bank in the past few years as "gold reserve held abroad," is less easy to determine. If the full amount predicted is delivered, it will naturally strengthen the position of the Federal Reserve.

Rail Bonds Rise.

"The substantial advance in prices for railway shares this week has contrasted with the great irregularity and recurrent declines of industrial stocks. Perhaps, however, the week's steady upward movement in railway bonds is still more striking. It is certainly in some ways more logical; because, while the question of dividends as affected by the higher rates must for some time remain problematical, the guarantee of a net return large enough to yield an average profit on the properties is bound to affect very greatly the status of the bonds. Those securities have scored many advances of 1 to 5 points this week, and some of them now sell 10 points or more above the low prices of the year. Yet it is also true that very few have yet regained the prices quoted in the first two or three months of 1920. It is difficult to explain that fact, except by allowing for the British Government's sales to accumulate credits for the October loan redemption.

Order the Post-Dispatch sent to your vacation address. Your carrier will place the order for you, or your telephone request will have prompt attention. Olive or Central 6600. Ask for Circulation Dept.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Our best informed financial observers agree that the concord of policy between France and England over Poland has never really been disturbed. They consider the continental outlook hopeful in view of recent events; not only because of the military and political reverses of the Soviet Government, but by reason of the weak economic position of the Bolshevist regime.

The autumn outlook, not only in America but here, is largely governed by the pending developments in your markets for money and commodities. The decision of your Interstate Commerce Commission, with the consequent advance in railway rates, has greatly mitigated our apprehension of anything like a commercial crisis in America in the autumn. But we still believe in continued money stringency on both sides of the Atlantic, and one new factor somewhat puzzling to us is the decline in wheat and cotton and the talk on your side of a further big decline.

Threatened Coal Strike Factor.

If this were to occur, it would, of course, relieve the exchange position and possibly affect even money rates. Meantime, however, our bank and your Federal Reserve are manifestly in accord in the policy of checking speculation and forcing lower prices by dearer money. The soundest views entirely support that policy, if applied with skill and moderation. It is considered here that the continuous fall in sterling at New York correctly reflects the true economic conditions, and that unless prices of commodities decline further, no permanent recovery will ensue, though perhaps there will not be much further decline. France, however, has aggravated the situation momentarily by her attempt at fresh borrowing in your market.

Our own immediate outlook is necessarily affected at the moment by the threatened strike of our coal miners; which, if it should take place, would affect your market also through the paralysis of business here and temporary suspension of orders from America. In the best financial quarters it is believed that the coal strike will not take place immediately; but it is still feared that the final tussle of organized labor with constitutional government is yet to come.

Views on Economic Problems.

Great interest is taken in the large batch of memoranda, published by the League of Nations and comprising views of the world's economic problem by leading economists of England, Sweden, France, Italy and Holland. The most important memorandum is one signed by all five groups, enumerating points on which there is complete agreement. These include the supreme necessity of greater industrial production, the enforcement of immediate stoppage of inflation of credit and currency, the drastic reduction of Government expenditure, and the abandonment of any artificially low bank rates which are out of conformity with the real scarcity of capital.

Concerning international credits, the experts insist that these must be granted only for immediately remunerative purposes, and must also be made conditional on the borrowing countries doing everything in their power to co-operate in restoring economic life; finally, the experts emphasize the fact that the capacity of the lending world to grant credits must largely depend upon restoration of real peace.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The market for foreign exchange was extremely nervous and uncertain all through the past week, but there was no clear explanation for the numerous wide fluctuations and extensive declines, an dadvances were apparently chiefly due to speculative operations on a larger scale than had been noted in this market for many months. A decline in demand sterling from $3.59¼ to the low $3.54 early in the week was asserted by some banking dealers to have been caused by sales against a heavy supply of grain bills and cotton contracts, but when the rate for demand sterling moved up to $3.58 again, late in the week, the movement was referred to as covering of shorts. It was known that heavy short sales of German exchange had been made on an early decline in marks to 1.87 and that there was heavy covering between that level and 2.14, at which marks sold on Thursday. French exchange was under pressure in the first few days, but moved up sharply later when statements were made about the progress of the plan to obtain a new loan.

Exchange on Holland was at the new low record of 31⅝ on Wednesday and new low records were also made for exchange on Norway and Denmark, crown checks on Christiania selling down to 13.80 and on Copenhagen to 13.75. Exchange on Greece sold at the new low record of 10.70 and exchange on Buenos Aires dropped to the new low of 18.40. Scandinavian and Greek exchange, however, rallied with other European rates on Thursday. Italian exchange followed the movements in sterling closely. Roumanian exchange was in steady demand all through the week, holding close to 2.40 for lieu checks. Yesterday exchange on Holland rose to 32¼ on buying against sales of securities for Holland in this market.

The National Cloak and Suit Company 8% Gold Notes, due September 1st, 1930, are, in our opinion, a very desirable investment.

The company has borrowed $5,000,000 and possesses tangible assets in excess of $14,000,000. Thirty years of successful operation has built sales to $39,000,000 per annum, with a list of customers exceeding 2,700,000 scattered throughout the country.

The net earnings of the company for the past four years has averaged $2,423,000. This is more than six times the maximum annual interest charges on this loan.

An annual sinking fund beginning in 1921 will redeem before maturity 80% of this loan at 105 and interest.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Reviewing the Wall street situation for the week, it can fairly be said that very little has happened to affect the general outlook. The continued success of the Polish counter-offensive has virtually eliminated whatever concern was felt about the activities of the Bolsheviki. This was never a factor in the markets that it was represented to be, consequently the notable achievements of the Polish army, while pleasing to the investment community, have had only a very minor effect upon calculations. The really vital matters which have influenced the price movement right along are, first, the question of credit, and, second, the question of how long it would take for outside trade to get back to a sound position, and how serious would be the consequences of the reaction upon company earnings and the business situation in general. There is certainly need to modify the opinion formed a fortnight or more ago that the credit strain has reached its peak, and, while it may not get better, it will not get worse. This assurance means for the stock market that all cause for apprehending a financial crisis in this autumn has disappeared, and the inference grows more plain every day that the credit strain has already done to the market the worst that it can do.

The call money market is not representative of fundamental banking conditions. The Government has been drawing down its balances with the banks this week in order to prepare for Liberty bond interest and other requirements. On previous occasions of the sort the situation has been met by the issue of treasury certificates, but this is not to be done now. Corporations and individuals who formerly were in the habit of subscribing to these treasury notes and using them to pay taxes will now have to meet the September 15 installment on the income tax, either by drawing upon their deposits or borrowing at the banks. This will mean in all probability a tighter money market during the next two weeks, with quite likely a higher call loan renewal rate and frequent flurries in the rate charged Stock Exchange borrowers supplying their wants from day to day. But this is no reflection upon the credit situation. It is a result of a reduction in the volume of available funds due to temporary causes which will make their effect felt for another fortnight, and then will pass. It is of no vital consequence if Wall street borrowers during this brief period have to pay higher for the use of money. The thing of impotance is that the head of the Federal Reserve Board and other authorities who are looking at conditions from the inside, are on record as saying that credit expansion has been checked, and that while loans to productive enterprises have not been curtailed, loans to less essential undertakings have been cut down, and that through these measures the way has been cleared to meet without difficulty the extra demands of harvest time. The prediction has been ventured that the banks belonging to the Federal Reserve system have gone to an extreme in their refusal to put out mony in time loans, and that the crop-moving needs having been met these banks will find themselves with a surplus of time money on hand which they will have difficulty to lend. This may seem an oversanguine view with conditions the way they are now, but it represents the judgment of more than one competent observer.

Bond Market.

One cannot get away from the spectacle which the investment bond has been offering for the last two months, and especially for the last two weeks, a constant expansion in the volume of business done and a steady and even rapid advance in prices. It was the bond market which reflected the credit tension and the accompanying abnormal interest rates for a long period before it developed. It is to the bond market, therefore, that we should first look for the anticipation of easier money conditions, and the history of the bond market since the early part of June has been an advance of 5 to 10 points in railway securities, a definite, although less substantial gain in other descriptions, and an eager absorption of all high-grade new issues coming out. The only possible meaning to assign to this is that the investment community realizes that bonds have been selling on the bargain counter, that there never will be another such opportunity in a lifetime to invest in the safest sort of securities on anywhere from 6 to a 7½ per cent basis, and, finally, that the next change in interest rates will not be upward, but downward.

Readjustment Period.

In a statement issued during the week Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board expressed the opinion that the readjustment through which the business world is passing would be shorter and less severe in its consequences than the normal tranition of the same sort in the past. The reason for this lies in the present shortage of essential commodities, whereas on former occasions of commercial reaction there has been an overwhelming surplus. This, we believe, hits the nail on the head in describing the difference between the present situation and that of other years when industry has been depressed. Yet it is nothing more than reasserting in another form what those who refuse to be unduly pessimistic have said right along, namely, that there could be no serious industrial crisis where there was no overproduction of goods, and where there was a deficiency of labor. Overproduction necessitating the sale of merchandise and foodstuffs at losing prices and widespread unemployment have been the primary characteristics of all panic years of the past, and it is precisely the reverse of these features that we have in 1920.

Replogle Steel.

Just one week ago today Replogle stepped to the front as a market leader on the side of advancing prices. It was mentioned that there were no developments in the Replogle situation that would warrant a move such as was then taking place and that the advance was merely a demonstration over the home-coming of the head of the company. It was the general belief that he was returning from Europe with some large orders for Replogle and Vanadium. Today, Replogle was again a feature in the market, but with a slight loss. The statement of the company for the first six months of this year made public yesterday, showed only 90 cents a share earned on the stock, and this gave the bear party its opening for an attack on the stocks, which it proceeded to take advantage of.

The Credit Situation.

One of the foremost bankers in the Middle West advises that on the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Cleveland and Pittsburg the amount of credit frozen by the congestion easily amounts to several hundred million dollars. This is but a single illustration and is due not only to the freight held up in the yards of steel companies and other manufacturers, but the fact of unbalanced and consequently unliquid inventories resulting from inability of producers to work along normal lines. From Pittsburg comes the information that the railroad traffic situation has definitely turned the corner. This should provide great relief in moving the crops. Furthermore, the decline in grain and cotton values automatically reduces considerably the strain on the banks.

IRREGULAR PRICE TREND TO GRAINS DURING WEEK

Export Demand for Wheat Strong Factor—Corn Market Weather Affair.

Grain and provisions fluctuated during the past week. At times there was a tendency toward lower prices due to favorable weather conditions and heavy primary markets, but these were offset by talk of a financial stringency in Wall street and a good buying demand for export.

The wheat market underwent numerous fluctuations. At one time March was under such heavy pressure that it sold at a discount under December. This was due to heavy buying of December and selling of March. A fairly good export business was done with France and Italy and offerings as a whole were light. Fear of Canadian competition was on an increasing scale and this had its effect.

Corn like wheat was unsettled, there being considerable free selling which caused a lower tone, but buying by strong commission houses firmed prices. At one time there was a spread of around 24c between September and December deliveries at Chicago. The Federal Reserve Bank statement was construed as a bearish factor, while transportation facilities carried some weight. Short coverings on Friday caused the market to firm with wheat.

Trade in oats started slow, but on short covering and buying by a strong commission house with Eastern connections it became strong. When commission houses got on the selling side the market became depressed.

Provisions, as a whole, displayed considerable strength, due to an improved export demand and higher prices in hogs.

COTTON BOUGHT ON WEATHER AND CROP COMPLAINTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The cotton market showed continued firmness during today's early trading. Perhaps the bulk of the buying came from further covering of short accounts in advance of next week's Government report, but nervousness over the present progress of the crop was increased by the continued wet weather in the South and more numerous complaints of deterioration.

Otherwise, buyers seemed to find little, if any, encouragement in the news, but after opening firm at an advance of 15 to 32 points, active months soon sold some 40 to 50 points above last night's closing figures, which, of course, made new high ground for the recovery. In the case of October contracts, which sold at 28.90, this made a rally of 322 points above the low level of last Tuesday and there was considerable realizing by recent buyers for a reaction, which, however, was very readily absorbed. The possibility of rapid deterioration in crop prospects seemed to be creating a more bullish sentiment.

While the distribution of cotton goods in the West, which, of course, represents old business, continues in excess of last year, reports now show some falling off in the demand and week-end reviews indicated continued depression at first hands. Mill curtailment was heavier last week than at any time previously reported, and is expected to be still heavier next week.

The fear of rapid deterioration in crop prospects seemed to grow more general later in the morning and the buying became more active and aggressive. There were excited advances in consequence with October selling up to 29.85 and December to 27.95 with the market closing strong to a net advance of 88 to 137 points.

Cotton futures closed strong. October, 29.70; December, 27.80; January, 27.15; March, 26.60; May, 26.40.

Weekly Coal Review.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the coal market this week, says:

"The coal market is still in a very unsettled conditon, with a general expectation on the part of the public that somehow, in spite of car shortages, the unwillingness of labor to labor, and the utter lack of reserves, prices will come down very soon. The operators are still struggling to fill the demand, the carriers are doing everything possible to deliver coal where it is most needed—or at any rate where Government agencies have ordered that it be sent—and buyers are holding off as much as they can, waiting for the expected drop.

"No general lowering of prices has come. Here and there recessions are noted, and the general tone of the market is softer, but the great bargain sale which buyers seem to expect is not at hand.

"The causes which have brought about such easing off of demand as has taken place include the abandonment of the field by a number of industries and local congestion in a number of places, caused by export and shipping rules. Much of the hope of further recessions is based on the theory that as the lake navigation season draws to a close the coal which now goes over the docks for the head of the lakes will have to seek a market nearer home. But the Northwest must have coal, by rail if not by water, and it is a question if the close of the season has not already been discounted by large consumers.

"Without doubt, if production can be kept anywhere near normal, the profiteering prices which a few have been collecting out of the insistent demand of consumers, will be seen no more. But there is no immediate prospect of really cheap coal.

"The settlement of the Illinois and Indiana day shoft men's strike by an advance ana day shift men's wage bids fair to make the same question acute in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania fields. Settlement of such questions usually takes a week or two out of production, and adds, besides, to the amount of the increase to the cost of production. This adds another blow to hope of lower figures."

GOOD BUYING IN WHEAT AND PRICES RANGE UP

Trade in Corn Is of Local Character — Week-End Covering.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—There was a lack of pressure on wheat futures and with buying by a house with Eastern connections prices averaged higher. The most effective selling was by the Northwest, which was hedging against purchases of cash grain. Winter wheat offerings to arrive continue very light and sufficient wheat is being sold abroad to take the slack out of the market. Premiums on spring wheat here were 3c to 5c lower, with dark No. 1 Northern selling at 20c over December, while winters were 1c to 2c lower. No. 1 hard winter sold early at 22c over December, while bids at the last were 20c over. Forecast for unsettled weather had some effect on sentiment, which has become somewhat more bullish recently. The car situation shows no material change. Closing trades were ⅝c to 2½c higher.

Bulk of the trade in corn and oats was of a local character and the pit element were more disposed to even up for over Sunday than to press the bear side on the easier tone in cash grains. Strength in wheat was the main bullish influence. Old billing cash corn declined 1c and new 2c, while new billing No. 3 white oats sold at September prices to 1c over. Demand was slow. Some corn reported down in parts of Nebraska and Iowa due to recent storms, but private reports indicate a crop of around 3,100,000,000 bushels, or nearly 100,000,000 bushels more than on Aug. 1 and the second largest yield on record. Country offerings of corn to arrive were larger. Closing trades were at net gains of ¼c to ⅝c on corn and unchanged to ⅝c higher on oats.

Buying of over 250,000 pounds loose lard at 50c under September against 90c under recently, was the outstanding feature in provisions. Trade in futures was light and mainly in changing from September to October product. Packers bought some lard. Closing trades were 5c to 15c lower on pork, unchanged to 10c higher on lard and unchanged to 5c higher on ribs.

PRIME STEERS NEAR TO RECORD PRICE OF 1917

Lambs Recover $2.25 of Loss During Week's Trade—Hogs Higher.

COMPARATIVE LIVESTOCK RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Cattle & calves	25,586	28,380	40,404
Hogs	38,558	41,351	47,657
Sheep	10,303	12,963	24,453
Horses & mules	3,320	2,959	6,134
Totals	77,767	85,653	118,647

Receipts of cattle were not excessive at St. Louis the past week and material advances were recorded on the better classes of steers and desirable butcher stock. As during previous weeks, arrivals ran largely to grass steers, Texas and Oklahoma contributing something like 2500 head to the native department, in addition to which was a fair showing of grassers from local territory.

The better grades of grass steers closed on an average of 25c higher for the week, while plainer offerings registered no material gains. Best corn-fed beeves finished fully 25@50c higher for the period, top at $16.75 per cwt, being the highest price in several weeks. Choice to prime steers at present are quoted from $16.50@17, an equal of the high time this year. As compared with the low point of the market the latter part of May of this year, best steers are up $4@4.90, and but within $1@2.50 of the record high prices prevailing here early in 1917.

Good yearling and heifer stuff was scarce and this class of stock showed even greater price advances than best steers, which were also in light showing. Average advance on good yearling stuff was 75c@$1. Beef and butcher cows finished 25@50c higher, while canners at $4@4.25 Friday reflected no material change from a week ago. Bulls sold steady to strong, some spots registering a 25c advance.

Demand for stocker and feeder cattle was strong throughout the period and advances of 25@50c were common on the better steers and she-stuff. Receipts were not large and trade was restricted somewhat on this account.

Veal calves advanced sharply, top Friday scoring up to $15.75. Quality considered, market closed $2.75 higher than close the preceding week. Heavy calves sold 50c@$1 up for the period, while southern canner yearlings closed on a weak to 25c lower basis. Heavy southern yearlings sold as low as $3.75 late.

Hog Market Higher.

Hog receipts for the week closing today show the fair total of 38,500 head, against 41,853 last week and 47,000 the corresponding time a year ago. The run has shown no more than average quality, with a large percentage of pigs and lightweight swine. Grass-fed stock has been largely in evidence, reflecting the high cost cost of grain in the country and a desire on the part of producers to take advantage of cheaper forage.

During the fore part of the week the market was largely in the hands of the buyers, who hammered prices hard. By Wednesday trade was ruling 25c to 50c under last week's close. The runs let up from Thursday on, however, and the market played a sensational comeback, putting on 75c to $1.50 or more during the closing period. Strong weight pigs, lights and best butcher weights showed the bulk of the advance, with heavy swine and rough packers trailing along with not over 25c to 50c improvement.

Compared with a week ago the market on the better grades of hogs is $1@1.25 higher. Packer sows and stags are closing 25c to 50c above last week's finish. Saturday was the week's high point, with a top of $16.75 on choice butcher weight swine. Heavy hogs sold up to $16 at the close.

Lambs $2.25 Higher.

On account of the heavy break in prices week before last the supply of sheep and lambs last week was small and sellers were able to force the market upwards and each day prices showed a good gain over the previous day until the end of the week found prices on the highest basis they have been for quite a while on lambs and sheep also.

Week before last closed with the best lambs selling at $10.50@11.10; best sheep, $6@6.50. At the close of last week best lambs were going at $12.75@13.25; fair grades, $11.50@12.50; culls, $5.50@7; mutton sheep, $7; breeding ewes, $7.50@8; choppers, $5@6.60; canners, $1@2, and bucks, $5.

This shows a gain for the week on lambs of $2.25 in general and on sheep 50c. The trade was active all week with the buyers anxious for a much greater number of lambs than they were able to secure. Fat sleep also found ready sale and there was a good outlet for good breeding ewes.

Stronger Trade in Horses.

Smaller receipts and a slight increase in the buying contingent served to stimulate a better trend to the horse market the past week. Auction supply of horses did not exceed 550 head and, opening stronger Monday, additional gains were recorded following days. Part, but not all, of the several losses inflicted two and three weeks ago were regained on Southerners, most improvement being shown on the blocky, good-shaped kinds. There was no Eastern trade of consequence in progress.

Two special sales of Western horses were held and market on this class of stock was probably the best so far this season. Receipts were comparatively light and this influenced strong competition among buyers. Quality of receipts was only fair.

There will be no Western sales this week, but in addition to the usual native trade there will be a speed sale Wednesday, for which there will be between 35 and 40 head of trotters and pacers. Several trotters with marks of 2:20 and under will be included.

No Improvement in Mules.

There was a light run of mules and no improvement in the market was noted. Buying was conducted on a limited scale, local dealers claiming that orders continue light from trade districts. Buyers are inclined to buy supplies cheaper this season than last. Principal outlet continues for cotton feeders and mine mules.

10,000,000 BARRELS SURPLUS FLOUR IN CANADA THIS YEAR

Agricultural and Milling Experts Estimate That Amount Will Be Exported.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 28.—More than 10,000,000 barrels of flour will be sent to foreign countries by Canada this year, according to estimates by agricultural and milling experts.

The total capacity of Canada's 720 flour mills is 142,642 barrels a day. Back in 1876 when the Hudson's Bay Co., which is closing out its remaining lands to colonists, erected a mill 60 feet high with a capacity of 1350 pounds a day it was the marvel of the western agricultural world. Today even the smallest of the mills have a 100-barrel-a-day capacity.

It is estimated that each person in Canada consumes about a barrel and a half of flour, or six and a half bushels of wheat a year. Therefore to supply Canadian demands the mills must produce at least 9,750,000 barrels of flour. Last year Canada milled 18,225,000 barrels of flour from 82,012,000 bushels of wheat, making it possible to send to foreign countries 9,500,000 barrels of flour. The big grain crop this year will result in much greater exportation of flou.

Dried Fruits and Beans.

DRIED FRUIT—Evaporated rings: Apples at 8c to 9c, and evaporated quarters at 7c to 8c per lb.; sun-dried apples at 8c to 9c per lb.

BEANS AND PEAS—White beans in car lots—choice hand-picked Michigan at $8.25 per 100 lbs.; prime machine-picked, $8; orders and small lots higher; pinto beans, $8 per 100 lbs. From store—Scotch peas, 6c per lb.; split peas, green at 10c and yellow at 8c per lb. Per 100 lbs.—Choice lima beans at $13; California pink beans at $8 and large white at $7.50.

Honey and Beeswax.

HONEY—Southern extracted and strained bright amber in cans at 16c to 17c per lb; dark, ½@1c less.

BEESWAX—Prime at 31c per lb—impure and inferior less.

Pop Corn and Nuts.

TWO CARGOES OF AMERICAN WHEAT SOLD TO ARGENTINA

Chicago Market Watching Reports From Australia Which Is Reported Expecting Record Crop.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Two cargoes of wheat were reported sold at New York recently for movement to Argentina. At the same time Brazil bought 225,000 bushels at New York, according to reports to the Chicago Board of Trade.

It was pointed out that it is not unusual for wheat to be sent from the United States to Brazil, but that a sale to Argentina was a new factor and indicative of the general situation of that country. Argentina shipments, which have been running up into millions, dropped to approximately 500,000 bushels for the second week in August.

In the Chicago market, where trading in wheat for future delivery was resumed in July and the law of supply and demand returned as the dominating influence, crop reports from Australia have been watched with interest. The Australian wheat crop has been estimated at 120,000,000 bushels, indicating an exportable surplus of 80,000,000 bushels. The new crop will be harvested early in the new year. This estimate compares favorably with previous years, but grain men think it rather early to predict a record yield for Australia. It is stated by buyers and sellers in the world open market here that if the Australian crops turn out as well as anticipated much credit will be due to the fine quality of seed available this year.

Tallow and Grease.

TALLOW—Country No. 1 in barrels and tubs at 10c per lb. No. 2 at 7@8c.

WINDO-WALLS LIGHT ORBON STOVE AND RANGE FOUNDRY

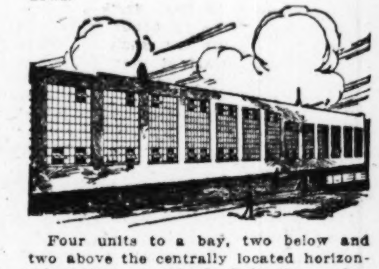
Belleville, Ill., Aug. 29.—Step into the foundry of the Orbon Stove and Range Co., of Belleville, and you will realize instantly why this concern is one of the boosters for Fenestra Solid Steel Windows.



Four units to a bay, two below and two above the centrally located horizontal mullion, provide daylight that makes work easy and pleasant, even in the center of the building.

Ventilators located at the bottom of the lower units, and at the top of the upper units, provide a circulation of pure air and insure the discharge of heat and gas generated when pouring.

PLEASANT FACTORY MEANS AN INCREASED PRODUCTION

D. W. Gille, Gardner-Governor Co., Names Some Advantages of Fenestra Windows.

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 29.—Take a car marked Gardner as it swings around the square in Quincy, and you will arrive shortly at the plant of the Gardner-Governor Company, one of the largest manufacturers of governors for steam engines, compressors and power pumps.

When plant engineer D. W. Gille drew up plans for this company's new machine shop, with the co-operation of Buerkin and Kaempen, contractors, of this city, he had a number of important industrial problems to consider.

Mr. Gille solved his problem by making the entire north wall of the building glass and steel, installing four bands of Fenestra Solid Steel Windows, one above the other, each band running the entire length of the building. Every one of these sash is of standard Fenestra type, accommodating standard-sized glass. The lower band and the upper band have ventilators, while those in the intermediate bands are unventilated. The upper ventilators are operated by Fenestra mechanical operator, with chains extending downward 60 feet to the floor.

Mr. Gille, and also those directly in charge of the plant production, are thorough boosters for Fenestra Windo-Walls, because of the advantages derived from this construction as compared to brick walls with wooden sash.

"The evenly distributed daylight as admitted through your windows is one of the chief advantages of your product," said Assistant Superintendent H. J. Laifheim, recently. "I am sure we have less labor trouble, and secure greater efficiency, greater production from our men because of the fact that they are working in a pleasant, well-lighted shop. The excellent ventilation is another striking feature. We take in cool air through the ventilators near the floor, and the warm air has an outlet through the ventilators near the roof."

SIX EMPLOYES OF G. O. P. COMMITTEE DISMISSED

New Chairman Begins Cleaning Out Staff Built Up by Cole.

John G. Hughes, new chairman of the Republican State Committee, who began his duties Thursday, before departing for his home in Macon Friday night began a cleaning out of the headquarters force of the committee, dismissing six of the men in the organization built up by W. L. Cole, retiring chairman, whose resignation was forced because of his connection with the Lowden and Harding campaign fund disclosures.

Hughes dismissed William M. Meyersieck, assistant secretary in charge of headquarters; W. G. Kitchin, an attache of the speakers' bureau; T. N. Zelweger of Springfield, an attache of the organization bureau; J. W. Palmer of Sedalia, Fred Knickman of St. Louis County and Oscar Thias of Washington. Knickman and Thias were field organizers for the committee. They had been paid $40 a week each. The others got $50 a week each.

Too Much Expense.

In notifying them that their services were no longer required, Hughes told them the committee funds did not justify maintaining an organization as extensive as that he found on entering the office. He said that later in the campaign some of those dismissed probably would be used in other capacities.

Kitchin, it was stated at headquarters, was told that he would be used as a speaker during the campaign. However, he was detached from the payroll for the present. Meyersieck and Kitchin admitted they had received notice from Hughes their services would no longer be required in the capacities they had been serving. They refused to discuss their dismissals further than that admission.

With the exception of Palmer and Zelweger all of those dismissed had been in the Republican State Committee organization for a long period. Palmer and Zelweger are recent additions, having been placed on the payroll by Cole shortly before the primary. Palmer did organization work for Arthur M. Hyde and Zelweger for E. E. E. McJimsey, candidates for the nomination for Governor.

Sanction of Nominees.

It is the understanding that Hughes' action had the sanction of Hyde and of Selden P. Spencer, the nominee for United States Senator, both of whom conferred with Hughes on organiaztion matters Thursday and Friday.

No statement was authorized from the headquarters as to whom would supplant the men dismissed. It is understood, however, that Roy H. Monier of Carrollton, George W. Wagner of Jefferson City and Frank H. Wightman of Monett would be placed in charge of departments. Wightman was manager of the McJimsey-for-Governor campaign. Monier was active for Hyde, as was also Wagner.

FALSE BURGLAR ALARM AT BANK

Policemen hurried to the St. Louis Union Trust Co., Fourth and Locust streets, at 10:20 a. m. yesterday in response to an automatic burglar alarm which had been accidentally set in motion by one of the clerks.

James H. Grover, president, explained that an employe, whose identity was not learned, kicked a button, several of which are in various parts of the cashier's cage and around the vaults. A crowd was attracted by the presence of the policemen.

SHIP CARRYING 770 RUSSIAN CHILDREN REACHES NEW YORK

Refugees From Siberia on 20,000 Mile Journey Around World to Petrograd.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Red Gross "Children's Ship" Yomei Maru, with 770 boys and girls of polyglot nationality rescued from the wilds of Siberia after two years' separation from their parents during the war, now on a 20,000 mile journey to Petrograd, arrived here today from Vladivostok, Japan, San Francisco and the Canal Zone.

The children will be landed at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, there to remain until the Yomei Maru unloads her cargo. Then they will be taken aboard once more, bound for France and "home."

Seventy-seven former war prisoners, Austro-Hungarians, Czecho-Slovaks and a few Germans, also are on the Yomei Maru, bound for European destinations. Sixteen nurses and 84 Russian instructors have looked out for the health and schooling of the children since the Red Cross "adopted" them.

RED CROSS SENDS FORMER SOLDIER PICTURE OF HIS GRAVE

Atlanta Man, Listed as Dead in France, Is Alive and Well When Condolence Reaches Home.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 28.—Being alive and knowing that you are supposed to be dead doesn't seem a very pleasant predicament in which to be. That is the peculiar circumstance surrounding H. P. Conway of Atlanta, an estimating engineer connected with the Grinnell company. Conway, who served as a Lieutenant in France, has received a package of photographs showing his grave in one of the American cemeteries in France and a card of condolence from the American Red Cross.

The package was addressed to Lieut. Conway, at the Georgian Terrace, where he resides. The pictures were very plain and upon the cross at the head of the grave was inscribed the name "Lieut. Howard P. Conway."

Lieut. Conway narrowly escaped death during the war. He was wounded and remained in the American hospitals in France several months. He is a widely known young business man and is the son of James W. Conway, who recently was decorated by Pope Benedict with the Order of St. Gregory.

EXTENSION OF POSTAL SAVINGS SYSTEM WITH HIGHER INTEREST URGED

Former Director of War Finance Corporation Outlines Four Per Cent Plan to Senate Committee on Reconstruction.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Extension of the postal savings system at an attractive rate of interest by the Government to furnish "banking facilities to the great body of common people," was urged here yesterday as a financial reconstruction measure by Eugene Meyer Jr., former managing director of the War Finance Corporation.

Appearing at the invitation of Senator William N. Calder of New York before the Senate special committee on reconstruction and production, the financier argued for amendment to existing legislation so as to authorize payment of 4 per cent interest on postal savings deposits, instead of 2 per cent, as at present. He also advocated increasing the number of postoffices authorized to receive deposits from 6500 to all of the 55,000 postoffices, branches and substations.

Pay Off U. S. Debt.

Proper organization and administration by the Government, Meyer said, could gain savings deposits within a year sufficient to pay off the floating indebtedness of the United States Government. He also expressed the opinion that, with proper handling, deposits could be increased to cover, in addition, a large part, if not all, of the Victory Loan, amounting to more than $4,000,000,000 maturing in 1923.

Taking up of Treasury certificates by postal savings, he added, would relieve the banks of the burden the Government imposed on them during the war and since, and permit the banks to use all of their available funds for business and industrial purposes. It would also relieve the Federal Reserve system of rediscounting several hundred millions of certificates which would improve the reserve position of the Federal Reserve banks. The redemption of certifications would furthermore bring about, he said, a rise in Liberty bonds of from five per cent to 10 per cent and relieve the banks of hundreds of millions of loans now being carried upon Liberty bonds.

Bring Forth Secret Hoards.

Another result expected by Meyer from the extension of the facilities of the postal savings system at an attractive rate of interest was that it would "bring forth from hoarders a minimum of $250,000,000 in coin and currency," which would be restored to circulation.

Raising the rate of interest, Meyer explained, would also mean the saving of large amounts of money now going from "ignorant people into the hands of swindling promoters of wildcat schemes." A low estimate of this would be $200,000,000 per annum, he said.

Another estimate made by Meyer was the saving of $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year as the result of the inculcation of the spirit of thrift. He based his estimate on the Treasury tax collections on so-called luxury taxes, indicating a minimum expenditure in the country of $8,000,000,000 for luxuries.

Save Billion a Year.

To sum up, the actual direct savings to the Government and people of the country, Meyer asserted that $1,000,000,000 a year would be a conservative estimate. In addition, he added, the intangible values had to be taken into consideration.

"Every man, woman and child, foreign and native," he said, "has contact with the Government through the postoffice at home and in business, and if he becomes a depositor with his Government as his banker he is bound to take a greater interest in his Government and its affairs, will be more patriotic and a better American."

Meyer asked the committee to consider his proposal favorably and, if they did, he recommended a series of hearings on the subject from all parties interested, including the officials of the Postoffice Department, the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board, savings banks, bankers, financiers and economists in general, representatives of industrial labor and farm organizations.

REGULAR NEWS BUREAU ESTABLISHED AT THE VATICAN

Agencies Representing America, Britain and France Get All the "Exclusive" Stuff.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Aug. 8.—By starting a regular news bureau, the Vatican has astonished newspaper men in Rome. The agencies, especially the three big ones representing America, Britain and France, get the pick of the news; correspondents of papers get what is left; all the "exclusive" stuff goes to the agencies.

Of course, the bureau does not work up to the lines of an American's idea of news, and much that is given out with great flourish of trumpets to the agency reporters is useless from a news point of view. Nevertheless, some plums arrive.

Another practical proof of the Holy See's desire to keep up with the times is the fact that the Pope has permitted Mgr. Pucci, who is at the head of the bureau, to accept the reportership of the American Catholic news agency, known as the Catholic Press Association. This is quite a revolution in a Vatican traditions.

Taken together, the two new features point to a growing desire to distribute Vatican propaganda throughout the world. The Holy See is intensely interested in the activities of American Methodists at Rome, where they have bought a large piece of land near the Vatican and are building a college in which it is said, ministers will continually preach against the Catholic Church nearby.

Methodist activities in Italy, which include the establishing of homes and war orphanages, give the Holy See far less anxiety than the Zionist movement in Palestine, which is the subject of frequent articles and protests in the columns of the Vatican organ, the Osservatore Romano. Pope Benedict desires the Patriarch of Jerusalem to start organizing Catholic interests and faith in the Holy City. The Vatican makes no secret of its uneasiness at the Zionist and Protestant activities all through the Holy Land.

GERMANY AND HOLY SEE IN DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Aug. 8.—One of the most important political facts since the war is the new diplomatic relation between Germany and the Holy See, relationship which could never be obtained under Hohenzollern rule, but which President Ebert and the new Reichstag have seen good to establish.

The fact is regarded here, even by those most hostile to the church, as a great victory for the diplomacy of Pope Benedict on the one hand and the new German Government on the other, because it shows that both sides have grasped the opportunity of the moment. Ebert has now a big asset, because he is sure of the moral support of the Catholic clergy throughout Germany in his fight against Bolshevism, and the patriotic spirit of the German Catholics, not to mention their iron discipline, is well known to friends and foes. No better weapon, therefore, could Ebert have than this in his mighty task of reconstruction.

For the Pope the victory is not less important. It marks the end of a very long period during which the Catholics in Germany were supposed to be opposed to any official representation at the Holy See and raises the Catholic clergy in Germany to the status their follow priests enjoyed in Austria under the Empire.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

7 Per Cent Dividends for the Workers

Rev. Joseph Husslein, S. J., has written a notable book, published by P. J. Kenedy & Sons, New York City. It is entitled, "The World Problem: Capital, Labor and the Church." We gladly give Father Husslein's book this free advertisement, in acknowledgment of useful suggestions derived from it. For example, on page 108:

"The development of the future no man can foretell. But one fact is certain. There will be no peace until a more adequate distribution of ownership is effected. The laborer should not merely live from hand to mouth, but so far as possible should have capital of his own from which to draw his interest or dividend."

On page 98—quotation from Pope Leo XIII: "Let the law favor ownership, and let its policy be to induce as many as possible of the laboring classes to become owners."

On page 93: "The worker should be able, when all expenses have been paid for family or personal expenses, 'to put by some little savings and thus secure a small income.' Both he and his family must be provided against the day of death, of sickness, or unemployment."

Those beliefs were a main factor in determining Union Electric Light and Power Company to finance its growth, so far as possible, by selling its 7% preferred stock in small lots, here at home.

It is easier for a company to sell a security issue outright to a syndicate—completing the sale with a single transaction. But that method gives the small investors—the workingmen and women—little or no opportunity to share the profits of such companies. Issues sold in that way are bought by the rich and well-to-do investor class.

During the past four years Union Electric has made it possible for nearly 4000 Missouri men and women, by investing small sums in this business, to increase their income from their savings.

The State, which authorized the issuance and sale of this stock, for the public service, looks with favor upon its widespread distribution among the small investors of Missouri.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201 Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust Streets, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis counties.

MAIL ORDERS: Send bank draft, certified check, postoffice or express order with mail orders. Prompt delivery of shares will be made by registered mail.

ALFONSO SHOWS GRIT BY VISIT TO BARCELONA

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1920, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

MADRID, Aug. 29.—That King Alfonso should trust himself amid the dangers of Barcelona, where none of his Ministers would dare to show himself without a guard and from which city Marshal Foch fled recently, is culminating proof of the Spanish monarch's pluck and popularity.

When he married Princess Ena in Madrid 14 years ago, an anarchist bomb was thrown at his carriage on its way from the church to the palace. The King and Queen escaped harm, but scores of onlookers were injured or killed.

This summer the King received an invitation to visit Barcelona, that center of anarchy and the capital of Catalonia, the province which had declared its independence of the rest of Spain and had set up a "rump" Parliament.

The invitation was not meant seriously, nor was its acceptance expected. An organization of workers called the Asociacion La Alianza is putting up a fine edifice as a hospital and home for disabled members. It occurred to the head of the society that he would give prestige to the undertaking by asking the sovereign to come and lay the first stone. If the King declined to be there the advantage would be all on the association's side.

Greatly to everybody's surprise Alfonso answered immediately that he would be there. His Cabinet Ministers tried earnestly to dissuade him and pointed out the perils. If the Catalonians made so hostile demonstrations as to scare away the Commander in Chief of the allied armies, who went to Barcelona on the invitation of leading men and for whom a long list of notable entertainments had been prepared, what sort of a reception would await the King whom they had renounced?

Barcelona Was Responsive.

But the King was firm in his purpose and the people of Barcelona were not slow to respond to what were in effect friendly overtures.

Even Puy Cadafalch—the radical leader of the secessionists (Regionalists they are called), who conducted the demonstrations against Marshal Foch and who had declared that Catalonia had done with Madrid and all its works and persons until her pride was satisfied—said:

"Regionalists are charmed with His Majesty's visit to Barcelona and above all with the manner in which it has been explained."

In view of the rumors that the King's visit was not spontaneous and that there were political points attached to it, the Political Action Committee of the Regionalist League had explained in a manifesto that all such stories were untrue and that in regard to the visit they were neither enemies nor enthusiasts; that it would be a good thing if the King visited them frequently so and came to know them thoroughly, for by such means their difficulties would soon be in the way to solution. Although the visit coincided with the sorrow that laid upon the Catalonian spirit through the injuries it had suffered and the slights it had had to endure, and the moment had not been well chosen, the Catalonian people would know, it said, how to harmonize their courtesy with their feelings. During the King's visit they would forget their injuries, but not their desire to be free and to have their autonomy.

The president of the National Monarchic Union of Catalonia sent a telegram to the Premier offering his congratulations on the King's visit, particularly as it was of an eminently social character, showing once again the importance that the King attached to social problems.

"I hope," he added, "that this visit of the King to Barcelona may be the forerunner of other journeys to be made shortly to the remaining Catalonian cities and districts, which at such a time as this would be of great national and social advantage."

Proves a Good Mixer.

When Alfonso arrived he was welcomed with extreme cordiality and enthusiasm. Not long ago no one would have believed that cheers for the King would have been heard in Barcelona's streets.

In his four days' stay he did a month's work, all useful, none mere ceremonial. He visited points to which the people's interests and sentiment were attached, mingled freely with the various classes of society, talked frankly with employers and employes—and his speeches are his own, not Cabinet made—and pleased everybody.

He attended a banquet given by the labor unions, and another given by capitalists. Judged by results, he accomplished more good than politicians could have in many years.

At the appointed time the King laid the cornerstone of the Association la Alianza Building, afterward making an earnest speech to the workmen, who listened eagerly and applauded heartily. Among other things he said:

"You the works and I the King must labor for the good of our country, for the greater Spain and for widespread improvements in conditions."

At the employers' banquet he declared:

"I have been endeavoring to serve as a link between capital and labor. Such an ideal other nations have found it difficult to obtain, but why should not Spain be the first to achieve it?"

When he went to the place where an electrical exhibition was soon to be given he was called on to steer a steel girder into place. It required strength and nerve, but Alfonso worked the chain properly, observing:

"This is more of a sporting proposition than laying a cornerstone."

Y. M. H. A. TO REPRODUCE "LUNA PARK" ON CAMPUS

"Luna Park" will be reproduced next Saturday and Sunday evenings on the campus of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, 3645 Delmar boulevard, as the first of a series of entertainments in the campaign to raise $350,000 for the new building.

Present quarters are inadequate for the activities under the auspices of the association. An average of 200 are to be found every night at the center, and the clubs include "chummy" clubs for girls and fellowship clubs for young men. Musical and dramatic societies, language classes, indoor and outdoor sports, and self-improvements clubs are features of the association activities.

"Luna Park" will offer a number of amusement novelties and many old favorites, including a plantation show, a dancing pavilion with a super-jazz band, a cabaret of vaudeville headliners, "house of mirth" and "crazy home." Children under 16 years will be admitted free and adults will be charged 15 cents. The carnival will be under the direction of the officers and board members of the Y. M. H. A.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

The horrors of the Surgeon's knife no longer stand between the patient's fear and the Cure of Piles; instead of weeks of suffering and doubt, each day of the period during which the patient is undergoing treatment he notes increased comfort. Were other evidence lacking in Dr. Henrich's claim to the successful cure of Piles, a single consultation with him would convince the most skeptical that he has a humane, safe and Sure Cure for this dreadful disease. His treatment acts with peculiar efficacy in the shortest possible period of time. His patients show marked improvement soon after the treatment begins.

Instead of physical and mental distress while suffering from this disease, The Henrich Method restores the patient to a natural disposition, enabling him to follow his usual business without any discomfort and hindrance. This he will demonstrate to the positive conviction of all sufferers of Piles who will place themselves under his treatment. Hundreds who suffered from this ailment are now, thanks to Dr. Henrich, enjoying perfect health, and more than willing to testify regarding his ability and honesty.

It requires only a few treatments to overcome the worst forms of this disease. A perfect cure is guaranteed. There is practically no pain. No detention from business or social duties. Call at once. Why wait?

TWO FARMERS CURED SEVEN YEARS AGO, STILL CURED.

R. 2, Trenton, Ill., Dec. 4, 1913.
Dr. W. P. Henrich:

Dear Sir—I cannot thank you enough for curing my Piles from which I suffered for over 20 years. I got so bad that I could not do my work on the farm.

I advise all Pile sufferers to call on you at once, as it is no use trying to be cured with salves and other medicines which I had used.

Dr. Henrich did not use any knife or chloroform.

Respectfully yours,
FRED W. TRIPPEL.

R. 3, Waterloo, Ill., Oct. 6, 1913.
Dear Dr. Henrich:

I am all right yet so far and I am glad I don't get those Piles again.

I like your fine treatment and I hope all sufferers from Piles will try your treatment. Everybody who asked me about it, I told them that your treatment is all right and that I am well again. And if I should get any return of the Piles again I will come into your office and you would treat me free.

Yours truly,
LOUIS ROSENBERGER.

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. To do this just get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub brickly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any druggist will sell you the calonite powder and about two ounces will be all

The curls will last the longest time—in spite of heat, wind or dampness. You won't have to be continually fixing and fussing with loose, flying hair. It's foolish to singe and blister and deaden your tresses with a hot curling iron—and altogether unnecessary now.

Liquid silmerine is pleasant to use, being neither sticky nor greasy. Get a bottle from your druggist today, follow the simple directions—the first trial will

PURE MILK AND FREE ICE FUND OVER $4500 MARK

$295.37, Received Since Last Acknowledgement, Brings Total Nearer $7000 Goal for Season.

Previously acknowledged	$4,210 33
Grocers and butchers' ball game, Sportsman's Park	218 00
Bazar, 4616 Enright avenue	33 40
Lawn social, 3413 Eads avenue	16 75
Show, 5885 Minerva avenue	13 50
Show, 6804 Clayton road	6 35
Show, 5046 Alcott avenue	3 72
Lemonade stand, 4845 Page boulevard	3 65
Total	$4,505 70

Donations amounting to $295.37 received since the last acknowledgment have put the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund past the $4500 mark on its way to the $7000 goal which is the objective which friends of the babies are striving for this season.

The committee in charge of the baseball game between the Butchers and Grocers, at Sportsman's Park last Sunday morning, turned in the proceeds of the contest, amounting to $218. The use of the park was obtained by arrangement with the Browns' and Cardinals' managements. The two teams put up a better game of baseball than was expected of them by the majority of fans present. The Grocers were in the lead until the eighth inning, when three doubles by Duvic, Schaefer and Schnaus, a walk and a home run by Tom Forestel scored five runs and won the game, the final score being 12 to 9 in favor of the Butchers.

Bazar Nets $33.40.

A bazar and entertainment at 4616 Enright avenue recently netted $33.40 for the Milk and Ice Fund, despite the coolness of the evening which prevented many from attending. The children who managed the affair were: Henrietta Hartzke, Ernestine Gates, Dorothy Lycamp, Louise Hartzke, Jule and Esther Powers, Louise Nangle, Margaret and Mildred Krause, Sarah, Olive and Hortense Spencer, Claude Poster, John Coleman and Fred and Edgar Hartzke.

Isabel Durham, assisted by Margaret and George Needling, gave a lawn social at 3413 Eads avenue and earned $16.75, which was donated to the fund.

An entertainment in the yard of 5885 Minerva avenue last Tuesday evening earned $13.50 for the babies. One of original numbers presented was a sketch portraying the work of the Milk and Ice Fund. A poorly clad mother was shown, endeavoring to soothe a crying baby for whom she had no milk and lacked money to buy it. Various scenes following showed the appearance of the investigator and the prompt delivery of the milk which the baby needed. The sketch was clever and showed imagination and originality on the part of the young authors. In addition several singing and dancing numbers and a number of readings were given. The children who took part in the program were: Virginia and Bennie Plahn, Virginia and David Crandall, Mary and Carl Whittaker, Henrietta and Lenore Swhitzer, Caralyne Mayer, Bob Barger, James Buskhart and Martin Serento.

Children Give Show.

Children from the neighborhood of 6804 Clayton road have given several affairs, the latest being reported this week. It netted $6.35. They are planning on presenting another show before school opens. Those who are working are: Catherine Volm, Rosie and Mary Ruben, Lilly Stebelman, Anna Stebelman, Vernie and Gertrude Tonn, Thelma Tonn and Margaret Caufer.

Six friends of the babies residing in and near the 5000 block of Alcott avenue gave a show not long ago and earned $3.72. The names follow: Dorothy Golsch, Gladys Harrison, Melva Woodbin, Bonnie Hohn, Gertrude Rowie and Darewood Harrison.

A lemonade stand at 4845 Page avenue netted $3.65 for the babies. It was managed by David Kaustman, Rae Spizer and Silvia Siegel.

AUTO SAFETY LESSONS PLANNED

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Lessons and bulletins on the safe operation and maintenance of automobiles and motor trucks have been prepared by the National Safety Council, it announces.

Very few automobile accidents are unavoidable, according to the consensus of opinion expressed at a recent meeting at the headquarters of the council here. Those participating included representatives of automobile interests, insurance companies, the public, automobile clubs and governmental agencies.

INDIANS TO HAVE CORN DANCE

By the Associated Press

KENDRICK, Kk., Aug. 28.—Old members of the Sac and Fox Indian tribes are making preparations to hold their annual green corn dance. The ceremony will be held on the Greyeye farm, and will last three days.

Hundreds of bushels of green corn have been stored in the tribes' granaries to be served as an offering. The dance is held to give thanks to the Great Father for a plentiful yield. Komahkokemah will be master of ceremonies, and has called all of his followers to be present.

EX-PRESIDENT LOOKS FOR JOB

Bolivian, Exiled, Reaches New York, "Broke," He Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Jose Gutierrez Guerra, exiled President of Bolivia, arrived recently from Chile on the liner Essequibro, "broke," he said, in search of a job.

He is 51 years old. He stepped up to the presidential chair two years ago, after a lively election, in which several thousand shots were fired, about 60 at him. There were many rough edges to the job, but he smoothed them off and dodged pitfalls until the Bolivian Soviet decided he should not serve his remaining year of office.

His foes started a run on his bank. That ruined him fiancially. Then they decided to send him to Peru. He fled to the American legation, and, as he had been considered by Peruvians hostile to Peru, the American representative bundled him into an automobile and drove him to Chile.

There were 184 others banished from the country with him.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another. but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

What to Use and Avoid On Faces That Perspire

Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must perspire—must expel, through the pores, its share of the body's waste material. Certain creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing, especially during the heated period. If more women understood this there would be fewer self-ruined complexions. If they would use ordinary mercolized wax instead of cosmetics they would have healthy complexions. This remarkable substance actually absorbs a bad skin, also unclogging the pores. Result: The fresher, younger underskin is permitted to breathe and to show itself. The exquisite new complexion gradually peeps out, one free from any appearance of artificiality. Obtain an ounce of mercolized wax from your druggist and try it. Apply nightly like cold cream for a week or two, washing it off mornings. To remove wrinkles, here's a marvelously effective treatment, which also acts naturally and harmlessly: Dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel and use as a wash [illegible]

WOMAN SPY DIES IN ENGLISH ASYLUM

Was Striking Figure in Germany's Service and Companion of Man Executed.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Lizzie Wertheim died recently at the criminal lunatic asylum at Broadmoor. She was one of the most striking figures of the espionage service during the war. She might be described as Germany's chief woman spy in Great Britain. She was the companion and accomplice of Reginald Rowland, who was executed at the Tower in 1915. Wertheim possessad an attractice personailty, good taste—in short, all the attributes of the woman spy of romance. She might have succeeded for for fotal incaution.

It was at a little flat in Hammersmith that Rowland and Lizzie Wertheim first met. The acquaintanceship, which was destined to end in the Tower in one case and at Broadmoor in the other, was the outcome of an introduction by a Dutch spy.

Rowland had been sent to England to learn the secrets of the Grand Fleet. Lizzie Wertheim elected to help him. The plot consisted of an attempt to gain the confidence of British naval officers. Lizzie Wertheim, with her attractions, was a pawn in the game. Rowland and his woman confederate frequented the most fashionable hotels and mixed freely with the guests.

Then the woman was sent to Scotland to learn what was passing at Scapa Flow. She lived luxuriously and entertained lavishly. But she was watched, and a minor indiscretion revealed her motive. In her anxiety to acquire information about battleships and destroyers she asked a too pertinent question, which excited suspicion. Then Scotland Yard took a hand, and she was arrested and brought to London.

Rowland was also picked up. The pair protested their innocence, but Rowland betrayed his mission and identity under severe cross-examination at Scotland Yard. Both were tried at the Old Bailey. Wertheim was sentenced to penal servitude and Rowland was sentenced to death.

Rowland made a complete confession. His end was inglorious. He broke down and had to be carried to the execution shed.

MOUNT ST. ROSE SANITARIUM BAZAR TO BE HELD SEPT. 6

Proceeds of Affair Will Go to the Institution to Provide Treatment for Tubercular Patients.

The annual bazar of Mount St. Rose Sanitarium, 9101 South Broadway, will be held on the hospital grounds, Monday, Sept. 6. The Sisters of St. Mary, under whose auspices the sanitarium is conducted, will have the assistance and co-operation of all of the sodalities and parishes in St. Louis, besides residents interested in the betterment of the tubercular conditions in St. Louis.

Mount St. Rose Sanitarium was opened 16 years ago in a small cottage on the grounds now occupied by the present sanitarium. It is the only institution in St. Louis exclusively devoted to the care and treatment of tuberculosis. It is a private institution, but 60 per cent of the cases treated in the sanitarium are charity wards.

The annual report for 1919 shows that there were 24,824 charity hospital days. The cost of maintaining these patients at the rate of $1.40 1-3 per day, is an approximate cost of $34,836 per year. The actual cost of maintaining a tubercular patient is from $1.75 to $2 per day. This does not include interest on indebtedness or investment in property, but actual cost of maintenance and care.

The charity department of the sanitarium during the year, on account of lack of room, had to refuse between 800 and 1000 patients. The sanitarium has a capacity of 150 beds—60 per cent of which have been devoted to charity patients. Only patients from the city of St. Louis are admitted to the charity department.

The various sodalities throughout the city always assist in the bazar. There will be a dinner, given in the dining room, under direction of the ladies of St. Andrew's parish. Seating arrangements have been made to accommodate 200 persons at one time.

CROWDS AT ENGLISH SEASIDE RESORTS GREATER THAN EVER

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Never has there been such an exodus from the larger cities of England to seaside and village for the vacation period as this year. Railroads and coastwise steamship companies have been unable to cope with the traffic, and lack of housing facilities at the more popular resorts have forced thousands to sleep on the sands until they can arrange to get back home.

August, partly because of custom and partly because this month is the warmest of the cool English summer, is the great holiday time of the country.

This year the Government decided to raise railroad fares to 75 per cent above the pre-war level in order to recoup some of the losses incurred in operation by the Government. This increase was made in face of a solid press campaign against it, and was announced to become effective Aug. 6. Consequently thousands who had planned their vacations later, changed their plans to avoid the fare increase. The decision to go early came too late to arrange for accommodations at resorts, and thousands left home with the idea of taking a chance on getting rooms. The result was congestion everywhere.

Thousands went to resorts by motor char-a-bancs which have become very popular this summer because of high rail fares and inconvenience of crowded trains.

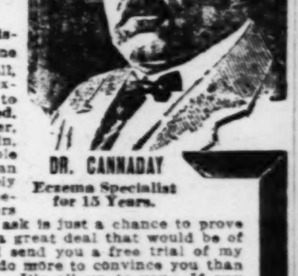
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

ANNUAL CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL TUESDAY

Presentation of "Little Red Riding Hood" to Feature Playgrounds Celebration.

The annual festival of the children of the municipal playgrounds will be held in Forest Park Tuesday, beginning at 9 a. m., on the cricket grounds near Jefferson Memorial, at the De Baliviere entrance. The feature of the festival will be a performance of a pantomime, "Little Red Riding Hood," in the municipal theater at 3 p. m. About 1000 children will take active part. It is expected that the attendance at the festival will be about 10,000 children.

Games and athletic contests will consume the remainder of the program. The Papas Club will supervise the distribution of ice cream cones and fruit.

Dances as follows will be interspersed in the action of "Little Red Riding Hood:" Little Red Riding Hood dance, children of Carondelet and Dakota playgrounds; dance of the Sunbeams, the Carr, Columbus, Mullanphy and O'Fallon playgrounds; Dance of the Butterflies, Kennerly, Dumas and Leffingwell playgrounds; Flower dance, Buder and Fox playgrounds; Dance of the Forest Nymphs, Laclede, Pontiac and Soulard playgrounds; Dance of the Fairies, Fairground and Yeatman playgrounds; Rainbow Dance, Shaw and Franz playgrounds; Dance of Mirth, twilight girls from all playgrounds; Dance of the Mischievous Elves, Carnegie and Lyon playgrounds; Dance of the Wolves, Yeatman playgrounds; Dance of the Wood Cutters, Gamble, De Soto and Murphy playgrounds, and the Dance of Laughter, children of all playgrounds.

The playgrounds festivals were begun in 1906. The first of annual pantomimes was in 1914. The attendance at the festival has increased each year.

AMERICAN WOMEN GET BEST OF SALES IN LONDON STORES

Are Able to Buy Cheaply Goods Natives Can't Wear Because of Large Hands and Feet.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The American woman in London is reaping all the benefits of the present sales, according to her English sisters.

Everywhere are wonderful bargains in gloves, delightful shoes at pre-war prices, silk stockings at astonishing reductions—but all for the American woman alone. The reason for this is that the average visitor from the United States is the possessor of smaller feet and hands than the English woman, and all these tempting wares are offered in small sizes alone.

One large firm is offering hundreds of pairs of long white kid gloves of a superfine quality at the alluring price of 5 shillings a pair. The shop is thronged all day long with wistful-eyed English girls, who watch the Americans carrying off these prizes by the dozen pairs, simply because the larger sizes are not among them.

"These are not any use for you," remarked the salesman contemptuously to a would-be purchaser of these gloves. "They are not in the ordinary bread-and-cheese sizes, but we keep them especially for American customers. You do not suppose we would be giving away beautiful prewar quality gloves for nothing if they would fit everyone, do you?"

Numerous letters of protest from irate English women have reached some of the chief shoe firms, whose sales seem to have been conducted solely for the woman with a size two or three foot.

MOST OF RAIL WORKERS TO GET BACK PAY THIS MONTH

Payments to Be Made as Soon as Roads Get Funds From Government to Cover Amount.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—Most of the back pay due railroad workers under the award recently handed down by the Railroad Labor Board will be paid to the employes this month. As soon as funds to make the disbursements are received from the Government the money will be immediately turned over to the men. The increase approximates $600,000,000 annually, or at the rate of $50,000,000 a month. The award was made retroactive to May 1, so that payments to be made this month under the award will approximate $200,000,000.

Operating expenses of the railroads will be swelled by more than the $600,000,000 increases awarded by the Railroad Board. Other adjustments have to be made, as one result of the decision of the board was to give some men a wage which exceeded that of their immediate superiors. Just as labor leaders have always contended for a differential in wages covering different classes of work, so the railroads must maintain a proper balance between employes in order to maintain discipline. These increases will also be paid this month as soon as funds are received from the Government. An illustration is furnished in the case of the chief clerks. Some chief clerks occupy a position of a minor executive, having power to "hire or fire" and exercise other executive authority. The clerks in these positions are regarded as in the class of officers.

Avoids Monday Callers at Office.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Admiral Samuel McGowan, Paymaster-General of the United States Navy, usually aims to be out of his office on Monday morning. He says a lot of people take advantage of their Sunday leisure to think up foolish or annoying requests to make of him on Monday.

EDITORIAL

The Sun Is Setting Below the Green Trees in Forest Park

As I look out of my window over the park, I see the beautiful ball of fire gradually disappearing.

It is more brilliant than Queen Victoria's jewels, and now has hidden itself in the bosom of the sky.

Nature supplies everyone with food and water, and the raw material for wearing apparel and the other necessities of life.

The ocean supplies sea food, such as oysters, fish and lobsters; the rivers and small streams, clams, crawfish and numerous fresh-water fish.

The land supplies oil, from which we get our gasoline for our trucks and pleasure cars; also the wonderful crops of grain, vegetables and fruits.

The trees from the mountains and lowlands are used and made into wood pulp, out of which is made paper. The maple trees are tapped for their sugar.

The walnut, birch, maple, mahogany and sturdy oak trees are made into beautiful furniture, such as you will see at the Prufrock-Litton Store during this—the last week of our August Reduced Price Sale.

Harry Prufrock.

To End Mistakes in Shaving

By V. K. Cassady, B. S., M. S., Chief Chemist

In the Palmolive Laboratories we studied years to overcome the faults in shaving. We tried 130 formulas before we mastered every problem.

Palmolive Shaving Cream is the final formula—the scientific solution. It does what every man attempts with hot towels, lotions and finger rubbing. Such things with Palmolive are not needed.

Both Lather and Lotion

Since earliest history Palm and Olive oils have been prized as toilet lotions. Blended in Palmolive Shaving Cream they form a soothing, cleansing lather. A lather that lubricates between the skin and blade, so a man can shave close without scraping.

This means a shave that lasts all day—that makes the face feel satin-smooth.

Stays Foamy 10 Minutes

Hot towels and rubbing in lather with the fingers mean delay. We felt there was a scientific way to make the beard cut easily without that; and we found it. Palmolive Cream removes the natural oil-coat from the hair, so the moisture penetrates and softens quickly.

Because it stays thick and creamy 10 minutes Palmolive makes relathering unnecessary. A cream so prolific that a mere bit on the brush lathers up 250-fold.

Four Shaves For 1c

In our 35c tube is enough Palmolive for about 152 shaves. That's more than 4 shaves for 1c. This would be tempting in any shaving lather. But coupled with these astonishing results it is changing the shaving habits of thousands.

These discoveries are hard to conceive but so easy to prove that we do not hesitate to make this free offer. Help yourself to the coupon printed below and get a Several-Shave Tube of Palmolive without cost, from any druggist named in the following list.

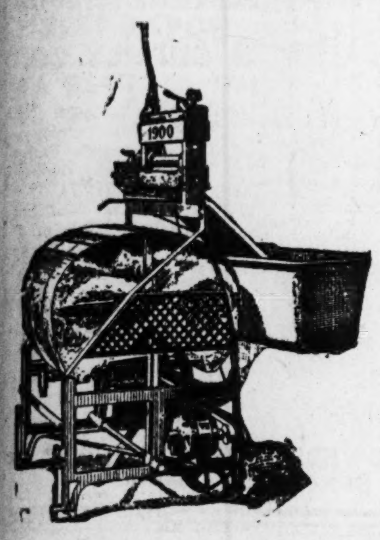
The "1900" Cataract Electric Clothes Washer



The Reason

the 1900 Cataract Electric Clothes Washer gets the dirt out of clothes quickly without wear upon the fabric—

Is That a Continuous Stream of Water Is Passing Through the Clothes Constantly in a Figure Eight Motion.

It is a little difficult to explain (but easy to see), and you are invited to a demonstration that is now being given in the Housewares Section.

The tub itself has nothing in it but clothes, soap and water.

It rocks forward and backward, at the same time oscillating in such a way that the water streams along in a figure eight motion.

The water passes through the clothes—the soap loosens the dirt—the moving water carries it away.

It is the modern, sensible way to wash. Will you come and see?

Sold on Convenient Payments

To make it possible for Stix, Baer & Fuller customers to place the Cataract Washer in their own homes for immediate use, we have arranged to sell these Washers on convenient terms, and we will service free these machines, as well as all 1900 Cataract Electric Washers previously sold in St. Louis.

Is Lack of Iron in The Bloood Making An Old Man of You?

Many a Man Still Young in Years Is Fast Growing Old—Wrinkled and Careworn, His Vigor and Energy Leaving Him, and His Memory Failing—Simply Through Neglect to Keep His Blood Rich in Iron.

Work, Worry and Nerve Strains of Modern Life Sap the Iron From the Blood, Says Physician

Who Tells How Organic Iron Like Nuxated Iron Helps Build Rich Red Blood, Strengthen the Nerves and Make Tired, Worn-out and Run-Down Men Look and Feel Years Younger.

LACK OF IRON

He may be in his thirties or he may be close to sixty but no matter what his years, a man looks and feels old when the iron in his blood runs low. His strength slips away and his vitality dwindles, he no longer tackles his work with the old-time vim and energy, and he lacks the endurance to put in long hours. The lines of care and worry creep into his face, his skin loses its healthful glow and becomes sallow, sagging and wrinkled. To all appearances he is an old man though still young in years. Nature is giving him her warning signs that he lacks sufficient iron in his system to build fresh energy, strength and endurance, to keep his body healthy, his nerves steady and his mind clear and active and unless he quickly replenishes the iron in his blood, he steadily becomes more nervous and weak until the final breakdown comes. How organic iron,—Nuxated Iron helps build up red blood, strength and endurance and thereby keep a man from looking and feeling old before his time is explained by physicians in the following statements.

"My experience has taught me that many a man is ageing too fast merely because his blood is starving for want of iron," says Dr. Ferdinand C. King, New York Physician and Medical Author. "Blood without iron is like a man without hands. The man cannot feed himself nor do his work, and similarly blood without iron cannot feed itself from the food passing through the stomach, nor can it carry the necessary oxygen, the breath of life, from the lungs to the rest of the body. The red corpuscles of the blood do this work; and iron is necessary to keep them in condition.

"If a man's red corpuscles lose their iron and he becomes pale, weak and rundown, I urge him to build up his strength with Nuxated Iron. Many a time I have seen patients through its use lose that aged careworn appearance and get a new grip on health in only two weeks. The patient stops worrying about getting old, because he no longer feels old.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, makes this statement: "For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all "run-down," while at fifty or sixty with plenty of iron in your blood, you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy. To make strong, keen, red-blooded men and women there is nothing in my experience which I found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows N I and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each tablet, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in tablet form only.

Superfluous Hair Roots Now Removed at Home

(A Wonderful New Method)

Glorious news for women troubled with disfiguring hairy growths! By means of an entirely new and very simple method you can now remove not only the surface hair, but the roots as well! Just get a stick of phelactine from your druggist, follow the easy instructions—see the hair-roots come out before your very eyes! Yes, you can hardly believe your eyes, the work is done so quickly, completely, harmlessly.

Phelactine is non-irritating, non-odorous, non-poisonous—couldn't hurt a child to eat it.

MANY OFFER PLACES TO WORKING STUDENTS

More Girls Than Boys Sought by Persons to Help Earn Way Through Washington.

The recently announced purpose of Washington University to assist in every way practicable those students who, either wholly or in part, work their way through that institution, has already disclosed widespread desire on the part of St. Louisans to co-operate.

Success of the effort depends upon employment of the boys and girls seeking it. Advices have reached the registrar of readiness to employ scores of students, mainly girls, on the basis of more or less light duties which would not interfere with their classroom work and studies, for which homelike accommodations are to be the return.

One of the proposals, for example, comes from a woman public school teacher, who desires a university girl to take charge of their mutual home.

Not so many offers to boy students have been received, of whom it is estimated that more than 100 will need employment if they are to remain at school. Registrar Lamke is hopeful that enough of this part-time work will be available to make known by him in time to attract many boys and girls from outside the city who need only that kind of encouragement to go ahead with their studies.

Night Classes Start Oct. 4.

The evening courses at Washington University, beginning Oct. 4, are 70 in number, on about a score of subjects, and preparation for them became very active last week, following return of Prof. F. W. Shipley, the director, from his vacation, spent in Wisconsin. The subjects embraced in the courses include arts and sciences, engineering, architecture, law, business, secretarial studies, accounting, advertising, business law, credit, literature, philosophy, history, political science, economics, mathematics, French, Spanish, Portuguese and foreign trade. Registration for the first semester is on Oct. 1.

This will be the sixth year of the extension courses at the university, and Prof. Shipley believes, from early indications, that the enrollment will largely exceed that of last year, when the number was 1200. Scores of commercial and industrial concerns of the city are co-operating in this branch of the university's work for the business interests of St. Louis.

Post-Graduate Course Begins.

A new detachment of three navy medical men will begin a post-graduate or special course at Washington University School of Medicine Tuesday. The class completing its course Tuesday is composed of four doctors. The studies are on eye, ear, nose and throat, and extend over four months.

MISSOURI RIVER ACTS QUICKER THAN NEBRASKA COURTS

Changes Course While Suits Are Pending, Making Further Litigation Unnecessary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUBURN, Neb., Aug. 28.—The Missouri River is becoming unpopular with attorneys in this section of the State. The river is rather restless by nature, and by changes of channel has wiped out and built up farms bordering on it from time to time. In two instances the river, by suddenly diminishing the acreage of the farms while under contract for sale, caused lawsuits that went to the Supreme Court for final adjudication of the fine points involved. The court is about a year and a half behind in its docket, and while the appeals slumbered there the river changed its course again and has restored the former acreage, together with a few dozen acres to boot of rich alluvial silt. Now the half-dozen attorneys have no lawsuit left at all.

County Judge Lambert has just bet $305 against 20 acres of land that the Missouri won't change its channel. He paid that amount of money for 55 acres of land, 35 of which are now in the river, and stands to lose both his money and his 20 acres.

U. S. NEEDS THERAPY WORKERS

Public Health Bureau Appeals to Missouri Association.

Appeals have been made to the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy for trained workers for hospitals and institutions by the United States Public Health Service Bureau. Miss Idelle Kidder, director of the association, states that it is almost impossible to supply the demand for directors and assistants in the occupational therapy departments. Graduates of the last class of the St. Louis school, 3510 Washington avenue, have been advantageously placed in posts in many parts of the country.

A new training class will open at the school on Sept. 20, and arrangements for entering same may be made by consultation with Miss Kidder. The course will consist of six months' class work in various crafts and a series of lectures by well known physicians and specialists. Three months' pratcice work in hospitals and institutions will follow before graduation.

Chi Zeta Chi to Hold Convention

The Chi Zeta Chi 1920 convention will be held in St. Louis Dec. 30-31 and Jan. 1. The fraternity was opened at the University of Georgia in October 1903. There are ten chapters in the United States. Two are in St. Louis, one at Washington University and the other at St. Louis University.

Trained Nurse Advises People

"I was a great sufferer of stomach and liver trouble and cannot say enough in praise of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It has done so much for me and I am recommending it to other sufferers. I was a trained nurse in Marine and other hospitals years ago, therefore many come to me for advice. I certainly received great benefit from Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. To "Youth-ify" Gray, Streaked Hair

Ask anybody to guess how old you are, and notice how their first appraising glance is directed at your hair.

To be answered "You can't be more than thirty, I can tell by your hair," must give to any woman who is really forty or more a sense of pride and satisfaction.

But to become prematurely gray at 30 or 40, to look ten years older than you actually are—that is indeed a bitter experience. However, any woman can, with a bottle of Brownatone, restore to gray, faded and streaked hair all its maiden beauty and the identical color it had in girlhood, whether light golden, medium, dark brown or black. Brownatone is instant in results and absolutely harmless.

Two sizes; 50c and $1.50; two colors: "Light to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black."

Special Free Trial Offer.

For a free trial package of Brownatone send to The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 530 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky., enclosing 11 cents to pay postage, packing and war tax. Tear this out.

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of society and fashion. The overfat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness; revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Tablets which quickly and safely reduce weight at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week without any change in the mode of life. The ideal figure is soon obtained, with a smoother skin and a better appetite and health improved. Marmola Tablets contain all the ingredients which made the Marmola Prescription famous. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe fat reducer by giving to your druggist the reasonable price, one dollar, for a good size box or sending a like amount to the Marmola Co., 95 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a full box of Marmola Prescription Tablets.

PATIENTS FED FOR 58 CENTS PER DAY

Rhode Island Sanitarium Described by the Rev. Lever as Model for St. Louis Institution.

The Rev. J. H. Lever, Episcopal missionary to city institutions, who frequently has criticised phases of their conduct, has written, upon return from a visit to the Rhode Island Sanatorium for Tuberculosis at Wallum Lake, a letter to Hospital Commissioner Shutt describing the sanatorium and its administration. Dr. Shutt and Mayor Kiel have asked for suggestions for the improvement of Koch hospital for tuberculou patients for which added funds were made available in the recent bond election. The Rev. Mr. Lever's letter follows:

"Now that a new tuberculosis hospital is assured for St. Louis we must profit by the experience of other communities in similar undertakings. For this purpose the Rhode Island Sanatorium for Tuberculosis, located at Wallum Lake, R. I., is most interesting, because the conditions there are analogous to our own. It is a public institution, it accommodates about the same number of patients as would be necessary for St. Louis, that is, 300, and the funds were limited, so that no unusual expense could be incurred; nevertheless that institution is almost a model for its purpose and in many of its details unique in this country, yet the results were obtained not by the lavish use of money, but by the use of imagination and strict attention to detail.

Three Main Buildings.

"There are three main buildings, one for moderate cases, one for advanced cases, and one for children. The building for moderate cases housed also the administrative offices and some of the nurses. This building is the oldest, yet even there is evidence of thoughtful planning. The wards are open and there is not a single screen, but not a fly could be seen. The superintendent explained the absence of flies by saying it was cheaper to prevent flies from breeding than it was to kill them after they appeared. Consequently the most rigid care in the disposal of garbage and refuse is used.

Most of the patients here sleep on open porches the year around. Each patient is provided with a reclining chair and a locker for his clothes and other possessions. Anyone who has ever been in an institution will realize how important a locker is, enabling the patient to have access to his belongings at any time. In this building there is the postoffice, for next to physical health the average individual likes mail, and by having a regular postoffice in the building the patient knows his mail will receive the same attention as outside.

"But the most interesting building is the one for advanced cases. This is a new building, and many of its details are new ideas in hospital construction. It is described by Dr. Barnes in "The Modern Hospital" for November, 1919. It is a four-story building, of which the first floor is used for employes and the other three for wards. The building has a south exposure and all the wards are on that side. Consequently all winter the wards are flooded with sun, while in summer the sun just comes to the south edge of the wards. Each ward is practically a porch in itself, because all the windows fold back when desired.

Walls Made of Glass.

"A feature probably not duplicated in any other hospital is the glass partition between each two beds. This glass partition is raised from the floor to give ventilation, and reaches high enough to give some privacy to the patients, yet the nurse can see the length of the ward, because two of the glass panels are transparent. Every bed has a reading lamp, and the nurse has a portable lamp which can be plugged in at any socket, thus avoiding the lighting of a whole ward in the night. For noisy cases small rooms are provided and the fixtures for screens around beds in these rooms were built into the walls before the plaster was put on. Each bed has a call-button for the nurse. The most modern devices for drying dishes, towels, mops, etc., are used and in the bathrooms separate fixtures are provided for cleaning teeth, in addition to shower and tub baths. In the basement there is a model barber shop, a complete X-ray and violet-ray room and laboratory, a dentist's equipment, and, most interesting of all, a co-operative store where patients may buy candy, soda, cakes, writing paper, etc. The profits from this store are given to the entertainment fund, and it is expected that the profits will be at least $500 a year. Any patient in this building can use the elevator at any time to go to the store. Finally, the roof was made flat and is used as a roof-garden, with swings and chairs.

Building for Children.

"The children are in a separate building just as well adapted as the new building for its purpose. It was especially interesting to see the children's clothing, consisting only of one decidedly abbreviated garment. Dr. Barnes explained that the sun cure was used for them and that it had proved decidedly beneficial.

"As for food, the patients live on the fat of the land, and at a cost in 1919 of only 58 cents a day per capita. The hospital consumes the entire product of two dairies, each with a certified herd of cows, and keeps about 700 hens. The kitchens are models, with the very latest equipment. The dietary is very elaborate.

"The amusement of the patients, a vital factor in the treatment of tuberculosis, is varied. Baseball games are frequent and transportation for the visiting teams is provided by the institution. Boat rides on the lake are given every evening and fishing is encouraged. A small brook has been dammed and a swimming pool built and regular hours for each class of patients are arranged. There are five moving picture shows every week, two for the whole institution and three for bed-ridden patients. Frequent entertainments by hired entertainers are provided. The children have a merry-go-round, swings, slides, a boat and wagon and are encouraged to keep pets like rabbits and birds. Then here is an Italian garden which in beauty if not in size need not yield to Shaw's Gardens, and which provides flowers for the dining tables and for the very sick patients, and which, be it noted, hardly cost the hospital a cent, most of the plants being donated.

"The point to be emphasized is that most of the results achieved at Wallum Lake have not cost much money, as for instance, the variation in the diet, the opportunity to purchase small supplies at the co-operative store, the swimming pool, the flower garden, the playthings for the children. These results have come because the superintendent possessed two qualities that no superintendent of an institution has the right to be without, namely, imagination and care for details."

MOTOR INDIANA TRUCKS

9 Years—90,000 Miles

Will the Truck You Buy Match this Record of an INDIANA?

THE Newport Mineral Water Company, Newport, Ky., is still using every day an INDIANA Truck purchased nine years ago. They say it has run 90,000 miles and is good for many more years.

This is a typical INDIANA performance record—not exceptional. It has been duplicated and even excelled by many other INDIANA Trucks, which have outrun and outlasted several generations of ordinary trucks.

INDIANA Trucks are built and sold on performance—on the basis of what they are doing today, and have done over a period of ten years, for thousands of owners.

Less mature truck builders make promises—but INDIANA records of performance are the proof. It is these records for economy and long-life, plus ten successful years of truck building experience, that you buy in an INDIANA Truck. Buy INDIANA Trucks now and solve your immediate as well as your future transportation problems with enduring economy and profit.

Caring for Baby During Hot Spells

THE young mother soon learns from experience that summer days are often days that try her patience. The heat makes baby peevish, restless and cross. Foods that in colder weather were easily digested, now seem to cause distress.

Whether the milk or the gruel is at fault, see that the bowels move regularly. There is nothing that creates greater discomfort in the summer than constipation. It heats the blood and causes nervousness, headache, fever, colds and a host of minor ills. In these little ailments it is always well to suspect constipation and give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and the most ideal medicine you can give a baby. It is mild and gentle in action, never gripes and tastes good.

Mothers have had remarkable success with Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. C. M. Newton of 2430 E. Third St., Dayton, Ohio, has a son who was constipated from birth. She tried many medicines and gave warm water injections every evening for weeks, without benefit. Then she bought a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at a drug store, and it proved effective at once. The boy is now seven, and has not been constipated since. Wherever there is a baby these hot days there should be a bottle of Syrup Pepsin.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

QUEEN'S SISTER HELPS IN OWN HOUSEWORK

Infanta Beatrice, Who Had to Leave Spain, Occupies Cottage Near London.

Special Cable to the Post Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Pathetic are the tribulations of near-royalty in these days. Former Mrs. William B. Leeds, of New York and London, who since she married Prince Christopher of Greece has had the morganatic title of Countess of Glucksburg, has passed the summer between Switzerland (where the deposed royal family of Greece has taken refuge) and the Italian lakes. She planned to come to London but her visit was so long delayed a rumor became current that the Greek Government had refused to issue a passport for her and her husband. This was officially denied and now it is asserted that she is finding difficulty in getting their passport vised.

Spencer House, her palatial mansion in Green Park here, consequently remains unoccupied except for an occasional visit from her young son, William, when he comes up for a week-end with a few friends from the military grammar school at Horsham, where he is studying to prepare for examination for a commission in the British Army. He will go soon to Mont Dore, a health resort in Southern France, where he will take a three weeks' course of treatment for asthma.

Dashing Infanta Beatrice, youngest sister of the Queen of Rumania and daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, previously Duke of Edinburgh, is living near London, in an insignificant cottage, and is helping in her own housework. Eleven years ago she caused a Continent-wide sensation by eloping with Prince Alfonso of Bourbon-Orleans, the older son of Infanta Eulalia, an aunt of the King of Spain. After a time she and her husband were forgiven and were well provided for in Madrid by her cousin, Queen Victoria ("Ena"). They had apartments in the royal palace and everything to match. Unhappily Infanta Beatrice made herself impossible, either because she was too attractive to the courtiers or because she was irreverent regarding the piety of the Queen. At all events she had to depart.

CHEMISTS TO DISCUSS NEW WAYS OF EXTRACTING GASOLINE

Experts Also to Show How Waste Is Incurred by Incomplete Combustion in Motors.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—New ways of obtaining gasoline, including the extraction of it direct from natural gas, will be described at the sixtieth general meeting of the American Chemical Society opening here Sept. 6, it is announced.

How more power can be obtained from the derivatives of petroleum forms one of the important subjects of discussion. Dr. A. C. Fieldner, supervising chemist of the chemical section of the Pittsburg experiment station of the United States Bureau of Mines, and his associates, A. A. Straub and G. W. Jones, have prepared an elaborate report on "Gasoline Losses Due to Incomplete Combustion in Motor Vehicles." It will be shown, the society reports, that the automobilist can get far more power out of a given quantity of gasoline than he has been accustomed to obtain.

Another paper to be given in the fuels symposium describes how artificial gas can be produced in larger quantities and at lower cost by enriching it with natural gas in regions where that vapor is available. Utilization of the large deposits of lignite in this country as a substitute for coal will be discussed.

In the cellulose symposium a number of speakers will discuss the paper famine and the news print situation and suggest methods by which production can be increased by conserving wood pulp supplies and also by employing new substances in paper manufacture.

Much time will be given to discussion of the production of sugar in the division of sugar chemistry. A new source will be indicated by Charles A. Gamble in his paper entitled, "The Sugar Industry of Peru."

GORGAS MEMORIAL PLANNED

Panama Would Start Institute for Tropical Disease Research.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A movement has been launched for the establishment in Panama of an international institute for the research of tropical diseases as a memorial to the late Major-General William C. Gorgas, former Surgeon-General of the Army, who is credited with "cleaning up" Panama and other places of yellow fever. Through such an institute the great sanitary work so far advanced by Gen. Gorgas could be continued indefinitely.

The Panama Government, according to advices to Don J. E. Lefevre, Charge d'Affaires of the Panama Legation, would be willing to donate the $1,000,000 St. Thomas Hospital for the proposed institute. Lefevre said he plans to take the matter up with the Rockefeller Foundation.

HAS WASHINGTON'S LAST LETTER

First President Declined Invitation to Attend Dance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 28.—What is said to be the last letter written by George Washington is in the possession of Edgar A. Linton, a photographer of Little Rock, Ark. It has been handed down from generation to generation, having been addressed to Jonathan Swift and others at Alexandria, Va., Linton being a descendant of Swift. The letter:

MT. VERNON, 12th Nov. 1799.

Gentlemen: Mrs. Washington and myself have been honored with your polite invitation to the assemblies in Alexandria this winter; and thank you for this mark of your attention—but, alas! Our dancing days are no more—we wish, however, all those who relish so agreeable and innocent an amusement all the pleasure the season affords them—and I am, gentlemen,

Your most obedient and obliged humble servant,
G. WASHINGTON.

CONSTITUTION DAY OBSERVANCE

A leaflet, bearing the title, "Constitution Day," and explaining the Constitution of the United States, for free distribution to employes on Sept. 17, has been prepared for employers by the National Industrial Conference Board. With each leaflet is a postal card, which may be sent to the offices of the board for a free copy of the Constitution.

A large number of these cards, distributed with a similar leaflet last year, were returned, and an even larger response is expected this year. The board has the theory that a better general knowledge of the Constitution is the best weapon with which to combat radical propaganda.

NEW ATTRACTIONS AT THEATERS NEXT WEEK

"Twin Beds" at American Tonight; Kitty Gordon Heads Orpheum Bill.

The season of new attractions at the legitimate theaters will begin next Sunday night, Sept. 5, when Booth Tarkington's "Clarence" will be presented at the American Theater, and "Greenwich Village Follies" at the Shubert-Jefferson. Theatergoers who have the "Twin Beds" habit, and some who may never have seen the Mayo furniture farce, will compose this week's audiences at the American, where the formal opening takes place tonight.

Kitty Gordon, who for the time being has turned her well-known back on the life of a screen star, will be the principal performer on the Orpheum Theater's second-week bill, beginning tomorrow afternoon.

"Clarence," next week's comedy at the American, was one of the successes of last season in New York and Chicago. Clarence is a returned private in the Quartermaster's department, who was wounded—at target practice—and who attaches himself to a family as piano tuner, furnace fixer and potato-bug expert. Gregory Kelly, a noted performer of juvenile roles, is in the cast, with Ruth Gordon, Grace Filkins and Robert Adams.

A "Revusical Comedy."

"Greenwich Village Follies," at the Jefferson next week, is announced as a "revusical comedy" of New York's Latin Quarter. The performance was first given in the Greenwich Village Little Theater in July, 1919, and was the only show in New York which ran during the actors' strike. Because of the vogue it attained it was expanded and moved to a larger house. It has been in Chicago this summer. It is in a prologue, two acts and 14 scenes. Verna Gordon, who executed Japanese dances; Ted Lewis of jazz fame, and Al Herman are in the cast.

In this week's performance of "Twin Beds" at the American, Zania Curzon is the silly little wife and R. M. D'Angelo, Joseph Crehan and Antoinette Roche are in the cast.

Kitty Gordon's songs and dances, at the Orpheum this week, will merge into an act in which Jack Wilson and Vera Beresford are featured. Miss Beresford is Kitty Gordon's daughter. Miss Gordon also has assistance in her own act, and wears gowns which are expected to interest the women. Others on the bill are Mae Melville, who was in "Mary's Ankle," and who appears with George Hale; John W. Ransome, character comedian, in "Ask Dad;" J. C. Nugent, author and comedian; Ray and Frank Doran; Boyce Combe and Burton Brown.

Vaudeville and Burlesque.

This week's feature at the Rialto Theater is "Chin Toy," Joseph E. Howard's new musical romance. Joe Darcey, "The Dark Cloud," Burke and Betty, and the Dancing Humphreys are other contributors.

The Grand Opera House bill will be headed by Leroy and Mabel Hartt in a song romance, "Love in the Southland." Jessie Maker and William Redford will appear in "Dilly Dallies.' At the Columbia, for the first half of the week, the vaudeville bill will be headed by the Maryland Singers.

The week's bill at the Empress Theater includes Betty Frederick and company in "Wives of Men;" the College Quintet in "A Fraternity Rehearsal;" Foley and O'Neal, and the Four Laurels.

The Gayety Theater, beginning today, will present as its second week's bill "The Bon Ton Girls" in a revue entitled "Breaking Into Society." John Barry and George Douglass are the principal comedians, and Jean De Lisle, Mickey Feeley and Elizabeth Barringer are in the cast.

"Naughty Naughty" is today's bill at the Standard Theater, with Jack Kennard, Roy Beverly, Al Foster and Leona Fox featured among the entertainers.

Loew's Garrick Theater will open next Sunday, after a six weeks' closing.

SALVATION ARMY ADVISORY BOARDS TO MEET HERE SEPT. 9

300 Delegates Expected to Attend Session to Discuss Report on Moral Conditions.

Upwards of 300 delegates are expected to attend a one-day convention of Salvation Army Advisory Boards to be held in St. Louis at the Statler Hotel, Sept. 9.

Advisory Boards were organized in each county of the state recently to co-operate with the Salvation Army in relieving distress and assisting unfortunates. These boards have made a study of social and moral conditions and a preliminary report on these studies caused the State Board to call a convention in St. Louis.

Members of the State Advisory Board include Mayor Kiel, Dr. Carroll Smith, exalted ruler of the Elks; Dr. Cleveland Shutt, hospital Commissioner; Lawrence McDaniel, circuit attorney; Frank McAtee, W. E. Freeman, E. V. Williams, Tom Watkins and Judge John T. Sturgis of Springfield, and residents of other cities in the state.

TAX CLUB TO HONOR REEDY

Memorial Services to Be Held at Wednesday Club Auditorium.

Memorial services in honor of William Marion Reedy will be held under the auspices of the Single Tax Club at the Wednesday Club Auditorium, Sunday, Sept. 19, at 3 p. m.

The principal address will be delivered by Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who was a lifelong friend of the editor and shared his views on economic subjects. The services will be in recognition of Reedy's devotion to the single tax cause.

PAIGE
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE fame of our five-passenger "Glenbrook" has traveled from state to state, city to city, and it now occupies an unchallenged position of leadership in the field of five-passenger cars.

Everyone, apparently, recognizes in this model an engineering and designing achievement of the utmost importance.

Designed and built in the Paige shops—and powered with our own new six-cylinder motor—it surpasses every standard heretofore accepted as the best in light six motor cars

Compare it with any five-passenger car that the market affords and determine whether it is not, indeed, the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in the light six field.

Beauty Strength Endurance

Whether a Gillette Non-Skid Tire is making its initial trip or is a veteran, it is a trim, neat, good looking tire—and a safe tire.

Retains its non-skid property. Constantly prevents side-slipping and spinning without holding back action of car. The many-sided non-skid curves don't wear smooth and can't lose their hold — because the exclusive Gillette Chilled Rubber Process gives the rubber vitality and vigor that prevent speedy and uneven wear. Toughens it as iron is toughened when changed to steel. This, the most modern of refining treatments, minimizes sand blisters — abolishes tread separation and blow-outs— and makes the rubber proof against effects of heat and cold.

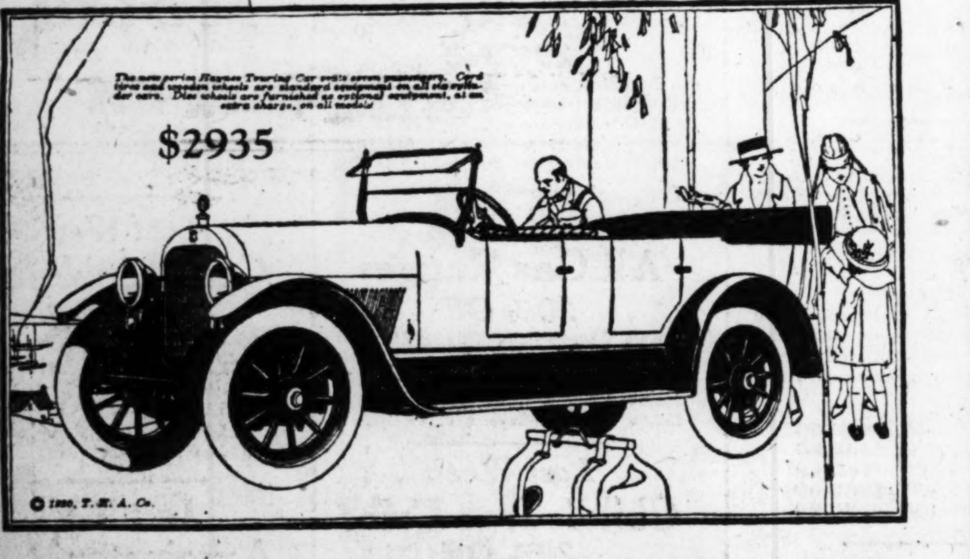
Here is the 1921 Haynes!



The NEW Series HAYNES TOURING CAR
A Car of Distinct Character

DISTINCTLY the latest and most advanced automobile—the new series Haynes Touring Car is presented just at the time such a car is uppermost in your thoughts.

Ninety per cent. Haynes built, it is a masterful exposition of the four factors of character which Haynes established and maintained—beauty, strength, power and comfort.

Its comfort is ideal—Haynes engineers have provided a 132-inch wheelbase and Haynes designers have created a wonderfully roomy tonneau, with deep, broad seats as comfortably inviting as the easy chairs and divans of a restful home.

Its beauty is distinct—the higher hood, with the majestic sweep of the body lines, the neat, artistic fittings, the fashionable upholstering of genuine leather—all these blend into a most dignified picture.

Its strength and power are such as always characterize Haynes productions. The famous Haynes motor, with its apparently unlimited reserve of velvety vigor and potent power, is the heart of its mechanical construction.

A new electric starting system simplifies the act of getting under way to the mere detail of pushing down a small lever on the instrument board instead of pushing a foot pedal.

Spacious compartments are provided for carrying various articles; large auxiliary chairs come into use when you wish to carry two extra passengers; a high arm rest enhances the comfort of the wide rear seat.

Mrs. Fannie Barnato Forced to Borrow, Money Lender's Suit in Court Shows.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Fannie Barnato, widow of the man who made a tremendous fortune in diamonds in South Africa, appeared in Justice Rowlett's Court recently in a case which the Justice characterized as "sordid and repulsive." It appeared that Mrs. Barnato has an income of at least £12,000 ($60,000) a year, but that she lives beyond her means, and consequently borrows money. Associated with her in the case was Mrs. Kathleen N. Freeman, daughter of J. B. Joel, "Jack" Joel, a very wealthy kinsman of the late Barney Barnato, and well known on the turf.

Reginald Michaelson, a money lender, sued the two women for £300 ($1,500 normally), the balance due on a promissory note. Mrs. Freeman did not defend the case.

"Mrs. Barnato received no part of this money," her counsel told the court. "She signed the note under pressure. The interest works out at 720 per cent. Mrs. Barnato has offered to pay 40 per cent."

Willing to Pay Interest.

A lawyer testified that Barney Barnato left his widow an annuity of £10,000. She also receives an annuity of £2000 under the will of her son, Isaac H. W. Barnato.

"Why does not the woman pay if she has all this money?" asked Justice Rowlett.

She is willing to pay a reasonable amount of interest," answered Mrs. Barnato's counsel.

"Why did she sign the note?' asked the Judge.

Then ensued a colloquy between the money lender's counsel and the attorney defending the woman.

"Mrs. Barnato had a bill of sale on her goods before this recent bill of sale, had she not?"

"Yes, years ago."

"What was her free income last year?"

"About £7000."

"How many times in the last year has she been in the courts, sued by money lenders?"

"About twice."

Case Called Repulsive.

"You know quite well that these two women, your client and Mrs. Freeman, have been in the courts over and over again during the past 12 months, and that this is the kind of thing this woman, with a free income of $7000 a year is doing. Mrs. Barnato is always borrowing from money lenders. She is living far in excess of her means. So people who deal with her are bound to charge her high prices. Her credit is such that even her son would not lend her money except on a bill of sale."

"This is a repulsive case,' remarked Justice Rowlett. "Mrs. Barnato is a rich woman who signs documents in the most reckless ways and then takes advtange of a law of which no honorable person would take advantage. Mrs. Freeman has not appeared and Mrs. Barnato is the surety. I think 50 per cent interest is enough and there will be judgment on that basis."

HOLLAND PILGRIM FATHERS TO OBSERVE TERCENTENARY

Celebration of Start for America to Begin Tomorrow at Leyden.

By the Associated Press.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 28.—The Holland Pilgrim Fathers tercentenary celebrations begin tomorrow and will continue to Sept. 2, after which others will be held in Plymouth, London and Nottingham, says the Times.

A memorial service will be held in Leyden tomorrow on the spot where John Robinson, the principal Pilgrim Father, lived, also in the English Reformed Church in Amsterdam and the Scots Church in Amsterdam.

The official reception of the delegates will take place tomorrow in Leyden when the Ministers Van Karnebeek and De Visser will deliver speeches. The first session on that day will be presided over by the American Minister in Holland, William Phillips, while Sir Ronald Graham, the British Minister in Holland, will preside over the second session.

On Sept. 1 the delegates will assemble in Amsterdam, for which occasion an impressive program is compiled. On Sept. 2 the members will make a boat trip from Leyden to Delfshaven along the picturesque canal, as the Pilgrim Fathers went in canal boats, spending the night of Aug. 31, 300 years ago, in prayers in Delfshaven. On arrival in that same little place which forms now part of Rotterdam, a memorial service will be held in the church and some other festivities will take place in the town of Rotterdam afterwards. Delegates will then leave for the celebrations at Plymouth the same day.

CARL BLAMED FOR PIAVE DEFEAT

Commission Finds Emperor Issued Conflicting Orders.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—Chief blame for the collapse of the Austrian forces on the Piave River, in the Austro-Italian campaign, is placed on ex-Emperor Carl by the report of a commission appointed to investigate war delinquencies.

On the fateful Nov. 2, 1918, the report says, the then Emperor issued three conflicting orders within a few hours. The first was for the conclusion of an armistice. Forty minutes later, this was revoked and 95 minutes afterward it was issued again. In this time, it was said, the Emperor consulted no one on the matter.

Save Your Tires

You can make your tires pay half your gas bills

Do you know that almost a million motorists in the United States are getting 10,000 to 15,000 miles out of their tires?

It's extravagant and expensive these days to discard a tire after only 5000 to 6000 miles of service.

If you will stop to think it is the inside fabric carcass of your tire—the side walls and the beads—that cost you so much money.

Why then throw away your whole tire just because the tread is worn out—it is not necessary—business men and business houses everywhere are finding this out.

The Gates Half-Sole Tire has changed the tire buying habits of more than a million motorists and there's a reason for it.

They cost only one half as much as other tires of corresponding size and still they are sold under a stronger guarantee than any tire now on your car.

There are now 2179 authorized service stations in the United States. You will find one of these near you.

These dealers will serve you in your community

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU WASH YOUR HAIR WITH

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

FRANCE ALARMED AT DEATH RATE OF BABIES

Statistics Show 50 Per Cent Die —Mothers Unable to Pay Excessive Nursing Charges.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The municipal authorities are deeply concerned over the tremendously high death rate among babies. At least 50 per cent of the babies born here die after a few weeks. The fear of depopulation grows.

So active steps are being taken to safeguard the babies and improve the condition of expectant mothers in France, particularly those of the middles classes who are ineligible to the State maternity hospitals and cannot pay the heavy charges demanded by private nursing homes. Prof. Pinard, a Deputy of Paris, is about to introduce a bill to start a service of State doctors and midwives, who will visit women in their homes and charge reasonable fees.

Dr. Clothile Mulen, a woman physician, suggests that one solution of the problem would be to extend welfare work in factories and homes, much on the lines adopted in England, in order to protect the mother before and after childbirth and prepare young women for motherhood.

At present a great many mothers have to leave the capital to find a maternity home whose charges they can pay. It is generally impossible in Paris to obtain private attendance during childbirth for less than 1500 francs ($300 normally). In 1918, the last year for which statistics are at hand, there were nearly 39,000 births in Paris. Of these 78.03 per cent were in hospitals or under municipal supervision. But there were still 8838 babies whose mothers received no aid from the "Assistnte Publique." This percentage of young French blood needs immediate and greater care.

Apart from the fact that 1,500,000 Frenchmen between 20 and 45 years of age were killed in the war and that 300,000 more were rendered ineligible for marriage, a statistician estimates that there are 1,640,000 male celibates in France between 30 and 50 years old. The high cost of living and the lack of housing facilities naturally add greatly to the difficulty of finding a remedy for this state of affairs.

An association has been formed to assist mothers not only of the working, but of the middle class. This association, aided by donations and personal service freely given by a band of specially trained workers, helps and teaches the mothers their household duties and the care of children, especially of sick children.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

HEALTH EDUCATION IN RURAL SCHOOLS. By J. M. Andress. A practical study of hygienic conditions in rural districts and in the schools; the sanitation of schools and grounds, and the methods of teaching habits of personal hygiene. Special emphasis is laid on the value of play in physical education, and the prevention of epidemics in the schools.

EDUCATION FOR DEMOCRACY. By H. F. Cope. This book points out that the world will not be set right by regulation, or by legislation, but only in training the young to the democratic life of cooperation and helpful fellowship.

PASTEUR—THE HISTORY OF A MIND. By E. Duclaux. Not only a critique of Pasteur and his contributions to science, but a biological history of his times as well.

JAPAN, REAL AND IMAGINARY. By S. Greenbie. An effort at a truthful interpretation of Japan to the American people, by one who knows Japan well and is not unduly prejudiced in her favor. Its many illustrations are from photographs by the author.

OUR NAVY AT WORK. By R. W. Kauffman. The story of the Yankee fleet in French waters as seen by Reginald Wright Kauffman, the accredited correspondent of the Navy. Authoritative information of every branch of the service.

SUCCESSFUL METHODS OF PUBLIC SPEAKING. By G. Kleiser. Hints on the factors for success in platform speaking, with studies of the method and style of the best-known orators, and many model speeches for study. It discusses many of the problems of the speaker in a very helpful manner.

BEYOND THE HORIZON. By E. O'Neill. An unusual play by one of the foremost American playwrights; a tragedy of serious theme.

ALL AND SUNDRY. By E. T. Raymond. Character sketches of many personages of political and literary fame; the Prince of Wales, Woodrow Wilson, Foch, Clemenceau, Kipling, Conan Doyle, etc.

LEADERSHIP. By A. H. Miller. A study and discussion of the qualities most to be desired in an officer, and of the general phases of leadership which have a direct bearing on the attaining of high morale and the successful management of men. "Leadership" is included in the official list of publications recommended by the War Department for study and reference by all students of Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS A FAILURE, SAYS HARDING

Republican Presidential Nominee Says It Is Wreck "Beyond the Possibility of Reconstruction" in Proposing New International Peace Structure.

FAVORS PRINCIPLE OF WORLD COURT

Would Use Better Features of Present Hague Tribunal and of the Covenant of Versailles as Foundation Timbers.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Aug. 28.—Turning away from the Versailles League of Nations as a failure and a wreck "beyond the possibility of reconstruction," Senator Harding broke ground today for a new international peace structure he hopes to erect about the principle of a world court of justice.

As foundation timbers he proposed to use the better features of the present Hague tribunal and of the covenant of the "failed league," and he promised that from the day of his election he would give to the task his best effort in counsel with the ablest statesmen of the world. Detailed specifications he said he could not yet supply in the changing atmosphere of world conditions and opinions.

The Republican nominee's deliverance was made in a front porch speech voicing in direct and positive words his conception of a foreign policy for the nation. His greatest ambition and the cornerstone of his program, he said, was to regain for America the moral leadership it had lost "when 'ambition' sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited autocracy upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy."

Admonition to the World.

To Mexico and the other Western republics he declared himself ready to extend a helping hand, but he pronounced a solemn admonition to the world that all the resources of the United States would guarantee protection to American life and property everywhere.

Professing also his desire to aid the stricken peoples of the Old World, the candidate recounted how this sentiment had led him to vote "with grave misgivings" for ratification of the league covenant with reservations. He affirmed that he would do so now under similar circumstances, but added that conditions had changed and that the Polish crisis had shown the league so impotent that its agencies were not even called into use.

Had the United States assumed the obligations of article 10, he asserted, it would long since have been called upon to stem the tide of Russian invasion, and could not have refused without "appearing as a welcher" before the world. He quoted a declaration of Premier Lloyd George that it was impossible to send an international army to Poland, because the European nations "could not furnish the troops and the United States had withdrawn from co-operation." That meant, in plain words, said the nominee, that the United States had not completed the obligation "to furnish the troops."

Quotes From President.

To support his assertion that this country could not have resisted a call for help in Poland under article 10, Senator Harding quoted the statement of President Wilson that the moral obligation of the article was stronger than any legal obligation. The nominee added that if the President really wanted to help protect Poland he easily might call on Congress to declare war.

"It is reasonably safe to assume, however," Senator Harding continued, "that the President will not pursue that course. Fortunately, he is under no 'compelling moral obligation' under the league to do so. His recent unhappy experience, moreover, in asking Congress to send American boys to police Armenia would hardly encourage repetition."

Turning to his discussion of reconstruction measures, the nominee said he had "no expectation whatever" that negotiation of a separate treaty would be required to put the nation on a peace basis. Passage of a resolution declaring peace, he asserted, was all that was necessary to end the present "preposterous condition."

Giving in general terms his conception of what the new peace association should be, Senator Harding

WHITE MAN TAKEN FROM TULSA JAIL AND LYNCHED

About 2000 Persons Batter Way Past Guards and Seize Prisoner Accused of Killing Chauffeur.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., Aug. 28.—A mob estimated at 2000 persons tonight participated here in the lynching of Tom M. Owens, a white man, accused of the shooting of Homer Nida, a taxicab driver, who died at a local hospital early Friday morning.

The mob invaded the jail and battered its way past the guards and seized Owen.

At 11 o'clock tonight, a mob of about 1,000 persons descended upon the Tulsa county courthouse. Twelve masked and heavily armed men separated from the crowd and ran up the steps of the courthouse.

They were met at the main entrance by Sheriff John Wooley, who was "covered" with sawed-off shotguns and pistols and disarmed. The men took the sheriff's keys, mounted to the jail in the top story and forced the jailer to turn over Owens. Owens' arms were bound and he was escorted to waiting automobiles.

Hundred Cars in Parade

During the interim the mob had increased in numbers and more than a hundred cars formed for the grim parade headed by the automobile bearing Owens and his captors.

Through the residential district the cars passed and more machines joined. The leading car headed for West Tulsa, a suburb. Passing through West Tulsa, the leader stopped. Owens was jerked to the ground, and told that he was to be "strung up" near the scene of his alleged crime.

Owens protested his innocence, stating that he did not shoot Nida, and blaming a woman for the crime. He was again taken into the car and the procession started on. After circling about the leading streets, the car stopped near Garden City, another suburb, where Owens was again taken from the car.

"You're going to die now," one of his captors is reported to have said. "Is there anything you want to say for yourself?" He said he did not shoot Nida. He asked for a cigarette and his hands were loosened while he rolled the tobacco.

After being allowed a few inhalations he was again manacled, a rope was twisted about his neck and he was told to say his last. "I didn't do it," he said.

Dictates Mesage to Mother.

Asked whether he cared to send any messages, Owens replied in the affirmative and one of the mob wrote down a communication which Owens asked be forwarded to his mother. It said:

"Mrs. C. O. Belton, 402 Burewell, Knoxville, Tenn.—Your son, Tom, lynched tonight by a mob as alleged murderer of Homer Nida. He asked that you arrange for burial."

The noose was drawn tight about Owens' neck, the end of the rope was thrown over a road sign and he was drawn up. Owens made no outcry or struggle. One of the two ambulances which accompanied the parade of automobiles brought the body to a Tulsa undertaking establishment.

Man Clubbed and Shot.

Saturday night, Aug. 21, Nida's cab was hired by two men and a woman, and after a drive about Tulsa, Nida was told to drive toward Sapulpa, a nearby town. At a lonely point in the road he was clubbed over the head from behind. Jumping from the car, he put up his hands and begged for mercy but was shot. Information charging first degree murder was filed today against Tom Owens, Raymond Sharp, Marie Harmon and George Moore as the result of Nida's death.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER GIVES TIP OF $2 TO BOATMAN

Oil Magnate Declares Trip On Lake Was "Most Fun I've Had for $10 in Twenty Years."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 28.—"That is the most fun I have had for $10 in 20 years," said John D. Rockefeller as he stepped from a motor boat at the Paul Smith Hotel landing this afternoon. The oil magnate made the remark to Leo Kelley, who had piloted Rockefeller and his party on a two-hour trip through the upper and lower St. Regis Lakes.

The $10 bill was not all for Kelley; $8 was for boat hire and $2 was Kelley's tip. Rockefeller has been visiting his brother, William Rockefeller, at the latter's camp.

Stops were made at the camps of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and Dr. James. A motor boat owner who has been grumbling at paying 37 cents a gallon for gasoline in the Adirondacks, ventured to inquire from Rockefeller if gas was ever going to be any lower. "Never so long as the public continues to consume more than the wells can produce, or are producing," replied Rockefeller with a grin.

FREIGHT RATE INCREASE CAUSES RISE IN GASOLINE

The price of gasoline in St. Louis advanced one-half cent to 28½ cents a gallon Thursday at the oil filling stations of the Standard Oil Co., the Pierce Oil Corporation and the Texas Oil Co.

P. J. Mooney, manager for the Pierce Oil Corporation in the city, said that the reason for the increase was the increase in freight rates. He said that the raise was simultaneous by the three companies on Thursday because the freight rates became effective on that day.

HAIL AND WIND STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE AT HUME, MO.

Roofs Damaged and Windows Broken, and Wind Approaches Tornado in Intensity.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, KAN., Aug. 28.—The dispatcher's office of the Kansas City Southern Railroad tonight stated that reports from Hume, Mo., record the worst storm in years, hail which fell for 40 minutes, doing damage to roofs and breaking windows, accompanied by a high wind approaching a tornado in intensity.

Most of the damage was done within a radius of 20 miles of Hume, which is in Bates County, near the Kansas line.

JAMES WATERBURY, NOTED POLO PLAYER, DIES AT FRENCH LICK

Had Played on American Teams in International Matches—Death Due to Heart Disease.

By the Associated Press.

RED BANK, N. J., Aug. 28.—News of the death of James Monte Waterbury, noted international polo player, at French Lick, Ind., was received here today by members of the Rumsen Country Club. Waterbury had been in poor health for some time, it was said. In the last international polo match he played position No. 2 on the American team.

Waterbury was considered one of, if not, the best polo player in the country. He was planning to play in the tryout polo games at Meadowbrook. He was about 43 years old.

It is believed that Waterbury's death was caused by a heart affection. Waterbury was born in Westchester County, New York, in 1876. He was president of the Waterbury Co., manufacturers of wire and rope.

MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED RUNNING IN FRONT OF CAR

Motorman Is Said to Have Failed to Slow Up for Another, as Man Had Expected.

Bert Bray, 32 years old, who resides in the 2600 block on Burgess avenue, was seriously injured last night at 11 o'clock by an eastbound Manchester car at Pierce avenue.

Bray had been talking to his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hodges of 1418 Pierce avenue, near the curb on the north side of Manchester avenue. As he noted the approach of the street car he ran across the street toward the spot marked on the trolley pole for a stop, at which another man was waiting to board the car. Bray failed to get across the tracks ahead of the car.

Hodges said the car did not slow up and apparently the motorman did not intend to stop for the waiting passenger. He said that Manchester cars frequently failed to stop at the corner.

Bray was taken to the city hospital. He suffered concussion of the brain and bruises on the hip, left leg and head.

WIDOW ENDS LIFE AT HOTEL ON MAN'S REFUSAL TO WED

Mrs. Marie Waldbart Swallows Acid in Presence of A. L. Cummings, Who Took Her to Place.

HE HAD KNOWN HER 3 MONTHS, HE SAYS

She Declared She Didn't Want to Return to Home of Dead Husband's Family, He States.

Mrs. Marie Waldbart, 25 years old, a widow of 5859 Etzel avenue, mother of two boys, swallowed carbolic acid in a room at the Maryland Hotel at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and died soon afterward in an ambulance.

Arch L. Cummings, 34, vice president of the Tavern Rock Sand Co., 616 North Second street, living at Labadie, Mo., and having a room at the Missouri Athletic Association, was in the hotel room when Mrs. Waldbart took the acid. He made a detailed statement to reporters, saying that Mrs. Waldbart, whom he had known three months, had asked him to marry her, and that he had told her he was not in a position to do so.

Cummings said he took Mrs. Waldbart to the Maryland at 11 o'clock Friday night, and that he wrote on the register, "A. L. Letcher and wife, Coffeyville, Kan." He said he left at 11:30, and slept at the M. A. A., while Mrs. Waldbart remained at the hotel, because she did not wish to return to her home, having had a disagreement with members of the household. He insisted that there had been nothing improper in their conduct at any time.

Mother of Two Boys.

Mrs. Waldbart's husband, who died in January, 1919, was Richard Waldbart, one of four sons of Alexander Waldbart, a florist. Since her husband's death, she had lived at the home of her father-in-law, with her sons, Alexander Waldbart III, 6 years old, and Richard Jr., 5 years old. She is a native of Vienna, Austria, and was formerly Marie Kurtz. Her mother is said to live in Vienna, and a sister, Mrs. Ella Busch, lives on Russell avenue, members of the Waldbart family said.

As Mrs. Waldbart was unable to talk after swallowing the acid, and as no note was found, Cummings' statement is the only account of the affair thus far given. He was taken to Police Headquarters, and furnished $1500 bond for his appearance at the Coroner's inquest tomorrow. An autopsy is to be held in the meantime.

Cummings' story was told with apparent frankness. It was a story of what would ordinarily be viewed as courtship, and of the wish of the woman for their marriage. He did not use the word "love" in speaking of his feeling or hers. Her motive, he seemed to believe, was a wish to escape from uncongenial surroundings. His feeling, as he described it, was one of unwillingness to marry on short acquaintance. He said he took Mrs. Waldbart last week to his home at Labadie, 44 miles west of St. Louis, where she visited his mother for three days. Cummings spends a part of his time at Labadie and a part in St. Louis.

Met Three Months Ago.

"I have known one of the Waldbart boys, Alex, for several years," Cummings said to the reporters. "I did not know Richard Waldbart, and I met his widow for the first time three months ago, at the Waldbart home. The occasion was a party.

"The next day she telephoned me at the M. A. A., and I invited her to go out with me that evening for a ride in my car. She said she would go, but that I would better not come to the house. She said she would meet me at Goodfellow and Etzel avenues, so I went there. Since then I have usually seen her two or three times a week.

"I went to the house for her only once, I think. The family, as she told me, did not object to her receiving callers, but I was unacceptable as company for her, apparently, on grounds of religious differences. So we usually met at some outside meeting place.

"Last night, I took Mrs. Waldbart driving, and she said she had had trouble with her sister-in-law, and did not wish to go home. I advised her to go home, but she was unwilling, so I took her to the Maryland and registered as A. L. Letcher and wife. I went upstairs with her, but stayed only a half-hour, and went back to the M. A. A.

Threatened to End Life.

"This morning, I called at the hotel at 8 o'clock, and we went to the American Annex for breakfast. I left her after breakfast, and I ate lunch at the M. A. A. Just after lunch I had a telephone message

MAYOR LAYS COAL TROUBLE TO SMALL DEALERS' HYSTERIA

Says Fear of Being Frozen Out by Big Retailers Is Much to Blame—Investigation to Continue.

10 BIG CONCERNS SAID TO CONTROL PRICES

Small Retailers Contend Operators, Backing Large Firms, Make It Impossible for Them to Compete.

After Mayor Kiel had heard representatives of large retail coal firms tell yesterday, at a conference of the Emergency Fuel Committee and retailers at his office, that the St. Louis coal situation is not very bad, he concluded that maybe the small retailers, who say they are being frozen out by the large retailers, were victims of hysteria, and announced that nothing would be done for the present to procure action by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The investigation would be continued, he said, and maybe in three or four days they would have another meeting and find out if something could not be done to get coal for the small retailers.

Hugh S. Graves, one of the large retailers, presented reports of the Coal Service Bureau, which showed that deliveries to domestic consumers here so far this year have been 466,659 tons. For the corresponding period last year the deliveries were 367,017. He said dealers were swamped with orders and his firm was two months behind orders. This was due, he suggested, to people ordering earlier than usual. He qualified a statement he made at Wednesday's hearing that the operators were selling to the highest bidders. Some were, he said, but most of them were not.

John Muckermann, vice president of the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co. said that the shortage was not alarming unless there should be another strike in bad weather. His firm did not have the usual amount of coal stored and was six weeks behind orders, but he thought the situation would work out.

The small dealers repeated the statements they made Wednesday that they had no coal, and could get none.

P. H. Greenlaw, Secretary of the Fifth and Ninth District Operators' Bureau, criticised the statement at Wednesday's hearing that operators were getting $8 a ton at the mines. He said the average price was $3. He deprecated suggestions of shortage, which had a tendency, he said, to cause a panic and a pressure of demand which would send prices higher. He said that the operators in the Fifth and Ninth Districts had sent to the St. Louis district 29,000 tons more up to Aug. 1 this year than up to the same time last year. The fact that outside dealers were willing to pay more than St. Louis dealers indicated, he said, that the condition in St. Louis was not as bad as in other cities.

F. W. Kleine said that the Illinois Central had declared an embargo against shipments except for essential industries, but was accepting shipments for export by way of New Orleans.

W. E. McGarry, chairman of the St. Louis Car Commission, said that the car situation had improved.

What causes the retailers' "hysteria," they say, is the fact that the retail coal situation in St. Louis is controlled by 10 large retail companies owned or backed by operators. The small dealers, they say, have to pay prices to the operators which make it impossible for them to compete with the large retailers, and they are being gradually frozen out. When this process is completed, they say, the large retailers will advance the prices.

Retailer Backed by Producer.

In some cases the retailing company and the producing company are one, and there is no attempt to have it appear that the retailing company has a separate existence. In others the relation between the retailer and the producer is not clear, but, whatever it is, it results in the retailer being backed by the producer to the limit of its production.

In the first class are Donk Bros. Coal and Coke Co. and the Boehmer Coal Co. In the other class the Union Fuel Co., supplied by the Consolidated Coal Co.; the Laclede Coal Co., supplied by the West Virginia Coal and Mining Co.; the Merchants' Coal Co., supplied by Donk Bros.; the Schroeter Coal Co., supplied by the North Breese Coal and Mining Co.; the City Coal Co., and the Inland Valley Coal Co., supplied by the Lumaghi Bros. Coal Co.; the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co., supplied by the Mount Olive and Staunton Coal Co., and the Graves Coal Co., supplied by the Mount Olive and Staunton Coal Co. and the Aid Coal Co.

In the case of the operator-retailers the cost, for retailing purposes, is

WEST VIRGINIA GOVERNOR CALLS FOR U. S. TROOPS

Action Taken as Result of Anonymous Letters Threatening Lives of Mingo County Residents.

STATE FORCES TO BE TRANSFERRED

Detachment of Federal Soldiers on Way From Camp Sherman, O., to Williamson, Seat of Uprising.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. VA., Aug. 28.—Gov. John J. Cromwell announced here tonight that he had requested the commander of the Central Detachment, United States Army, at Chicago, to send a detachment of federal troops into Mingo County, W. Va., to take charge of the situation there.

A score of anonymous letters, threatening life and property, addressed to many prominent residents of the Mingo region, prompted him to ask for the troops, the Governor said. The federal troops, he added, would take the place of State Constabularymen, who will be transferred to other parts of the state.

The Governor said that he had been advised that a detachment of federal troops under command of Col. Burkhardt had left Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O., for Williamson, county seat of Mingo, at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

712 VEHICLE ACCIDENTS ON ST. LOUIS STREETS IN JULY

Automobiles Figured in 386, According to Figures of Public Safety Committee.

Eight persons were killed in automobile accidents in the city in July and 712 vehicle accidents occurred during that month, according to figures given the police by M. L. Fellmer of the Public Safety Committee.

Of the total number of accidents, there were 386 in which automobiles figured; 174 persons were injured by automobiles, 21 in motor cycle accidents, 14 in bicycle accidents, 8 in horse-drawn vehicle accidents and 28 in street car accidents. Property damage for the month in accidents amounted to $48,008.

In classifying the causes of the accidents, Fellmer says 148 were from causes not determined; 52 given as "unavoidable;" 26 caused by skidding, either on wet or oiled streets; 21 due to "jay walking;" 296 due to careless driving; 15 by one automobile trying to pass another; 14 by automobiles failing to give proper signal to stop at crossings, 10 starting without signal; 16 backing automobile without signal; 41 turning without signal; 7 by passing street cars discharging or loading passengers; 3 driving without lights, and 4 by horses left unguarded.

PROFITEERS IN SUGAR MUST STAND LOSSES, PALMER SAYS

Attorney-General Again Promises to Protect Public Against Being Mulcted by High Prices.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Men who have been profiteering in sugar, Attorney-General Palmer announced today, will get no aid in getting out of the trap resulting from price declines, but his department will take every precaution to protect the public against being mulcted by high prices.

Despite the fact that since the United States entered the world war sugar dealers have piled up enormous profits, they are protesting against the slight loss they are now suffering, it is said.

Whatever differences exist between refiners and jobbers will have to be ironed out between them without the public having to suffer, according to an official here. He added that the department would step in whenever it appeared there was an attempt to make the public stand the loss incurred by the jobbers.

It was pointed out that sugar has declined 10 cents a pound and there is every possibility of it going even lower because the new crop of fall sugar is ready and it will sell at from 10 to 12 cents a pound.

EINSTEIN MAY LEAVE GERMANY

Relativity Theorist Has Been Derided by Hostile Pan-Germans.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Professor Albert Einstein, the German philosopher and scientist, whose recent discoveries in the realm of physics have made him famous, contemplates leaving Germany, owing to the persistent hostility of the Pan-Germans, which has taken the form of derision of his theory of relativity, says a Reuter dispatch from Berlin.

NEW YORK GIVES COX BIG DAY; MORE FUND EVIDENCE PROMISED

Democratic Candidate Showered With Flowers on Arrival in City and Sees and Speaks at Police Games.

CONCENTRATES FIRE ON CONTRIBUTIONS

"Have Not Yet Started on Revelations Which Will Be Made;" Warns Business Against Rejecting League.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Governor Cox spent today hustling through a crammed program of events. Speeches, parades, receptions, luncheon at a hotel, a view of police field day games at Gravesend Race Track, where a crowd estimated at 200,000 was addressed, and a dinner with party leaders tonight, gave the Democratic candidate the busiest day of his campaign. Thousands of persons saw and heard the nominee as he was shunted about in the turmoil of events before a constant battery of motion picture and other photographers.

Upon his arrival this morning he was given an uproarious greeting at the railroad station, where crowds showered him with flowers. His greeting in the morning was unique in the annals of New York, and halted even the Saturday rush of traffic. Thousands gathered to greet him.

The real reception came when he entered the station rotunda. An aisle had been roped off across the tiled floor. He found not only the main floor but galleries and the grand staircase thronged with men and women. Cheering for him was prolonged.

The Governor's principal address was at the Democratic luncheon, attended by hundreds of party notables, including David R. Francis of St. Louis. At Gravesend this afternoon the Governor was compelled, for several reasons, to cut short his remarks after a 15-minute speech, cordially received. Another brief address was delivered to a crowd at the public library, where he stopped en route to Gravesend.

Repeats Fund Charges.

In his luncheon address, Governor Cox reiterated his charges that contributions were being collected by Republican leaders toward a $15,000,000 "corruption fund," and promised further revelations, but did not give any additional information today. World peace, by America's entrance into the League of Nations, industrial problems and pleas for Americanization of foreign born citizens also featured the candidate's address. In all he predicted Democratic victory next fall.

During his visit here the Governor was accompanied by scores of prominent Democrats, including Gov. Smith of New York, Mayor Hylan, Chairman White and Senator Harrison of the Democratic national organization, and tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by former Representative John J. Fitzgerald in Brooklyn. He spent the night at Fitzgerald's home and will remain over Sunday, planning to attend church and confer on campaign affairs with many Democratic chieftains before leaving for Columbus tomorrow.

Fire Concentrated on Fund.

Fire of Gov. Cox and also of other speeches of Democratic leaders was concentrated on the Republican campaign fund. The Governor was cheered loudly as he reiterated that the contributions involved an attempt to "purchase the presidency."

"The enemy has sought to deny my charges," he said, "but none of them makes the same kind of denial. Hays says the fund is $3,000,000. Upham said it was about $8,000,000.

"We have not yet started in the revelations which will be made to the public."

Gov. Smith and William G. McAdoo, who introduced Gov. Cox at the Democrats' luncheon, also assailed the Republican financing. The latter referred to Chairman Hays and Treasurer Upham of the Republican National Committee as "the Gold Dust Twins."

"I want to express my unqualified admiration of Gov. Cox for bringing this so forcibly to the attention of the public," said McAdoo.

Gov. Smith referred to the candidate as "the hope of democracy throughout the world," and declared that New York liked "a good, clean fight, out from the shoulder."

Gov. Cox commended Gov. Smith

MOSQUITO BITE WILL KEEP 'BABE' RUTH OUT OF GAME TEN DAYS

Operation on Arm of Famous Home Run Hitter Made Necessary by Infection.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—"Babe" Ruth, the famous home-run hitter of the New York American League baseball team, will be out of the game for 10 days as a result of a mosquito bite. His arm is infected, and a cut about three inches long was made in it today to get at the trouble. It will take some time to heal.

Ruth is downcast because he wanted to get a few more home-runs before the end of the month to keep his season's record properly balanced.

COX TURNS FUND EVIDENCE OVER TO SENATOR REED

Missourian Reported On Way to Chicago to Present Matter to Kenyon Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—It is reported tonight that Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, a Democratic member of the Kenyon Committee, will arrive in Chicago bringing all the documentary and other evidence, including a formal statement from Gov. Cox, that is to be presented in the nature of evidence, covering all that the nominee might offer, were he to appear in person.

Formal demand was made on the Senate Committee by George N. Clark, chairman of the Ohio Republican State Committee, that he be permitted to take the witness stand in Chicago, and that a relentless investigation be made into Ohio campaign expenses, in particular. This demand was made in a telegram to Senator Pomerene.

"We will give to the committee every book and document that we possess, both as to receipts and expenditures," National Treasurer Upham said. "We will offer for the committee's consideration, for one thing, a list of 30,000 subscribers, the complete list up to tonight."

NEFF SHOWS GOOD LEAD OVER BAILEY FOR TEXAS GOVERNOR

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, TEX., Aug. 28.—Pat M. Neff of Waco, led Joseph Weldon Bailey of Gainesville, former U. S. Senator from Texas, by 56,170 votes in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination in today's Democratic run-off primary, according to a compilation of 286,234 votes from 156 counties, announced tonight by the Texas election bureau.

On the face of these incomplete returns, the Dallas Morning News announced Neff's nomination by "a large majority."

The Texas election bureau estimated that the vote in today's primary would fall several thousand short of that in the July primary, when Mr. Bailey led Neff by 2522 votes, and would be between 425,000 and 475,000 votes.

Early returns gave Lynch Davidson of Houston a slight lead over Lieutenant-Governor Johnson in the race for the nomination for that office. William Pierson of Greenville took a good lead over Supreme Court Justice Hawkins in the other State contest.

15 OUT OF 76 RURAL SCHOOLS IN COUNTY HAVE NO TEACHERS

Fifteen out of 76 rural schools in St. Louis County are without teachers, despite the fact that some of them are scheduled to open tomorrow, County Superintendent R. G. Russell said yesterday.

Salary increases have been granted by the boards in many of these districts, but even the figures thus fixed appear to offer little attraction, as the teachers seem to command higher remuneration in other vocations, and elect to go where the most money may be obtained.

Only rural schools will open in the county tomorrow, except in Clayton, where the high school and summer schools will begin the 1920-21 session. An enrollment of 400 in the grammar schools and of 200 in the high school is expected. Schools of the other larger communities of the county will open next Monday, in most instances.

One new high school will open at that time, the Pershing High School, in University City.

ARMY LIEUTENANT SOUGHT IN ANOTHER THEFT OF $30,000

Nationwide Search Being Made for Lieut. H. J. Braker, After Payroll Money Is Missed.

DISAPPEARED DAY FUNDS WERE STOLEN

Last Seen Carrying Two Grips From Camp Holabird—Former Wife Here to Aid in Search.

It was learned last night at Police Headquarters that military authorities, Secret Service Agents and detectives throughout the country are searching for Lieut. Harry Joseph Braker in connection with the disappearance of $30,000 from the office of the United States Quartermaster at Camp Holabird, Baltimore, Md. Braker was divorced last April by Mrs. Mary Stohr Braker, of 2638 Geyer avenue.

The order for the arrest of Braker was the second Government bulletin to reach Police Headquarters in the last week directing a nation-wide search for an army officer in connection with misappropriation of army funds. The other officer sought is Capt. Jacques Morrell of St. Louis, wanted at Camp Sheridan, Ala., on a charge of having embezzled $18,789 from the camp payroll account.

Disappeared May 16, 1919.

Lieut. Braker, who is 25 years old and was formerly stationed here at Jefferson Barracks, where he served as First Sergeant in the Fifteenth Recruit Company, was in charge of the Quartermaster's office at Camp Holabird May 16, 1919, when $30,000, set aside for the department's civilian payroll, was stolen from the safe, according to the bulletin requesting his arrest.

Braker disappeared from Camp Holabird the same day, the bulletin states, and when he left was carrying two heavy grips. Officers were sent to his home in Trenton, N. J., but failed to find any trace of him there. When it was subsequently learned that six months before his departure he had married Miss Mary Stoehr of St. Louis, an officer was sent here to interview her. She said that she had been deserted by her husband, and in the following April she filed suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion.

The former Mrs. Braker last night refused to discuss her marriage, but admitted that she had been interviewed by an army officer concerning Braker's probable whereabouts. Detectives said that she had promised to assist them in locating the missing man and that if she heard from him would notify them.

Once Served at Barracks Here.

Braker is described in the bulletin as being 5 feet, 8 inches tall, with light hair and fair complexion. He has a bullet scar on his left hand, another on his left arm and tattoo designs on his arms and breast of a flag, eagle, shield, ship, farmer and a sunset. Before his service at Jefferson Barracks he had served as an enlisted man in the Fifth United States Cavalry, and in 1911 and 1912 was with the Carranza army in Mexico.

Capt. Morrell, as has been told, was paymaster and camp finance officer at Camp Sheridan when he disappeared May 31, 1919. He later returned to the camp and surrendered. He was not locked up, but was ordered to his quarters. He remained there four days and then walked away. His mother, Mrs. Sophia Morrell, lives at 1425 Semple avenue She has subleased her home and with other members of her family is spending the summer at Elmhurst, Ill.

LODGE SAYS LEAGUE IS FAILURE

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug 28.—League of Nations was condemned by Senator Lodge, in an address at a mass meeting of the Republican League of Massachusetts, at Braves Field today. "The League, which has got all members in it but one," he said, "has been an absolute and and total failure. It hasn't accomplished anything.

"It may be impossible to ratify with reservations. It may be undesirable to do so, it may be necessary to enlarge and strengthen the reservations, or it may be best to put aside this ill-drawn, ill-conceived League and to take up under the auspices of the United States a new agreement, association or League composed of all the nations of the earth under the leadership of the United States. That is a solution which commends itself, I believe, to Senator Harding."

CHECKS TO RETIRED EMPLOYES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Check number one of the first annuity payments to retired Government employes will go to Albert Ashenden of Los Angeles, for many years employed in the postoffice at Minneapolis. He heads the list of 1000 retired employes to whom checks will be mailed next Wednesday, 250 of the checks being sent to various parts of the country and the remainder going to Washington residents. One check will go to Ireland, its recipient now being on his way back to the "old country" after many years in the Government service.

Cox Receives Ovation From Holiday Crowd in New York

Governor Asserts That if League Does Not Become a Fact Europe Will Be Unable to Pay Debts.

Address Is Curtailed.

Many conditions caused Gov. Cox to curtail his address at Gravesend. Arriving there from the Democratic luncheon, after a whirlwind automobile ride of 16 miles through streets swept clean of all traffic, nearly an hour late, the Governor was forced to compete with popular attractions of the police games. Airplanes roared over his head, forcing him to stop frequently, and a sound-amplifying device over the speakers' stand gave his voice a raucous tone and also apparently failed to carry it to the vast crowd which was waiting for the field events. After urging world peace and discussing industrial and Americanization problems briefly, the Governor gave up.

"I am just as anxious as you are," he said to the crowd, "to see the athletic contests that are awaiting us. I hope you sense my discomfiture as I stand between this great crowd and the athletic treat which now awaits you, and I will show you that I am sensible of the proprieties by closing my address, in view of the fact that we arrived here one hour late."

The Governor remained for an hour, watching and applauding the athletic contests of the policemen, whom he praised in his address for their public service as the nearest representatives of government to millions of persons. In his tribute to the "splendid manhood" of the New York policemen, he declared them the "finest type of Americans."

League Issue Emphasized.

The league issue was emphasized by the Governor as paramount in the campaign to be waged, he said, between champions of progress and reaction.

"This is a great fight," he said, "for a great principle, and a fight which we will know to be a victorious fight."

Pleas for industrial peace also were made by the Governor in his address at the Democratic luncheon and at Gravesend.

"We cannot have national tranquility," he said at Gravesend, "unless we have community tranquility. Public opinion has always settled industrial controversies and public opinion always will."

The Governor also, at the luncheon, gave what he termed "a word to business men." Many, he said, "are helping to install an administration which intends to scrap the League of Nations."

"If the league does not become a thing in fact," the candidate continued, "and a vital organization in the affairs of the world, it is my judgment that not a single European nation will ever be able to pay its national debt, and, if that is not paid, then what becomes of fiscal conditions overseas? The financial stability of the world depends upon the adoption of the League of Nations, and yet thousands of the very men who, above all others, are interested in that, are attempting to install an administration which intends to scrap the league. But it will not succeed."

Gov. Cox also added that public confidence must be given to industrial readjustments and, he said, "millions of dollars are being contributed in order to guarantee an unfair adjustment."

"Golden Rule" His Motto.

"I know men," he asserted, "that are making contributions for the purpose of using the bayonet to settle industrial difficulties. Nothing could be more dangerous than that. That is building a Bolshevik factory. Stop, look and listen, you business men."

Gov. Cox said he proposed to use the "golden rule" in settling industrial disputes. He also promised to remove war taxes unjustified during times of peace.

In addition to his addresses, the Governor met hundreds of persons at several informal receptions. He marched several blocks at the head of a procession down Fifth avenue to the luncheon, waving to thousands along the line.

The Governor, in his Democratic club speech, declared the Republican leadership "has simply gone mad." Speaking of Republican campaign funds, he said:

"Oligarchy's Strangle Hold"

"If it were not that the documents presented came from the very inside of Republican headquarters, then the country might look with some doubt on the whole thing, for the simple reason that it is difficult to believe that political generals can ever be so bold, brazen, or foolish. And yet the very thing that has just been exposed is simply a repetition of the follies of the year.

"When the senatorial oligarchy stood out in the way of peace, when it held the civilization of the world in a strangle hold at a time when aid should have been given to staggering nations just out of war, men looked at each other and asked the question: 'How can such a thing be done even in the name of politics?'

"When the senatorial group, with an inconsistency that persisted, moved from one contention to another, the same query ran through the communities of the land.

"When they unblushingly selected a leader of the oligarchy, Senator Lodge, to sound the keynote, McKinley, Lincoln and Roosevelt politicians shook their heads.

"At 2:11 in the Morning."

"When at 2:11 in the morning in a hotel room at Chicago, the senatorial crowd selected one of its number to be the candidate of the party, the rank and file was appalled.

"But, when the 'money digging' campaign started with an organization that swept the country and reached into every state and county, when open relations with business became an affair of partisan pride, then it became apparent to all that the group which has run away with the affairs of the Republican party, after having departed from the idealism of its historic days, has simply gone mad."

At Gravesend Gov. Cox, referring to the many racial elements which go to make up the City of New York, said:

"It is the most composite assembly of peoples anywhere in the world and notwithstanding that they are familiar with the customs of other countries, there is something in the American atmosphere which makes possible what would be impossible elsewhere. They are abiding together in compliance with our laws.

"When the house of the world's civilization is put in order and international affairs become tranquil, we must then realize the importance of enlarging the work of Americanization in teaching the hundreds of thousands our language, enabling them to assimilate our ideals and to make of America what the Almighty intended, the haven for oppressed peoples from everywhere, and the building place of institutions that will be a guide and an inspiration to other nations."

In paying tribute to the police in his audience, the Governor declared that he had often lost patience with critics of police.

"There is no finer type of man than the American 'copper,' who maintains a clear head and a clean honor," said the Governor.

Abuse of the President.

In his addresses Gov. Cox chastised the "senatorial oligarchy" frequently and declared its "abuse" had been directed at President Wilson.

"When the President was stricken low, as clearly a victim of the war as the soldier who fell in a trench," said the Governor, "their abuse entered the sickroom. With the President of the United States in the very shadow of death himself, it is a notorious fact that cloakroom gossip was a chuckling and gleeful affair. Never in all our history was anything more shockingly unkind."

Gov. Cox charged that, instead of making the presidential campaign a "pure thing," Republicans had procured large sums of money in order to stir up racial groups and keep alive emotions aroused by the war.

"Instead of helping to allay the affairs of world civilization, they sought to bring confusion into the communities of America," said Gov. Cox, "to multiply, in short, the woes of mankind and charged it all to the administration in power, in order that the spoils of office might be gained.

"It is high time that this sort of thing was exposed and it shall be my first duty, until Nov. 2, to keep the senatorial oligarchy in the view and thought of the nation."

Roosevelt Warns Against "Backward" Policy of Republicans.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 28.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, devoted considerable time in an address here tonight in discussing what he declared was "the Republican slush fund," declaring that Senator Harding should discharge Will H. Hays and Fred W. Upham, the National chairman and treasurer, respectively, of the Republican party.

Roosevelt's address here, given in the city auditorium, closed a busy day in which he carried the Democratic campaign into several Nebraska cities, including North Platte, Grand Island, Columbus and Fremont, where he delivered short addresses while enroute to Omaha.

"All day yesterday and today in coming through Wyoming and Nebraska," he declared, "I have heard expressions of indignation.

"This morning I read the lame answers by Treasurer Upham and Will Hays. One of them says there is an important distinction between a quota and a budget. The other makes denial by saying that Governor Cox and I dream in millions. Such a defense would fail before any jury.

"But I want to stress one thing in particular, we are again face to face with a big national moral issue. We have had campaigns in the past where money was spent like water. We had hoped that as a nation we were getting away from that degrading and dangerous evil in our national life.

"But this year we find that it has sprung up anew to threaten us, beginning only a short time ago with the exposure in the conviction of Senator Newberry.

In an address to a crowd at a railway station at Grand Island Roosevelt devoted most of his attention to the proposition that the Democratic party this year offered the most progressive program presented to the American electorate, and that the disclosures of Gov. Cox with reference to campaign expenditures would demonstrate to the people that the Republican party's success would mean going backward and that the administration of the country's affairs would be placed largely in the hands of a selfish few.

Special stress was made on the point that "Germany herself looked forward to the League of Nations for reconstruction and justice, and it was America's high duty to aid the German people themselves, now that the war was over, as well as to aid other European nations."

Harding Declares League a Failure, Offers New Plan

Senator Declares He Believes Humanity Would Welcome International Association for Conference.

described it as "an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justiciable questions this country, in common with all the nations, would be both willing and able to uphold." This sort of organization, he said, was in broad contrast to the council of the Versailles league, whose whole authority would be founded on force.

In the course of his speech the Senator also reiterated his belief that it was for American rights primarily and not to form a peace association that the nation went into the war. He quoted from his own speech closing Senate debate on the war resolution, in which he said he wanted war "not for the allies of Europe, not precisely a war for civilization, but a war that speaks for the majesty of a people resolved to wage a conflict for the maintenance of their rights and the preservation of the covenant inherited from their fathers.

"It is for that same guaranty of nationality that I stand today," continued the nominee, "and shall continue to stand inflexibly so long as I shall be permitted to live. American boys are not born to be made the sacrifices of war except when it is clearly and unmistagably in defense of their country."

The speech was delivered to a delegation of more than 300 members of the Harding Club of Indianapolis and to a smaller group from Minnesota. Many times the nominee was interrupted by cheers as he answered directly the league arguments of Gov. Cox, the Democratic nominee, and laid down the details of his own league policy.

Hays With Delegation.

Will H. Hays, the Republican national chairman, and Senator Harry S. New, a former chairman, now head of the party's speakers' bureau, headed the Indiana delegation, and tonight Hays issued a statement declaring that Senator Harding "cut an unfaltering way straight through the tangle of the League of Nations into which the bungling of the Democratic administration has led the country, and into which the program of the Wilson-Cox alliance would keep us endless."

"Senator Harding has pointed the path," the statement said. "He is the masterly leader. He has spoken without truculence to prejudice. His voice now leads the statesmanship of America."

A statement also was issued here by Harry M. Daugherty, a member of the Executive Campaign Committee, asserting that the speech "will be recognized hereafter, and for a long time hereafter, as the great pronouncement of the campaign."

The text of the speech follows in part:

"Let us suppose the Senate had ratified the peace treaty containing the league covenant as submitted to it by the President in July of last year. Before this day we would have been called upon to fulfill the obligations which we had assumed under article 10 of the league covenant to preserve the territorial integrity of Poland as against external aggression.

"The council of the League of Nations would have reasoned, and reasoned correctly, that the United States could furnish the munitions and, if necessary, the men to withstand the hordes advancing from Russia far more easily than could the exhausted nations of Europe. What would of necessity have to result? Nothing necessarily, we are glibly informed, since only the Congress can declare war, and the Congress might reject the appeal of the executive. But would the Congress do that? Could the Congress do that without staining indelibly the honor of the nation?

Congress Could Not "Welch."

"The people would never permit the repudiation of a debt of honor. No Congress would ever dare make this nation appear as a welcher, as it would appear and would be in such an event before the eyes of the world.

"For myself I yield to no man in willingness, aye, in eagerness, to render the greatest conceivable assistance to the stricken peoples of Europe. I include all of them and speak with a genuinely sympathetic heart, whether it is to mention devastated France, or sorely tried Italy, or nobly struggling Poland, or distracted and misguided Russia, or gallant little Belgium, or pitiably deceived Austria or the ruthless invader, Germany, which brought disaster to her misguided people.

"It was with that feeling of sympathy and desire to serve, that most reluctantly and with grave misgivings, as I announced at the time, that I voted to accept the League covenant with reservations designed to preserve our essential liberty of action. The record is made and under the same conditions confronted by the same alternative, I should vote now as I voted then.

Conditions Have Changed.

"But the conditions have changed. Experience has brought enlightenment. We know now that the League constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventive of wars. It is so obviously impotent it has not even been tried. It could not survive a single test. The original league, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the possibility of restoration.

"Now, it may appear to you that I have been speaking chiefly in the negative. I make the admission. What is more, I might continue to do so almost indefinitely without disadvantage to our cause. So many things have been done by the present expiring administration that no power on earth could induce me to do, that I cannot even attempt to recount them. I may remark casually, however, that if I should be, as I fully expect to be, elected President of this just and honorable republic, I will not empower an assistant Secretary of the Navy to draft a constitution for helpless neighbors in the West Indies and jam it down their throats at the point of bayonets, borne by United States marines. Nor will I misuse the power of the executive to cover with a veil of secrecy repeated acts of unwarranted interferences in domestic affairs of the little republics of the Western Hemisphere.

Makes Reference to Mexico.

"On the other hand, I will not or shall not, as you prefer, submit to any wrong to any American citizen, with respect to either his life or property by any government. This statement is made in all solemnity, with enmity for none and friendship for all. If it particularly applies to Mexico, the application has been directed by the robbery and murder of hundreds of our own people in that unhappy country.

"This admonition is not directed exclusively toward our next-door neighbor, to whom we would gladly hold forth a helping hand. It is intended for a plain notice to every government on the face of the earth that the entire resources of this nation are pledged to maintain the sacredness of American lives and the just protection of American properties.

"The line of demarcation between our attitude and that of our political opponents is perfectly plain. The President has made his position clear by his acts no less than by his words. He still holds article 10 to be the heart of the covenant. So does the Democratic platform. So does the Democratic nominee. To assume that the nominee would accept the reservations rejected by the President and denounced by the party platform is to impugn his integrity.

Difference Most Vital.

"For myself, I do not question for a moment the truth of what the Democratic nominee says on this subject. He has flatly said 'he was in favor of going in' on the basis announced by the President. I am not. That is the whole difference between us, but it is a most vital one, because it involves the disparity between a world court of justice supplemented by a world association for conference on the one hand, and the council of the league on the other.

"The one is a judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles of law administered without passion or prejudice. The other is an association of diplomats and politicians whose determinations are sure to be influenced by considerations of expediency and national selfishness.

"There are distinctly two types of international relationship. One is an offensive and defensive alliance of great Powers, like that created at Versailles, to impose their will upon the helpless peoples of the world. I am opposed to such a scheme as that. I am opposed to the very thought of our republic becoming a party to such a great outrage upon peoples who have as good a right to seek their political freedom as we had in 1776.

Society of Free Nations.

"The other type is a society of free nations, or an association of free nations, or a league of free nations, animated by considerations of right and justice, instead of might and self-interest, and not merely proclaimed an agency in pursuit of peace, but so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility.

"Such an association I favor with all my heart.

"This is proposing no new things. This country is already a member of such a society—the Hague tribunal, which unlike the League of Versailles, is still functioning, and within a few weeks will resume its committee sessions under the chairmanship of an American representative.

"In that body, we have the framework of a real effective instrumentality of enduring peace. The fact that the tribunal did not prevent the great war is, of course, manifest, but the cause of the failure is no less apparent. Germany, already secretly determined upon a ruthless invasion, was able to prevent the adoption of measures which might have proved effectual. The condition now is wholly different. Not only Germany, but the entire world has profited to the extent of an awful object lesson. This makes vastly easier the task of so strengthening the Hague tribunal as to render its just decrees either acceptable or enforceable.

"It is not uncommon for the advocates of the league of Versailles to contrast unfavorably the Hague tribunal upon the ground that the tribunal 'lacks teeth.' Very well, then, let's put 'teeth' into it. If, in the failed league of Versailles there can be found machinery which the tribunal can use properly and advantageously, by all means let it be appropriated.

"I would go even further. I would take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad from both organizations. This statement is broad enough to include the suggestion that if the league has been so entwined and interwoven into the peace of Europe that its good must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent, then it can be amended or revised so that we may still have a remnant of world aspirations in 1918.

World Court Is Favored.

"I believe humanity would welcome the creation of an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justiciable questions, this country in common with all nations would be both willing and able to uphold. The decision of such a court or the recommendation of such a conference could be accepted without sacrificing on our part or asking any other Power to sacrifice one iota of its nationality.

"The Democratic nominee has spoken about America abandoning her associates in war and deserting the allied nations in establishing the league of Versailles. I do not think it longer necessary to challenge that statement or pass further opinion upon the unfortunate league. It has already been abandoned by Europe, which had gone so far as to accept it by formal agreement in treaty.

"Listen to the wise and far seeing, former British Ambassador, who was not permitted to present his credentials to our executive. 'As long,' said Viscount Grey, hardly a month ago, 'as long as the richest, most powerful, the greatest, both for population and territory, of the civilized countries of the world stands outside the league, the league will be unable to fulfill its destiny. To put it in quite plain terms, the Americans must be told that if they will only join the league they can practically name their own terms.'

"Undoubtedly that is the fact. I ask: 'Is there any good reason why we should not avail ourselves of this privilege? I do not mean in any arrogant, or domineering, or patronizing, or selfish way, but simply as a matter of fairness and right to our own people.

"Viscount Grey continues:

"'The Americans should be entrusted with the task of drafting a reconstruction scheme.' Then he suggests further that 'a committee of the Senate could draw up suggestions for the reconstruction of the league.'

"Frankly, I value that suggestion very highly. It comprehends substantially what I would propose to do if elected President. I do not mean precisely that. It would be clearly unwise to undertake specific suggestions or to attempt to pass upon suggestions now. What is in my mind is the wisdom of calling into real conference the ablest and most experienced minds of this country from whatever walks of life they may be derived, and without regard to party affiliation, to formulate a definite, practical plan along the lines already indicated for the consideration of the controlling foreign Powers.

"The objection that this course would involve the reconvening of the entire convention may be regarded as a very slight one. The acceptance of our proposals by the few principal nations would undoubtedly be followed promptly by the acceptance on the part of the minor members of the alliance.

Does Not Fear Delay.

"There would be no material delay. Insofar as I could do so, without disregarding the proprieties, I should give very earnest and practically undivided attention to this very vital subject from the day of my election and I should ask others to do likewise as a matter of public and patriotic duty.

"Does someone say that I ought to be more specific? One cannot be, with any sense of certainty. No one can foresee the exact conditions by which our country will be confronted seven months hence. World opinion and our own opinion have been changing very rapidly in the past few months.

"I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany. In view of the simple fact that the allied powers with whom we were associated in the war have already formally concluded their peace, the passage of a peace resolution by Congress would merely give formal recognition to an obvious fact.

"During the six years of my service in Washington I have co-operated quite insistently with my colleagues in maintaining the prerogatives of the Senate as defined by the Constitution. In doing so, I felt that I was only performing my duty under my oath of office. Nevertheless, justly or unjustly, in common with others, I have been subjected to more or less criticism, which, of course, I have no thought of resenting.

Shall Guard Precedent.

"The point which I have in mind is, that if all goes well, on the fourth of March next I shall cease to be Senator and almost as surely shall become the President. What I wish, in passing, to call to your attention to is that as a Senator I have established for myself a precedent and you may rest assured that I shall guard with equal firmness, insistence and jealousy the prerogatives of the executive, who is perhaps more distinctly and personally responsible than any other official directly to the whole American people.

"Let us take stock for a moment of America in the world, aye, and of America at home. Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling. Steady America. Our moral leadership was lost when ambition sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited autocracy upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy. My chief aspiration, my countrymen, if clothed with power, will be to regain that lost leadership, not for myself, not even for my party, though honoring and trusting it as I do, but for my country."

GOV. COOLIDGE SPEAKS AT BOSTON MEETING

Says Country Is Weary of and Disgusted With All Doctrinaires and Visionaries.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The Democrats at the San Francisco convention meant to indorse the administration in their platform, and repudiate it in the nominee, but by a strange turn of fate failed in the accomplishment of their purpose, and with that failure went whatever chance there was of Democratic success, Gov. Coolidge, Republican nominee for Vice President, asserted in a speech at a mass meeting of the Republican League of Massachusetts at Braves Field today.

He said it was recognized at San Francisco that the country had been brought by the management of its foreign affairs into contempt everywhere, and that the people were tired of the situation, but that subsequent statements of the President and Gov. Cox, and Secretary Roosevelt's declaration that "their splendid accord and their high purpose are an inspiration," left no doubt in the public mind that they were in complete agreement on the League of Nations issue.

What Statement Means.

"This," said Gov. Coolidge, "has put into form the fatal assurance that what the last administration has been and is, the next one, if sucessful, purposes to be.

"Every friend of the League of Nations knows that to insist on its adoption in the form originally submitted to the senate by the President, unmodified and without reservations that limit—in short, to insist on what the administration insists on, means the defeat of the League entirely and completely. Even Democratic Senators themselves would defeat it in that form. But suppose some miracle should provide a Senate willing to ratify the League as submitted to the Senate by the President. In that case those who oppose Article Ten, and in general demand an Americanized treaty cannot support for President a candidate who is pledged to a continuation of the policy of the present administration."

Gov. Coolidge said that, while the issues of the present campaign have not yet been fully developed, the conclusion appears unmistakable that the country "is not only weary of but completely exhausted by and disgusted with all doctrinaires and all visionaries. "It is determined to seek restoration not by deserting its ideals but by turning to the substantial and practical. There is everywhere an unyielding determination that America must be restored, that her traditions must be re-established and her purposes reconstructed."

Our downfall, he continued, began in Mexico, where "in failure to protect Americans, in failure to assist Mexicans, our country stands dishonored." Referring to American entrance into the World War, he said "what was happening to our citizens then lawfully on the seas is all too well known. What other countries thought of us during that period and what terrible sacrifices that opinion finally brought to us as an inevitable result, cannot now be disputed.

Quotes House on Treaty.

"The time came for the making of peace. What came after the terms of the armistice agreed to on Nov. 11, 1918? No less an authority than Col. House says peace could have been agreed upon by Christmas, a peace with the safeguarding guarantees of established facts that would have been acceptable to our associates and left to more mature deliberations the question of a league to make the peace of the world more secure. Contrary to what is now understood to have been European desire, the league and the peace were inseparably bound together that the great longing for peace might force unmodified the ratification of the league."

BOY RESPONSIBLE FOR STORY OF BLEEDING IMAGES IN IRELAND

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

DUBLIN, Aug 28—In South Ireland, where the country is terrorized by racing lorries bristling with English bayonets, the state of mind of the whole population is so nearly hysterical it has paid more than the usual attention to the supposed miraculous bleeding of the religious images in a house near Templemore, and the simple people are traveling miles to see it.

The Catholic clergy, both here and in Templemore, do not admit that anything miraculous has occurred, but are discreetly silent and ignore the occurrence. Neither they nor the newspapers care to say anything against the event which has aroused such simple faith, but they show what they think by their reticence.

James Walsh, a 16-year-old boy, who was a former student for the priesthood, lives in Curraheen, six miles frou Templemore. Last week when Templemore was in a state of hysteria, fearing military retaliation for an attack on the local police, he went to see his uncle, Dwan, a shopkeeper in Templemore, with a story of miraculous happenings, and brought blood-stained images to prove it. It was said he had a vision, and then marked a sacred heart on the floor, and the water appeared as from a spring. And that the images in the house began bleeding from the heart and mouth, and with a clatter left their pedestals and grouped around the spot on the floor. He took them to the house of his uncle, who informed the neighbors. The stories went about rapidly.

Several invalids went to the scene and several went away much better than when they arrived. All week streams of people have been visiting Templemore to see the blood-stained images. Priests retain their reserve and stories of miraculous cures are dying out. The Dublin newspapers have ignored the story as well.

Train Kills O'Fallon (Mo.) Woman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

O'FALLON, Mo., Aug. 28.—Mrs. George Waters, about 45 years old, was killed by a Wabash train at Montgomery, just west of here, this afternoon. She had started to cross the track near the depot when the train struck her. The husband and one son survive her.

IRISH LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE INEFFECTIVE

Walkout in Behalf of Mayor of Cork Fails to Tie Up British Ships.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—British steamship lines apparently won a victory today over the 2000 or more longshoremen who yesterday sought to tie up vessels flying the British flag by going out on a sudden strike which they declared would continue until Archbishop Mannis is allowed on Irish soil and Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, is released from prison. All but one of the big British liners scheduled to sail today made their departure, and the exception, the Cunard liner Pannonia, will leave tomorrow morning, officials announced.

Most of the firemen of the Pannonia walked out in sympathy with the strikers, and the Cunard Line could not readily replace them. The crews of other vessels remained virtually intact.

Hundreds of longshoremen who quit work yesterday returned to their labors on the docks today with the encouragement of union officials, who announced they deeply regretted the unexpected walkout, coming just before new wage demands are to be presented.

At the White Star Line docks, where the strike had its inception, no longshoremen reported, and there was little activity in the holds of the vessels scheduled to depart next week.

Most of the ships were late in getting away today, the loading of baggage in some cases being done by the office force of the steamship line, with anxious passengers occasionally lending a hand.

The White Star liner Celtic departed at 2 o'clock, two hours after the prompt scheduled departure of two American steamships, St. Paul and Finland. The Gothland, a Belgian vessel which longshoremen had quit loading Friday, also pulled into the stream early in the afternoon. The mammoth Cunard liner Aquitania, with Prince Carol of Rumania aboard for a voyage homeward after going around the world, left her moorings at 4:45 o'clock, and 20 minutes later, the White Star liner Olympic followed in her wake. These two ocean greyhounds are expected to be near one another all the way to Southampton, and a possible transatlantic speed record is looked for by marine observers.

There were no disorders along the water front today, although longshoremen continually thronged corners while women pickets and Irish orators held forth.

Women Supporting Irish in U. S. Plan Boycott of British Firms.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A nation-wide boycott of British controlled concerns and products in the United States is the next move planned by the American women pickets for the enforcement of American war aims, one of the organizations working for Irish independence, according to Mrs. Gertrude Corliss, director of the association. She stated that the effort to tie up British shipping in New York was but a step in the program to exercise economic pressure against England in this country.

Claiming that $15,000,000,000 of British insurance funds, marine, plate glass, fire and accident, are invested in subways, banks and various public institutions, Mrs. Corliss declared the boycott would be directed at these.

In a letter to Ambassador Davis, signed by Mrs. Corliss, Gertrude B. Kelly, chairman; Mary A. Keenan, treasurer, and Kathleen M. A. Brennan, publicity manager, request was made that he inform the British Government that, unless it reelases Mayor MacSweney, of Cork, and withdraws the troops from Ireland, "the boycott initiated against British ships will be carried to every nook and cranny of the United States."

"The military forces that England is using in Ireland," the letter concludes, "will be met by an economic force in the United States."

Mrs. Corliss declared Secretary Colby would not promise to make an appeal to England in behalf of the Lord Mayor of Cork.

"The only thing I can do is to take the matter under advisement," he is quoted by Mrs. Corliss as saying.

"I said," she added, "I shall take that as a negation."

The organization is distributing millions of pamphlets urging a boycott on England.

NEGROES IN 17TH WARD ADVISED NOT TO REGISTER

J. C. McCoy Tells Them if Names Are Not on Books Their Votes Cannot Be Fraudulently Counted.

MEETING IN PROTEST AGAINST SLATER

Committee Named to Call on Mayor and Demand He Use His Influence to Oust Committeeman.

Joseph C. McCoy, former secretary of the Republican State Committee, and leader of the opposition to Frank M. Slater, Republican City Committeeman in the Seventeenth Ward, last night at an anti-Slater meeting of the Seventeenth Ward Republican Club at 3137 Pine street, called public attention to a rumor that a deal had been made by which a portion of the St. Louis Republican organization in St. Louis would endeavor to defeat Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor.

Since a few days after the primary, Aug. 3, Republicans have been discussing the rumors of a Republican opposition to Hyde, which, according to the story, is based upon a belief that if Hyde is elected Governor, City Collector Edmond Koeln and Edward W. Foristel will be in control of police and election affairs in St. Louis, and Republicans not affiliated with the Koeln-Foristel faction will be eliminated from political influence.

Foristel Openly for Hyde.

Foristel openly supported Hyde, while Koeln seemingly remained neutral on the governorship. It was known, however, that all of the Koeln organization was aiding Hyde. Knowledge of practical politics led politicians to the theory that Hyde, being unfamiliar with St. Louis affairs, would rely upon the advice of his supporters here, and that that fact would make Koeln and Foristel the politicians who would direct state affairs so far as they concerned St. Louis.

Politicians who have been talking the rumored deal among themselves have argued in an effort to substantiate their position that supporters of E. E. E. McJimsey for governor could hope for no political power in police and election matters if Hyde was elected, and that they would be in a much better position politically if a Democrat was elected governor.

McCoy, speaking on the subject of election frauds in the Seventeenth ward, of which he said Slater had been the beneficiary in the election for Public Administrator four years ago, and again this year in the election of committeeman, said:

"Four years ago there were frauds in the Seventeenth ward. A Democratic candidate for Governor was the beneficiary of these frauds in the fall election, and a Republican candidate for Mayor was the beneficiary in the city election the following spring.

"I ask if history is to repeat itself. Is a Democratic candidate for Governor to be the beneficiary this fall, and a Republican next spring?

"I cannot state it as a fact because I don't know. I can only ask the question."

Cites Newell-Slater Contest.

McCoy called attention to the contest filed by James P. Newell against Slater for the office of Public Administrator in 1916, a contest which Newell won on the recount of ballots, which showed fraud in Seventeenth Ward precincts.

He said that the Board of Election Commissioners, notwithstanding this showing of fraud, had reappointed as judges and clerks of election men recommended by Slater, and that in a number of precincts these men were the ones who served at the time fraud was committed. He insisted that all of Slater's recommendations should have been rejected.

He said that in the Second precinct there were 119 votes, all, or with very few exceptions, were votes of negroes. Of these, 118 were counted for Slater for committeeman, notwithstanding the fact that Ernest Patillo, a negro, was a candidate against Slater, and the further fact that Patillo's name was the only one printed on the ballot for committeeman, and to vote for Slater it was necessary for the voter to scratch Patillo's name and write in Slater's name.

McCoy declared that nobody would believe that 118 negros scratched the name of the negro candidate and wrote in the name of the white candidate, and that only one negro in the precinct voted for Patillo.

Other charges of fraud in other precincts were made.

McCoy told his audience, which largely was of negroes, that they had been defrauded; that their ballots were not counted as cast, and that they had been disfranchised by Republican election officials. He declared that they could force regonnition and the counting of their ballots by refusing to register.

Argument Against Registering.

"There are 50,000 negro voters, men and women, in St. Louis," he said. "If your names are on the registration books you can be counted fraudulently by dishonest election officials. If your names are not on the books, you cannot be counted against yourselves as you have been.

"Now, the thing to do is to go to Mayor Kiel and tell him that Slater must be ousted from the committee. You can prevent him from evading the issue, because you know that Slater's brother, Joseph, has a good job in the street department, and all that the Mayor has to do is to tell Joe Slater that if his brother does not step out, he will be separated from the city payroll. That will work."

After much debate a resolution was adopted, appointing a committee to call upon the Mayor to demand that he get Slater off the committee, and informing him that if he did not do so the negroes would not register and the Republican ticket would thus be deprived of thousands of votes.

Supporting the resolution, McCoy declared that without the negro vote the Republicans could not carry St. Louis, and that if the Republicans realized the negroes meant business Slater would be forced to resign.

Committee to Visit Mayor.

The Committee appointed to visit the Mayor was McCoy, T. J. Wolfley, Dr. C. M. Powell, Rev. B. F. Abbott, William H. Robinson, Mrs. R. P. Purdeau, L. S. Williams, A. W. Lloyd and Walter Lowe. They were instructed that if the Mayor did not comply with their demand that they should send out the appeal to negroes to refuse to register.

"If we cannot get a square deal from the Republicans," Patillo said. "If we can't have our ballots counted honestly by Republicans, then we will see that there are no Republican officials counted in."

The club also adopted a demand on the State and city Republican committees, Senator and Hyde that they use their influence to remove Slater from the city committee.

POLES CONFER TODAY AT BREST-LITOVSK ON PEACE

Negotiations With Russians to Be Transferred From Minsk; Bolsheviki Reported Attacking.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—A special dispatch to Die Post from its Koenigsberg correspondent says that the Bolsheviki have unexpectedly resumed attacking. The correspondent says new detachments of the Petrograd Guards are advancing on Lomza. He states that Gen. Budenny, Bolshevik cavalry commander is still in active command.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—Prince Sapieha, Polish Foreign Minister, left here this afternoon for Brest-Litovsk, where, on Sunday, he will confer with M. Dombski, head of the Polish delegation at Minsk. Word reached the Foreign Office today that M. Dombski had passed through Bolshevik lines and had been received by the Poles. Prince Sapieha and M. Dombski were both expected to reach Brest-Litovsk late tonight.

According to word reaching Warsaw, the Polish peace delegates at Minsk are virtually prisoners and are looked upon as spies. In addition to not getting enough to eat, it is declared that the food they receive does not suit their taste. However, their chief complaint is the lack of communication.

This has interfered with negotiations from the Polish viewpoint, since the beginning. Wireless messages take from two to five days in reaching Warsaw by way of Moscow. In addition, the Poles say they are experiencing repeated setbacks with the courier service between Warsaw and Minsk, some of the couriers having been turned back although they carried credentials, and, according to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, complied in every way with the Soviet agreement.

The date and place for the continuance of the conference will be announced within a few days or soon after Prince Sapieha's return from Brest-Litovsk.

The Brest-Litovsk conference will have to do with the progress of the Minsk negotiations, of which Warsaw professes to have no knowledge, owing to the difficulties of communication.

The American note to Poland relating to the American views concerning any Polish advance beyond the ethnological frontier has been received, but there is no announcement as to when Poland will reply. In diplomatic circles the note is considered in line with the American policy as set forth in Secretary Colby's note to Italy, of which the delegates at Minsk had been informed. Every day the Minsk conference increases the hope in diplomatic circles that it may eventually lead to peace, or at least an armistice.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—The Russo-Polish negotiations will be shifted from Minsk, the Soviets and Poles having agreed to a transfer. The Poles demand that the negotations be held in Riga, Letvia, while M. Tchitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, favors some town in Esthonia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Russo-Polish peace negotiations at Minsk were continued Aug. 25, says a wireless dispatch from Moscow today. The delegates discussed the Russian terms, which the Poles declared unacceptable.

The Poles, according to the wireless, relied chiefly on the recent Polish military victories. A member of the Russo-Ukrainian delegation stated there was no Polish basis for peace, but merely a rejection of the Russian terms. He added:

"Our proposals are not final, as we are willing to make peace. We do not qualify our policy by the condition or things on the various fronts, as for us this war is a war to obtain peace."

The negotiations are continuing, the wireless states.

Poles Treated Well After Entering Red Line for Conference.

MINSK, Soviet Russia, Aug. 20.—(From Associated Press Staff Correspondent With Armistice Commission via Soviet Wireless to Moscow, Aug. 28.)—The Polish peace delegates while on their way to Minsk to confer with the representatives of Soviet Russia were picturesquely received after crossing the Russian lines.

The Poles were escorted along the highway in Soviet automobiles of American make, containing fantastically garbed guards. The guards wore black leather uniforms and high, domelike, pointed caps with fur flaps, each with a large red cockade. This uniform has been adopted by the guard of Leon Trotzky, the Soviet Minister of War and Marine and it is eventually intended to clothe the whole army thus.

All the towns passed on the way to Minsk had already been Sovietized, the citizens wearing red arm bands and carrying rifles. They were taking up police duties and aiding the Soviet soldiers. The latter were quiet and friendly with the peasants, who told the correspondent there was no looting or other violence and that women received every consideration.

The wealthier elements complained that goods requisitioned were not paid for, while the Soviets reimbursed the peasants for everything taken. The Russians showed the utmost courtesy to the Polish delegates, making the trip as comfortable as possible, but the Poles were reserved toward the Russians.

Wrangel-Cossack Alliance Improves Position of Former.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The alliance between Gen. Wrangel and the Kuban and Don Cossacks not only has materially improved the strategic position of the anti-Bolshevist forces in South Russia, according to official advices received here today, but also has seriously threatended the chief economic resources of the Soviet Government.

The Donetz coal basin, main coal supply of the Moscow Government, is located in the Don Cossacks country, and is threatened by Gen. Wrangel's advance, while the oil and manganese supplies of the Bolsheviki must pass from the Caucasus through the Kuban country, the report says.

Despite a gap of 100 miles between the left flank of Wrangel's army and the Rumanian frontier, west of Odessa, capture of the Donetz coal basin can be accomplished, the report contended. Should Wrangel, however, desire to press his advantage to Moscow, he could only do so by exposing his left flank to attack from the Ukraine.

No better base for operations against Northwestern Russia might have been chosen, in the opinion of military experts, than that of the Crimea, selected by Wrangel. Its value lies, it is pointed out, in the fact that it is almost a detached island from the continent of Europe, secure against any force, no matter how powerful, attacking from the north.

U. S. Satisfied With Poles' Attitude; Our Position Outlined.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The United States, according to the view expressed today by a high official of the Government, will not insist upon specific statements regarding Poland's intentions in its struggle with Bolshevik Russia. This Government is satisfied, it was said, with Poland's general denial of imperialistic aims, and the general statement that Poland did not seek territorial aggression.

It was stated authoritatively that the position of the United States was "midway between those taken by France and Great Britain." The British endeavor to prevent the Poles from entering Russia, even for military expediency, does not meet wholly with the approval of the United States, according to this official view. On the other hand, it was declared that the willingness of France that Poland should acquire additional territory beyond the so-called ethnographic line, was not in accord with the position of the United States.

The dispatching of the American armored cruiser Pittsburg to Danzig was taken solely with a view to the protection of American lives, property and rights, officials said. They pointed out that this Government had no intention of becoming involved in any military operation at Danzig, and was not fearful that any serious situation would arise to call for the use of allied force there.

Lloyd George Does Not Like Tone of Soviet Note.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The following dispatch from Lucerne was received by the London Times:

"Premier Lloyd George has received the Soviet note and the impression created by it is not a satisfactory one. The tone of the communication is considered to verge on studied arrogance. The note will be the subject of an exchange of views between London, Paris and Rome.

"It is expected that Premier Lloyd George will remain here another week."

CLAIM FOR WIDOW'S DOWER PRESENTED BY MRS. FORSTER

Proceedings Filed for Legal One-Half of Estate Left by Her Late Husband to His Two Sisters.

PROPERTY VALUE IS SET AT $74,633

Ante-Nuptial Pact, That Neither Would Seek Private Fortune of Other, Is Held Not Binding.

Mrs. Philippine L. Forster, widow of Dr. Otto E. Forster, has filed a claim in the Probate Court for a widow's dower of one-half of the estate of her husband, although his will, filed shortly after his death last May, recited that in view of an ante-nuptial agreement between them that neither would lay claim to the private fortune of the other, he bequeathed his entire estate to his two sisters, Mrs. Henry Schwarz and Mrs. Herman Overstolz.

An inventory, filed yesterday, shows he possessed personal property valued at $74,633, and realty consisting of one parcel in Cape Girardeau, Mo., and another in Cameron County, Tex. Most of the personal estate consists of notes and Liberty Bonds.

No Controversy Expected.

Julius T. Muench, attorney for the executor, Herman C. Stifel, a brother-in-law of the testator, said yesterday that he did not look for a controversy growing out of Mrs. Forster's claim. Whatever agreement existed between Dr. Forster and his wife, the attorney said, was an oral one, and was not binding. According to the attorney, an ante-nuptial agreement to be legal must be in writing and filed for record.

Dr. Forster lived at the St. Regis apartments, King's Highway and Lindell boulevard, but had been a patient at Barnes Hispital several months before his death. His will was made while he was in the hospital.

Widow of Former Mayor.

Mrs. Forster was the widow of former Mayor Henry Overstolz at the time of her marriage to Dr. Forster 25 years ago. Her maiden name was Espenschied. Dr. Forster's father was the founder of the Hyde Park Brewery.

from her. She was still at the hotel, and asked me to call.

"I got to the hotel about 3 o'clock, and she asked me if we should go out somewhere in the evening. Then she brought up the subject of marriage, and said, 'This is leap-year, and I have a right to ask you.'

"I said it was all right for her to ask me, but that I did not see how I could marry her.

"'Is there some other girl?' she demanded. I said there was not.

"'Then, if you are not going to marry me,' she said, 'I'm either going away or I'm going to kill myself.'

"I did not think she really meant the latter, and I advised her, also, not to go away from the family home, but to stay there and try to get along with the rest, and make the best of matters. After quite a talk along this line, I said I would have to leave.

"'This is the last time you will see me,' she said.

"'Oh, no,' I said, 'I'll see you again.' I still did not think she meant to kill herself.

Family Denies Quarrel.

"As I was picking up my hat, I heard the sound of a liquid, and saw her drink the acid from a glass, into which she had poured it. I seized her hand in time to keep her from swallowing quite all that was in the glass."

Cummings said he first telephoned to the hotel office, asking that a physician be sent to the room, and that he then went to the hotel barber shop, to get some alcohol for use as an antidote. When he returned to the room, the unconscious woman was in charge of hotel attendants, and an ambulance had been called.

At the Waldbart home last night Leo Waldbart, brother-in-law of Mrs. Marie Waldbart, said Cummings was 'unpopular with the family." The same impression was given in remarks made by his sisters, Misses Emilie and Annie Waldbart. One of the sisters said there had been no quarrel between them and Mrs. Waldbart, but that they had discouraged Cummings' attentions to her, for reasons which seemed sufficient to them.

Mrs. Waldbart, it was learned, had little independent income. "She was our little housekeeper," one of the family remarked.

ACTION TO ELIMINATE CROSSING

Proceedings were instituted in Justice Wangelin's Court at Belleville yesterday, to condemn 1½ acres in Centerville Station Township to eliminate the dangerous grade crossing at which Eugene Dauer of East St. Louis, was killed while driving an automobile. County Superintendent of Highways Thomas instituted the suit against J. B. Pluff, owner of the land.

The case will be tried next Saturday.

BLIND NEWSPAPER VENDOR DIES OF INJURIES BY AUTO

William H. Ellis, Who Sold Papers on Sixth Street, Was Hit Thursday in Front of 1503 Market Street.

71ST FATALITY OF KIND THIS YEAR

Man Injured at Grand and Lafayette Said to Have Been Walking Back to Curb From Car Tracks.

William H. Ellis, 55 years old, who had sold newspapers at the entrance of the Carleton Building, on Sixth street, near Olive, for 10 years or more, died yesterday in the city hospital as the result of injuries by an automobile at 12:10 a. m. Thursday, in front of 1613 Market street.

Ellis, walking to his room at 11 South Sixteenth street after midnight, started across Market street from the north to the south side. The automobile was coming west in the street car track, and as the horn sounded, the blind man stopped, and stood still, not knowing which way to move. The car struck him.

Struck by Automobile.

John McKinney, a chauffeur, of 1403 Market street, was the driver. He said he was unable to stop his car, in its progress over the smooth rails, or to swerve out of the track in time to avoid the accident.

Ellis was one of the best-known of downtown paper venders. He was held up and robbed a few years ago by a man who took even his cane away from him. Not long afterward he was robbed of a small amount of money by a boy whom he had cared for, after the boy had helped him across the street. At another time he was rescued by firemen from a burning rooming house on Franklin avenue, where he was found groping about.

Ellis' death is the seventy-first fatality resulting from a motor vehicle accident in St. Louis since Jan. 1 last.

Bartender Hit by Auto.

Frank Ziegelsmeyer, 54 years old, of 927 South Vandeventer avenue, a bartender, suffered several fractured ribs, internal injuries and cuts and bruises at 12:15 a. m. yesterday when struck by an automobile driven by Edward Karr, 18, of 401 Jackson street, Belleville, Ill., at Grand and Lafayette avenues. He was taken to the city hospital. Karr was arrested.

Karr told the police Ziegelsmeyer had started after a south-bound car and when the car moved off without him he started back to the east sidewalk of Grand avenue and walked directly in the path of the automobile, which was northbound. Six youths riding with Karr corroborated his statement.

Ziegelsmeyer told the police he did not see the automobile and said it was traveling at a high rate of speed.

William Halfanstein, 64, of 2209 South Broadway, suffered scalp wounds and cuts and bruises yesterday when struck by an automobile driven by John Elyasevich of East St. Louis, as Halfanstein crossed the street in front of 2209 South Broadway. Elyasevich was arrested.

Boy Knocked Off Bicycle.

William Blish, 15, 4190 West Belle place, suffered cuts and bruises when knocked off his bicycle by an automobile driven by Harry Dragoo, 4439 Easton avenue at Whittier street and Easton avenue. Dragoo was arrested.

Gabie M. Geist, 41, 3804 Fairview avenue, was knocked down by his own automobile when a Laclede car struck another automobile and knocked it against Geist's machine when he was cranking it in front of 1707 Market street. He suffered injuries to both knees and cuts on the hand.

May Taylor, 8 years old, of 1800A Davision street, a negress, suffered scalp wounds and internal injuries when struck by an automobile driven by Leo Marcus, 2000 Division street, a collector for a real estate concern, when she was playing in the street on Biddle near Eighteenth street.

Mrs. Minnie Fisk, 39, and Mrs. L. Cash, both of Little Rock, Ark., and both staying at Hotel Jefferson, were injured yesterday afternoon at Seventh and Locust streets, as they were crossing Locust street, by an automobile driven by Mrs. Maud Heyman of 5775 Kingsbury boulevard.

Mrs. Fisk suffered scalp wounds and Mrs. Cash was slightly bruised. They were taken to Hotel Jefferson in a taxicab, where they said they would seek medical attention.

ENGINEER SAVES SOMNAMBULIST

Young Illinois Girl Awakens When Being Lifted From Track.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VANDALIA, Ill., Aug. 28.— When Beulah Freeman, 16 years old, awoke last night she was being lifted off the track by Dan Walsh, engineer of a Pennsylvania train. She had left bed asleep and walked down an embankment to the railroad near her home. Walsh saw her on the track and stopped his train a few feet from the somnambulist.

"When I awoke," Miss Freeman says, "I was being carried to my home. When I realized how near I came to being run over, I was scared. I feel the effects yet."

HOTEL MAN IN ROUGH RIDE ON MARKET STREET IN NEW AUTO

Taken to Hospital Inebriate Ward After Striking Two Street Cars and Another Machine.

John Gabelmann, 40 years old, proprietor of the New Grand Central Hotel, 523 Market street, who is reputed to have made a fortune from the manufacture of aluminum heels, steered a perilous course up Market street last night in his new seven-passenger automobile, and the net results include the near-destruction of another automobile, damages to two Market street cars, some damage to his machine, and his imprisonment in the City Hospital alcoholic ward on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Police did not learn "where he got it."

He left his hotel at 9:30 p. m., going west, and at Seventh street ran into an eastbound Market street car. He got away after this, made across the tracks and managed to collide with a car of the same line, going west. This done, he ran half a block west and hit the parked automobile of John O'Haver, a barber of 707 Market street.

The gas tank on O'Haver's car was ripped open and gasoline flowed freely on the street. The car caught on the bumper of Gabelmann's car and was shoved half a block, to Eighth street. By that time a policeman appeared and requisitioned two crowbars to pry the cars apart. He reported that "Gabelmann fought all the way over to the City Hospital." His car suffered only the loss of its bumper and dents in the fenders.

MAYOR LAYS COAL TROUBLE TO HYSTERIA OF SMALL RETAILERS

the production cost. In the case of the others the cost to the retailers, either under contracts or other arrangements, is low.

The cost of production is one of the things that operators jealously guard. If questioned about it they expand with generalities. It is known, however, that standard mine-run coal is being supplied to the railroads at $2.35 to $2.55 a ton, which represents production cost and profit. Persons in a position to make a good guess fix the production cost at about $2 a ton, including the recent increases in miners' wages.

Under contracts made early in the season coal is being sold at $3.55 to $3.75 a ton, prices which represent the production cost and a large profit.

Big Retailers Get $6.50 to $10.

The large retailers are selling to consumers Standard coal at $6.50 a ton, Mt. Olive at $7 to $7.50 and Carterville at $9 to $10. But little Carterville is coming here and it does not come under the comparisons here given because it is not produced by any of the St. Louis retailing companies or their backers.

On the open market at the mines Standard coal is selling at $6 to $8. The variation, it is explained, is "just a matter of sentiment." It all depends upon how the operator feels at the moment. If he feels magnanimous he may make the price as low as $6. If he feels like charging all that he can get he makes it $8.

Mt. Olive coal, which is higher quality than Standard, is quoted at $3.50 to $4 by the large companies in that field but there is none on the open market. A few small mines in the Mt. Olive field are charging Standard prices.

Standard operators are in a position to demand $8 at the mine because industrial plants in other cities are willing to pay that much and do pay that much.

The large retailers who sell Standard at $6.50 do not make a large profit because the freight is $1.35 a ton and hauling $1.25 and there is yardage and overhead, the amount of which chargeable against each ton, varies according to the tonnage. But they can sell it at that and make a profit.

No Profit for Small Dealer.

The small dealers cannot. If they have to pay $8 at the mines they have to sell to the consumers at $12 or $13 a ton, in order to make a small profit.

Two explanations are offered for the failure of the large retailers to base the price to the consumers on the prevailing open market price at the mines. One is that they plan to eliminate the small dealers and then raise the prices. The other is that they are afraid to profiteer to the extent of charging $12 or $13 for coal which costs to produce about $2 a ton and which they are able to purchase at about $3.50 a ton.

Some of them have a scheme for evading the profiteering charge. It is called "trading." Operators or jobbers sell back and forth among themselves, gradually advancing the price and finally selling to the consumer at a price not a great deal higher than the last "trading" price. It works this way: A and B each have a car of coal. They sell to each other at, say, $3.50. Then B and C make mutual sales at $4.50. C and D then sell to each other at $5.50. Then the coal is sold to consumers at $6.50 or more.

Big Dealers Inadequate.

If the retail business is concentrated in the hands of a few big companies they will not, with their present sources of supply and equipment, be able to furnish the fuel that the city needs. The facilities of the small retailers will be eliminated with them. The large retailers will have to provide themselves with increased equipment, for which the consumers will have to pay.

The present and prospective shortage, due to the inability of the small retailers to get supplies at prices which would enable them to compete with the large ones, bears hardest on the poor. They are the chief patrons of the small dealers. They cannot get their orders filled and will have to pay higher prices when cold weather comes.

HOLDUP MAN SHOOTS SALOON PROPRIETOR

Proprietor Saps Youth Fired When He Was Slow in Putting Up His Hands.

Nick Fotios, 33 years old, 5747 Garfield avenue, was shot through the left side by one of two robbers who held him up in his saloon at Clara avenue and North Market street at 11 o'clock last night. The robbers fled after taking $30 from Fotios' pocket and a sum of money from the cash register.

Fotios was taken to the office of Dr. Minnie Rose, 5606A Easton avenue. She dressed the wound and pronounced it not necessarily serious but advised his removal to the city hospital.

Fotios told the police that several customers were in the saloon when the robbers, both young men, entered and ordered everyone to throw up their hands. Fotios said that he did not act quickly enough to suit the robbers and that one of them fired at him.

CASTLEN-FOR-MAYOR MEETINGS HELD IN UNIVERSITY CITY

79 Women Attend One Gathering—Misunderstanding as to Candidate's Age Cleared Up.

A meeting to advance the candidacy of Harry W. Castlen of 6356 Washington avenue, a Republican, for Mayor of University City, was held last night in the Second ward of University City, and was attended by persons from all of the wards. At that meeting a misunderstanding as to Castlen's age was cleared up, it being announced that he is 36 years old and eligible to serve if elected. He is a former city clerk and City Attorney of University City and served overseas as a First Lieutenant.

Seventy-nine women attended another meeting, at the Castlen home last night, where addresses were made in Castlen's behalf, and the women were reminded that the municipal election next month will give them their first chance to vote. Another meeting for women will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at Castlen headquarters, 6600 Delmar boulevard.

THEATRICAL MANAGER DIVORCES WIFE 30 YEARS HIS SENIOR

C. D. Hemmick, Who Married Wealthy Widow in 1911, Alleges She Deserted Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Christian D. Hemmick, theatrical manager, today obtained a divorce for desertion from Mrs. Alice Barney Hemmick, formerly of Washington. Mrs. Hemmick inherited a large fortune from her first husband, a steel magnate. She was 54 years of age, in 1911, when she married Hemmick, who was but 24. They were married in Paris and lived together until June 25, 1918.

"She did not want me to remain in the theatrical business," testified Hemmick, "and, without my knowledge or consent, she packed up and went back to Paris. She left word that she was not coming back to me."

Mrs. Hemmick formerly was prominent in Washington society, and has a large estate in that city. Hemmick owns the Pitt Theater in Pittsburg, and is a partner in a New York brokerage firm. His last production was "The Man Who Stayed at Home."

COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $1800 LEFT IN HOME

Money From 13 Stores Taken From Cupboard When He Goes to Visit Last One.

Ollie Schueler, 1410 North Market street, a district collector employed by the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., informed the police that 13 packages containing between $1800 and $2000, belonging to the company, were stolen from a cupboard in the dining room of his home between 7 and 7:15 o'clock last night.

Schueler reported that, following his daily custom, he carried the money he had collected from 13 stores to his home before going to the 14th and last store in his district, which is at 1328 North Market street.

He said he left home at 7 p. m., and that when he returned 15 minutes later the money was gone. His mother, who had been at work in the kitchen, said she heard no one enter the house in her son's absence, but after he had departed for the North Market Police Station to report the theft she found a wooden "billy," 12 inches long and 1¼ inches thick, lying on the floor near the cupboard.

The money was in $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills. Before reporting the theft to the police Schueler telephoned a report of the occurrence to the headquarters of the company at Tiffany and Vista avenues, and H. W. Tell, 4705 Newberry terrace, assistant superintendent of the company, went with him to the police station.

STORY INFERS AIRPLANE FIRM TOOK UP $5000 NOTE OF COX

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A page story is printed by the Standard Union of Brooklyn, purporting to accuse Gov. Cox of having received $5000 on his personal note discounted by a bank in Dayton, on Aug. 16, 1917, which note was afterward found in the possession of the Dayton Metal Products Co., a concern controlling the Dayton Wright Airplane Co., then engaged in airplane construction.

The inference sought to be drawn is that the airplane concern took up Gov. Cox's note with its own funds. It is also charged in an accompanying story, dated from Washington, that, in 1916, a $37,000 campaign fund was raised to elect Cox in Ohio and that contributors to this fund were paid back out of funds belonging to the Dayton Flood Prevention Co., through alleged "dummy" entries for amounts paid for services.

Charles E. Norris, editor of the Dayton News, and secretary to Gov. Cox, in a statement said that Gov Cox "has never given a note in any State campaign, nor was a single dollar ever contributed by the Dayton Flood Prevention Co. to the State Committee. The 1916 campaign fund for the President and Gov. Cox was raised in small amounts from individuals whose names and amounts given are of record in the office of the Secretary of State of Ohio. The same canards were used then as are being used now to divert the issue."

$8000 Boy Scout Fund Sought.

Ninety-six persons comprising 42 teams will meet at the East St. Louis Y. M. C. A., Tuesday noon to arrange for a campaign designed to raise $8000 for the work of the East St. Louis boy scouts during 1920. The Rotary Club and Lions' Club are assisting actively in this work which is to be directed by a general committee of which E. J. Coffey is chairman.

YOUTH KILLED IN RIOT IN BELFAST

Troops Fire on Mob Attacking Police Station and Wound Six Others.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Aug. 28.—The military fired on rioters here again tonight, killing at least one and wounding six others, one of them seriously. The troops fired in an effort to protect the police station, which was attacked by a mob. Disturbances were reported in several sections of the city.

When the soldiers arrived at the police station in an armored car, they were met with a volley of stones. The police and military dispersed the mob. Many individual attacks were reported. The rioter killed tonight was John Lynch, aged 16.

Three special policemen have been arrested here in connection with the recent looting. They are charged with housebreaking.

12 Sinn Fein Prisoners at Cork on Hunger Strike 19 Days.

By the Associated Press

CORK, Aug. 28.—Today was the nineteenth day of a hunger strike by a dozen Sinn Fein prisoners in the city jail and their condition was said to be extremely grave.

Relatives have gathered daily outside the prison to vent their grief but have not advised the prisoners to abandon their strike. The strikers themselves appear determined, as was evinced by their refusal yesterday to take water because they believed food substance had been added to it. Two London specialists arrived at the prison today, it was said, by order of the home office.

Queen Begged to Intervene in Behalf of Mayor of Cork.

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Redmond Howard, who has several times communicated with the King in behalf of Lord Mayor MacSweeney of Cork, on a prison hunger strike, today telegraphed the Queen at Balmoral, asserting that one of MacSweeney's lungs is affected and begging her intervention.

The Mayor's wife and sister, Mary MacSweeney, visited him today. The latter contradicted the report that the prison doctor was administering proteids to the mayor in drinking water. She added, respecting the proteid report:

"I told the doctor that nothing of that sort should be done and that it was absolutely against the wishes of his friends and also said that if the Government wished to release my brother it should be done before the eleventh hour. The Government should either release him or let him die. It would not be fair to leave him lingering in pain."

One Brother Killed, Another Wounded, by Same Bullet.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Cork says that John and Bartholomew Buckley, brothers, were arrested near that city recently by the military, roped back to back, and placed in a military lorry. During the ensuing journey John Buckley was killed by a revolver shot through the heart, the bullet passing on and lodging in his brother's shoulder. The dispatch states that the report of the incident handed to the parents of the victim read as follows:

"Your son, John, in trying to escape from military custody today while on his way to Cork, was shot. He died from his wound. Bartholomew also was wounded in the shoulder."

Brusa More Precious to the Turks Than Any Other Part of Their Empire

Ancient City Rich in History and Object of More Than 100 Sieges Now in Hands of Greeks—Moslems Fear Its Permanent Loss.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BRUSA, Turkey, Aug. 28.—When the Greeks took over Brusa and drove the Turkish Nationalists eastward from the Sea of Marmora, this sacred city of the Osmanlis only re-enacted the scenes of a hundred other sieges and evacuations which have marked its life in recorded and mythical history. It lies at the foot of snow-clad Mount Olympus, which has attracted adventurers from the days of the Argonauts. This mountain looms high above all others on the Anatolian shore of the Marmora, and the site of Brusa, well up the base of the peak and overlooking the great, fertile valley of the Nilufer, has always tempted conquerors.

Hannibal laid out the present city, according to some historians. Others credit Prusias, the protector of Hannibal, with the creation of Brusa, which was originally called Prusia. It was the capital of the Bithian kingdom until 75 years before Christ, when Nicomedes III left his kingdom to the Romans. During the Byzantine period, Brusa was alternately in the hands of Christians and Moslems. The Arabs took it in a famous siege in 950. It was soon recaptured by the Christians. In the eleventh century the Turks captured it, and held it until the Christian crusaders captured Nicaea in 1097.

Earthquake There in 1855.

It passed into the hands of the Osmanlis in 1326 and became the residence of the Sultans and the great cultural center of the Moslems, to which poets, philosophers, dervishes and holy men of all sorts flocked from Persia, Khorassan and Bokhara. The city was sacked by Tamur in the fifteenth century. Several fires have ruined portions of it, and in 1855 it suffered a terrible earthquake which killed more than 1000 persons and damaged many of its historic walls and mosques.

But the Green Mosque, or Yeshil Jami, which Mohammed built in 1420, and which architects regard as the greatest art creation of the Osmanlis, still stands in all its beauty. And the tombs of many Sultans, including that of Mohammed I, make Brusa more precious to the Turks than any other part of their empire, not even excepting Constantinople. Consequently there is the greatest apprehension among Moslems lest Brusa, with its hundreds of mosques, its citadel dating back to Roman times and its sacred tombs may remain indefinitely in Christian hands.

Geumlek, the little port on the Gulf of Geumlek, 20 miles from Brusa, was used by all the original Christian crusaders when they made their attempts to rescue the holy places of the Levant.

Greeks Now Occupy City.

Communication with Angora is lost since the Greeks entered. Communiques from Mustapha Kemal no longer encourage the Turks who had hoped the Greeks would not be able to take Brusa. Faith is weakening in the nationalist forces and Moslems curse the Germans and blame them for all their troubles. But practically all the younger Turks have moved eastward with the Kemalists. It is chiefly women and very old men who remain and their protestations against the nationalists and denunciation of the Germans must be taken with reservations.

CHAUFFEUR HAVING SEVERAL AUTO LICENSE PLATES ARRESTED

Police Say He Has Admitted Driving Car for Men Who Robbed Grocer of $200 Thursday.

Andrew Wayters, 32 years old, of 1808 Elliot avenue, arrested by detectives yesterday when several automobile license plates were found in his automobile and garage, admitted, police say, driving the highwaymen who held up Edward Huelsbush, 1131 Brooklyn street, in his grocery store Thursday night, taking $200 from the cash drawer. He said the men had hired him to drive the car and he did not know they were highwaymen until the next day.

On the front of his automobile the police found license No. 274-822. The license plate for the rear and corresponding to that number was under the seat of the machine as was license plate No. 103-378. In the garage where he keeps his car the police found license plate No. 32,117. These licenses are being traced by the police.

Illinois Roads to Be Oiled.

County Superintendent of Highways D. O. Thomas of Belleville yesterday announced a road-oiling program which will be started within a few days. The first to be oiled is the Belleville-Millstadt road, and contract for the job has been awarded to the Good Roads Co. of Kansas City at $160 a mile. The oil will be purchased by the county at $340 a mile. Other roads to be oiled are the Belleville-Mascoutah, Bellevillle-New Athens and Belleville-Hecker.

HARDING "JUNIOR BOOSTERS" ORGANIZED BY CHILDREN

Senator, Indorsing Move, Declares It Is Notice to Parents That Great Crisis Awaits Settlement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A national organization of boys and girls under voting age is being formed, to be known as "Junior Boosters," who will work for Harding and Coolidge. Mrs. John A. Logan is chairman of the board of directors. The wives of the Republican governors and many other distinguished men and women have been requested to serve with Mrs. Logan.

In a telegram to Miss Catherine Fuller, indorsing "the Booster" plan, Senator Harding said: "We need just such evidences of patriotic interest at this time when we are called upon in a great national referendum to determine whether we shall surrender the dearest and most necessary rights as a nation. When the children of America enlist in a cause it is notice to the fathers and mothers of the Republic that a great crisis is before them for settlement."

Paymaster Robbed of $15,000.

JEALOUS HUSBAND SLAYS MAN

Street Encounter at Winchester, Ky., Ends in Fatal Shooting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 28.—In a street encounter last night at Winchester, 18 miles east of here, Rodney Haggard, a young lawyer, and brother of City Attorney Haggard, shot and mortally wounded Ben Good, another young man. Good died this morning and Haggard was held on a charge of murder. He was not jailed but allowed a guard. Good is alleged to have been accused by Haggard of attentions to his wife, from whom he is reported to have recently separated.

IOWA PASTOR "TO FIGHT GRAFT"

Des Moines Minister, Active in Public Life, to Quit Pulpit.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 28.—The Rev. J. E. Kirbye, local pastor, active in Des Moines civic life for the last ten years, has announced his intention to resign as pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church to "fight greed and graft in our public life." He will devote himself, he says, to "unseat" what he termed "the Rawson clique, which now controls Iowa public affairs."

Travel Fever Grips War-Weary Central Europeans

Rich and Poor Alike Yearn to Make Visits to Seashore—Lack of Transportation Facilities Blamed.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 28.—The desire but inability of once wealthy people to travel westward to European seaports and on to the United States, owing to passport and money difficulties, is one of the results of the war to be noted in Central Europe, the Balkans and far into Asia Minor.

The intenseness of this desire was registered recently by Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary, who said: "Why, I wake up nights thinking of the sea, and in my dreams I hear the sound of the ocean. Consider I have sailed the world around and now I can't even get a glimpse of blue water. I'm seasick in a new sense."

"How I envy you in your travels," said Queen Marie of Rumania to the travel-weary correspondent. "Think of the glorious freedom of going somewhere, far away."

"If it were not for my duty to my country," said Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the national leader, one hot, breathless night in Sivas, Turkey, "I should be tempted to board ship and steam away, anywhere, so long as it went westward. No one but ourselves can realize how tired and numb the mind becomes, out here, through the loss of contact with the countries and people we knew in happier days."

Women, wives of teachers and professors, of formerly well-to-do farmers, who have been so sorely hit by the war, suffer especially from the lack of the cheap holidays they were once accustomed to take in Switzerland, the Italian Riviera, Paris or London, where they saw the old sights anew, the styles in clothes, brushed up their acquaintance with languages and came home content to await next year's trip.

"I really believe many of us shall fall sick if we are not able to satisfy this travel fever," said Mrs. R. Vambery, wife of the Hungarian criminologist, who was a great traveler as was his father before him.

"Have pity on we poor travelers. To think that now I can't buy a new dress, I who once had the money to roam where I would."

The ministers of foreign affairs in these countries are besieged by applications of their fellow citizens who want to go away as diplomatic representatives or consuls and many near-important men at home are willing to accept positions as clerks abroad, merely for the chance of traveling.

This fever is not limited to the formerly well-to-do. Recently a notice was published in a Budapest paper that any able-bodied man or woman wishing to work in the United States would be furnished with a ticket and $50 expense money by the Americans. That same day the American High Commissioner, U. Grant-Smith, had to request the military authorities to keep away the mob from his office in the Andrassy street.

The railways in Hungary, in Rumania and in every country, though worn out by the war, are always crowded, with people clinging to the roofs of the coaches, thick as flies, summer and winter. About the stations are big crowds of men, women and children, swarming up and down, waiting whole days and nights for trains.

"Where are all these people going to?" the correspondent asked a conductor at Bucharest.

He stared a moment in astonishment. "Why, anywhere, nowhere," he answered. "They are just taking a ride. They're travel mad."

LAVA BUILDING UP NEW MOUNTAIN IN HAWAII

Flow of Molten Rock in Eight Months Has Covered 75 Square Miles of Country.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HILO, T. H., Aug. 10.—Lava flowing from the Kilauea volcano onto the Kau resert, near here, in eight months of activity has built up a miniature mountain, several hundred feet in height, and two miles long and has covered 75 miles of country with a thick coating of volcanic deposit.

The Kau flow burst from the southern flank of the volcano, about six miles from the main crater, December 21 last. It is still in action and shows few signs of diminishing in volume. In point of duration of time the flow, or combination of flows now running, have been exceeded only once in the known history of Kilauea, by the flows of 1880-81, which were active 10 months, traveled more than 40 miles and reached to within one mile of this city. Volcano observers expect the present flow to establish a new duration record.

Hundreds of Feet High.

Sources of the present flow in December last were merely a series of cracks in the Kau desert's surface. Today, as a result of the piling up of continually spouting lava, they have built a mountain several hundred feet high. So permanently has this mass altered the contour of the country that it has been officially named "Mauna Iki," or "Little Mountain,' to distinguish it from its 14,000-foot-high volcanic neighbor, Mauna Loa, or "Big Mountain."

At irregular intervals on the summit of Mauna Iki are lakes of molten lava, fed by active fountains, which fling their fiery streams over the banks to cascade down the hillside in angry, red cataracts.

The lava flows have reached a series of deep pit craters 10 miles in one direction from their source. For generations these craters have been the homes of the large white "bosun" or "frigate" birds, who now are driven to seek other nesting places. As the advancing flows dispossess successive colonies of these birds, they fly out over the hot stream with piteous cries.

Flow Expected to Increase.

Constant observations are made by the staff of the volcano observatory but, as yet, it is said to be impossible to form any conclusion as to when this process of earth-building and earth-destroying will end. Volcano observers say that there is every indication that as the year progresses towards fall and winter, activity is likely to increase rather than diminish.

For weeks the lava column in the crater of Kilauea, the supply base of the Kau desert flows, has been sinking until it is more than 300 feet below the rim of the pit. This sinking, say observers, is coming to the end of its season and will be followed by a rise of the lava column, which, it is stated, will increase the Kau flows reaching the air on the crest of Mauna Iki.

Scientists express the opinion that the present Kau flows will reach the sea within the next few months.

MINER SWINDLED OUT OF $400 LEFT 'TO PROVE HE WAS HONEST'

Two Men Entrust Him With "Roll" and Hold His While He Goes to Buy Grapes.

Louis Peroglio, a miner, on his way from New Mexico to the Illinois mining district told the police yesterday how he had been swindled out of his savings, $400 in $50 bills, by two men who insisted on holding the money to prove he was "honest."

Peroglio arrived in St. Louis Friday. Walking around to see the city, he said, he encountered two friendly men in a saloon near Twelfth and Market streets. One of the men drew out a bill folder and showed him a "roll." He said he wanted some "honest" man to help him distribute the money, and made an appointment to meet the visitor in Fairground Park yesterday.

Peroglio met both men in the park. They asked him if he had brought his money with him. He showed it to them.

"All right, now go get some grapes and we'll hunt for the poor people as soon as we lunch off the grapes."

The spokesman handed Peroglio the bill folder with the supposed roll in it.

"How do you know I'll come back?" he asked.

"Well, you've got our money. Leave yours here and we know you'll come back," the man replied. Peroglio did as requested, and went for the fruit. When he returned the men were gone.

He waited around the park until afternoon when he asked a policeman passing through if he had seen the two "friends."

New York 20,000 Years Old.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Baron Gerard de Geer, who holds the chair of geology in the University of Stockholm and came here to explore the shores of Lake Champlain and Lake Michigan, on his arrival said he believed New York State to be only 20,000 years old. The clay laminations led him to think so. He is interested in substantiating the theory that the glacial period passed because of climatic changes rather than volcanic disturbances.

Boys Sentenced to Go to Bed Early.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Because they looted several fruit stands, six West Orange, N. J., boys, ranging in age from 10 to 13 years, must go to bed at 6:30 o'clock every night for a month. This sentence was imposed by Police Recorder Lander. He instructed the boys to report to him each week with a note from their parents certifying that the youths are carrying out the sentence.

BERLIN-TO-FRISCO AIR SERVICE

Zeppelins Being Built in Germany for Passengers and Freight.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Aug. 28.—Two super-Zeppelins of the largest type ever constructed, are being built in Germany for American interests for use in freight and passenger service between Berlin and San Francisco, via New York, according to John R. Gammeter, aeronaut expert of a tire and rubber company here, who has just returned from abroad.

A prominent American automobile manufacturer and the Hamburg American Steamship Co. are financing the project, he said. They are expected to be placed in operation within four months.

Choose the Body as you choose the Chassis

The same thought given to selecting a chassis should be given to choosing a delivery body to use on it.

For neither body nor chassis are purchased for limited, temporary service, though too often in the case of the body this proves true.

Biltwell Bodies are designed and built to withstand every-day, all-year, rough usage. Their staunch, mortised and fitted construction, each piece strengthening the one next adjoining, assures lasting service.

The price of Biltwell Bodies is low and fully justified in their low cost of upkeep and long-lived usefulness.

Protest Against Barmaids.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 28.—About 2000 former service men here are protesting against the employment of barmaids in the city's hotels and public houses. When a deputation waited on the committee of the Liverpool Brewers and Spirit Merchants' Association, one of the men stated that if the barmaids did not give place to service men action would be taken to force the women out. There are about 2000 barmaids employed in Liverpool.

DEALER IN GARDNER AUTOMOBILES

MACON, MO. Aug. 12, 1920.

Gardner Motor Co.,

St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:-

We acknowledge your telegram advancing the price of the Gardner Light Four to $1285.00 f.o.b. factory.

It is our desire to advise you that we heartily agree with you in making the advance now. We feel that the price is still very low, and that not only in performance, but in economy of operation there is no value on the market that compares with it.

Since the 9th of February we have taken forty cars. Of this number we have twelve running in our immediate vicinity. Not one of these has been out of operation a single day, and without exception they are in perfect condition.

Mr. J. W. Ryan, of Atlanta, Mo. who bought a Gardner on June 1st, has just completed an eight hundred mile trip through Missouri and Iowa. He told us today that he used low gear just once, and that he did not have one minutes trouble on the entire trip.

We not only feel satisfied with the Gardner, but we are highly pleased, and would not exchange contracts with any dealer in the country.

Wishing you continued success, and assuring you of our appreciation of the pleasant business relations which you extend to your dealers, we are,

Yours very truly,

FARMERS' COUNCIL DIRECTOR URGES WILSON TO PREVENT WAR

Says Farmers, While Not Favoring Soviet Form, Favor Recognition of Russian Government.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The Farmers' National Council has sent a letter to the President urging him to exert his best efforts toward preventing further wars. He is told that the farmers believe the Soviet Government of Russia should be recognized, although they do not approve that form of administration.

The communication, written by George P. Hampton, managing director of the council, says, in part:

"It is not a question of our entering the League of Nations. Our entrance would chiefly impose on us moral obligation to use our men, our munitions, our money, our navy to carry out the decisions of the League of Nations. Thirty nations now associated in the league have failed to stop the wars at present going on.

"The overwhelming majority of the farmers of America, I confidently believe, do not favor the Soviet form of Government, administration or policies, but do hold that we should recognize the de facto Government conducting the affairs of the Russian people, until the Russian people can gain a government of their own volition, and in their own way."

TWO-CYCLE OIL ENGINE PERFECTED BY AMERICANS

Adapted for Ships and Stationary Purposes and Will Save Two-Thirds in Fuel Cost.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Development of a new two-cycle internal combustion engine, adapted for ships as well as stationary purposes, was announced here yesterday by Charles M. Schwab. The engine, it was said, is the product of American inventive skill and has been given a successful trial on one of the ore-carrying ships of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

In announcing the perfection of the new-type engine, Schwab said:

"For the first time, a two-cycle internal combustion heavy oil engine has been perfected which produces the same horsepower as a four-cycle engine practically twice its size, and is at the same time adapted to large cargo ships, while saving two-thirds in fuel cost alone, as compared with steam-driven, oil-fired vessels.

"Neither of these developments is a new idea. For years Europeans have successfully operated large ships with Diesel engines. The achievement is the adaptation of the two-cycle engine to American operation and in the perfection for practical use in cargo vessels of any size."

AIRPLANE SPEED TEST FOR PULITZER TROPHY

Event Agreed Upon to Supplant Transcontinental Race Arranged for November.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A 150-mile speed test for airplanes over a Long Island course was announced today by the Aero Club of America. It will be held Thanksgiving day and will be the first event of the sort in the United States since the Belmont Park-Liberty Statute race in the Autumn of 1918, which was confined to army entrants.

The prize will be the $5000 Pulitzer trophy, and the race will take the place of the projected transcontinental race for the same reward which it had been planned to hold in November, but which has been abandoned by agreement between Ralph Pulitzer and the Contest Committee of the Aero Club.

The Thanksgiving day race will offer features of a much more popular nature than the proposed transcontinental flight, inasmuch as it will afford an opportunity to see all the planes entered in actual competition in the air, and as well to bring to the attention of the public America's advance in designing fast planes.

Change Decided Upon.

Before deciding on the change in terms for the Pulitzer trophy race the Contest Committee of the Aero Club sent the following letter to Mr. Pulitzer:

"The Contest Committee of the recently reorganized Aero Club of America, at a meeting on Aug. 24 last, was of the unanimous opinion that the conditions as proposed by the old Contest Committee for the transcontinental aeroplane race for the Pulitzer trophy, has so little merit from every standpoint that they decided to request the entrants, of whom there were only three, to withdraw their entries in order that the committee might cancel the contest.

"The entrants unanimously approved and have withdrawn their entries.

"The committee now proposes, with your consent and approval, to make the Pulitzer trophy a perpetual trophy to be contested annually in North America, over a closed circuit. However, in order to perpetuate your trophy, we must request you to give annually gold, silver and bronze badges or medals to the annual winners of first, second or third places, the cup itself to be held for one year by the club whose entrant is the winner.

"As soon as we have received your consent and approval, the committee will announce the first race for the Pulitzer Trophy to be held by the Aero Club of America on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25, 1920, at Mitchel Field, for a distance of 150 miles, six laps of a twenty-five mile circuit.

Race Free for All.

"The race is to be a free-for-all event for biplanes, with a factor of safety of four, and monoplanes with a factor of safety of six, all planes being capable of an air speed of 100 miles per hour. The committee, however, reserves the right to not allow any plane to start whose visibility, maneuver ability, take-off or landing is, in the opinion of the committee, a menace to the other contestants or to spectators.

"The second race for the Pulitzer Trophy is also to be run by the Aero Club of America over a closed circuit on Sept. 4, 1921, for a restricted class of planes, requirements to be determined by the army, navy and the Aero Club's contest and technical committees, with a view to developing new types of sportsman-training planes which will be suitable for both purposes and, if adopted by the army and navy, should by large production bring the price of aeroplanes within the reach of sportsmen, in which case the Government should be assured of a considerable reserve force of the same type of planes which it is issuing and for which it has all the necessary spare parts, etc.

"Some of the requirements the committee proposes to submit for the approval of the army and navy are: Mufflers, self-starters, landing to be made within certain length or certain area with wind a view to developing variable cambre wings, airbrakes, etc., specified factors of safety and the motive power to be limited by restricting the total weight of motor complete, oil and water radiators, oil tanks, gasoline tanks, all piping and all oil, water and gas required to cover the specified distance, probably 250 miles.

Manner of Making Entries.

"As all entries must be made through the Aero Club of America or affiliated clubs, the club whose entrant wins the second or subsequent annual race will have the opportunity of conducting the race the following year, if it so desires, subject, of course, to the conditions determined by the army and navy and the Aero Club's contest and technical committees.

"Should any club decline to conduct the race the following year, the Aero Club of America has the privilege of conducting the race or assigning it to some other club.

"If this meets with your approval, we only wait word from you to announce the race." To this communication Mr. Pulitzer replied:

"I am in receipt of your letter of Aug. 25, suggesting that the 1920 transcontinental race for the Pulitzer Trophy arranged by the old contest committee of the Aero Club be canceled and that the Pulitzer Trophy be made a perpetual trophy for annual closed circuit races, and giving your reasons for this change.

"These reasons meet with my entire approbation, and I am, therefore, very glad to give my hearty consent to your suggested program."

Advantages of Six Laps Plain.

Under the plan of six laps of 25 miles each, the racing planes should be in view of spectators at Mitchel Field during a large part of the duration of the race. At the date set the Gordon Bennett trophy racers, which have been sent to France, should be back and prepared to demonstrate their capabilities in this country. In addition, from three to six other American planes, which have high speed possibilities, probably will enter.

FEAST OF SAINT LOUIS TODAY

The annual feast of Saint Louis will be celebrated this morning in the Church of St. Louis of France, the Old Cathedral, at Second and Walnut streets.

High mass, beginning at 10, will be celebrated by the Rev. Dr. C. L. Souvay, of Kenrick Seminary, and the panegyric of the saint will be delivered by the Rev. Father William Robison, S. J., president of St. Louis University.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR CAPT. CARVELL TODAY

Retired Steamboat Captain, 85 Years Old, Had Been Invalid for Several Years.

Funeral services for Capt. George Francis Carvell, 85 years old, 4053 Washington boulevard, Civil War veteran and retired steamboat captain, who died Friday, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in an undertaker's chapel at 2707 North Grand avenue. He had been an invalid for several years.

Capt. Carvell came to St. Louis as a youth from his birthplace in New York State. He obtained work on a steamboat, and in due time became a pilot, and then a captain. He was captain of one of the Confederate boats that ran between Memphis and Vicksburg during the Civil War. At times he worked with Mark Twain, who was for years a pilot.

Capt. Carvell was the oldest of the men who had captained boats of the Anchor Line, one of the first steamboat lines to operate out of St. Louis. He was captain of the "City of Vicksburg" and the "City of Providence," the latter of which was used as an excursion steamer after it was taken from the intercity service. After the Anchor Line went out of business he was with the St. Louis and Tennessee River Packet Co. until his retirement, 10 years ago.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Isabella Robirds Carvell, 4053 Washington boulevard; a sister, Mrs. G. W. Cale Sr., 455 Laurel avenue, and a brother, W. H. Carvell, Santa Monica, Cal. His only daughter died many years ago.

Power Plant on St. Gothard.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 9.—An electric power plant to develop 350,000 horsepower is planned on Saint Gothard Mountain. The cost is estimated at about $100,000,000. Two little villages where live 1200 people must be moved out of the Urseren Valley which will be dammed and will become a great lake.

C. W. BEALE SOUGHT IN ST. LOUIS

Message From Franklin, Va., Says His Mother Is Ill.

The St. Louis police yesterday received the following telegram from Roger Beale of Franklin, Va.:

"Please try and locate Cyrus W. Beale. Advise him his mother is seriously ill and to come immediately. Try all the prominent hotels. Spare no expense; we will bear it all."

Beale had not been found late last night.

COUNCIL FOR UNION PROPOSED

Body of 12 Members to Govern Central States Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Aug. 28.—Administrative powers in the proposed union of Central American States should be vested in a federal council comprised of 12 members, said President Melandez of Salvador yesterday. He added that the president of this council should be elected by commissions of ten members elected from each member state. The president, he said, would remain in office one year.

EYE-WITNESSES TELL OF MURDER OF CZAR

Accounts of Killing of Russian Royal Family Are Published in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—All possible doubt that former Emperor Nicholas of Russia and his family were assassinated in the basement of their prison house at Ekaterinburg on the night of July 16, 1918, seems to be dispelled by the accounts of two independent investigators which are published here. One is printed by the London Times and was written by its former Petrograd correspondent, Robert Wilton. The other appears in the magazine Nineteenth Century and After, and is from the pen of Capt. Francis McCullagh of the British army, who, before the war, was a newspaper correspondent. Both spent several weeks at Ekaterinburg, and talked with natives and soldiers who witnessed the affair through the windows of the ill-fated house. The writers agree on the important details of the story.

The victims of the massacre, they say, numbered 11, being the former Emperor, his wife, son, four daughters, Dr. Botkin and three servants. The assassination was arranged by Yurovski, the jailer, and was carried out by 12 soldiers.

Said to Have Been Letts.

The Times account says these men were Letts, but Capt. McCullagh declares they were Magyars, who had been placed on duty instead of a Russian guard, because the Bolsheviki feared a Russian could not be trusted for the work.

Capt. McCullagh's story says all the doomed party, except Nicholas, were on their knees, crossing themselves, as Yurovski shouted the order for the execution of "Nicholas Romanoff the bloody, and all his family." The former Emperor then stepped quickly in front of his wife and children, saying something which could not be heard, and was shot by Yurovski. Then the remainder of the party was shot down with revolvers and later the soldiers bayonetted the bodies, he said.

Boasts of Killings.

Yurovski, who had been President of the Extraordinary Commission at Ekaterinburg, is declared to have boasted to Capt. McCullagh last March that he had condemned 60 persons suspected of anti-Bolsheviki sentiments, and is quoted as saying:

"What are 60 men?"

After the assassination of Nicholas and his family, Yurovski, it is asserted, hastened to Moscow to report the details to Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik Premier. According to Capt. McCullagh, he was promoted to be Commissioner of Life Insurance in the Province of Ekaterinburg, and occupies the most handsome house in town, which was confiscated from a merchant. Even the Bolsheviki of the city, however, are declared to shun him.

On the square overlooked by Emperor Nicholas' last prison the Bolshevik local government is said to have placed a large sign, bearing the words:

"Square of National Vengeance."

CHURCH WOMEN SELL FLAVORING EXTRACTS CONTAINING ALCOHOL

Activity to Raise Money for New Edifice Stopped When Discovery Is Made.

The women of St. John's Methodist Church at Edwardsville are in a predicament. The congregation has been contemplating the erection of a new edifice and the various societies of the church have been raising funds for the work.

A week ago the representative of an Illinois flavoring extract concern made the women of the Sewing Circle a proposition whereby they might earn $50 for the fund by acting as distributing agents for the company. The women accepted the offer and yesterday the first shipment of extracts arrived at Edwardsville.

The women got busy and soon had sold quite a quantity. Then their enterprise received a jolt. It was discovered that the flavoring extract contained 10 per cent alcohol. The bottles were plainly labeled to that effect.

The women concluded that they did not want to raise money for the church by selling anything alchoholic. Now they want to know what they are going to do with the stock on hand. They are thinking of returning it to the company.

SUSPECT STILL HELD PENDING INQUIRY INTO ESCAPE OF BEAR

Former Employe Said to Have Retired at Usual Hour Thursday and Gone to His Work.

The police are still holding Louis Spero, 45 years old, of 3802 Westminster place, a former attendant at the Forest Park Zoo, who was arrested yesterday in connection with the investigation of the escape of two grizzly bears from their cage at the zoo Friday morning, after the locks on the bear cage door had been forced open with a tool.

Inquiry at the boarding house where Spero lives disclosed that he retired at 10 o'clock, his usual hour, Thursday night, and left at 6 o'clock Friday morning for work in the packing department of a wholesale dry goods house. The police decided to hold Spero until they could question his fellow-employes.

Superintendent Angermeyer of the zoo told the police that he recently heard that Spero had threatened to "get even" with him for having transferred him from the bear department because of an incident in which Spero is said to have slapped one of the bears.

$8,000,000 Note Issue Enjoined.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 28.—An injunction restraining the Standard Parts Co., Cleveland's $52,000,000 Automobile Parts and Accessories Corporation from issuing $8,000,000 worth of notes was granted in Federal Court here today by Judge D. C. Westenhaver on a petition of several stockholders. The note issue recently was authorized by shareholders at a reorganization meeting.

REBELLION SPREADING IN MESOPOTAMIA

Anarchistic Rebellion Spreads to Muntefik Area, Officers Being Withdrawn by Airplanes.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Reports from Mesopotamia indicate a further spread to the Muntefik area, in the south, of the anarchistic rebellion against the British administration which has been prevalent recently, the War Office announced officially today.

"The situation on the Shatra-El-Muntefik, 35 miles north of Naseriye (on the south bank of Euphrates, 112 miles northwest of Bushah), being withdrawn by airplanes to Naseriye," the statement said.

The War Office stated that there had been considerable hostile movement, in the vicinity of Hillah, west of the Euphrates, and about 70 miles south of Bagdad. A British brigade column encountered a strong band along both sides of the railway southeast of Hillah and drove it toward the river.

Northeast of Bagdad, the statement says, opposition to the British is still strong. A small body of Arabs hold Bakuba, about 20 miles northeast of Bagdad, and Tuz Kurmati, 90 miles north of Bagdad, is reported to have been besieged. Kifri, 20 miles southeast of Tuz Kurmati, has been occupied by tribesmen and an assistant political officer has been captured.

The War Office announcement further reported that Sherabah, 40 miles south of Khanikan, where a British garrison withstood repeated attacks, has been relieved by a column from Khanikin, 80 miles northeast of Bagdad.

The statement confirms reports that Bolsheviki in Northwestern Persia have received reinforcements from Baku, the Caspian Sea and the south coast of the Aspheron peninsula, and have assumed the offensive, forcing the Persian Cossacks to abandon Resht, near the seacoast. The Cossacks were reported to have lost heavily.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

In 4 Trips Across America Essex 4 Times Breaks Record

Carrying U. S. Mail Between San Francisco and New York It Sets a Mark for Consistency of Performance and Reliability Never Equaled by Any Traveling Machine

The first test of an automobile carrying U. S. mail across the American continent was made with the light weight, moderate priced Essex.

And it resulted in establishing the Essex as holder of the transcontinental record both ways.

The performance while of momentous importance in the world of speed and automobile sportsmanship—is of greater value to the motorist. For it removes all doubt about the reliability of light weight in the most difficult and hardest road service.

Records Prove What Owners Know

Ocean to ocean automobile travel has not become so common as not to be of interest to all motorists regardless of the time required in making the trip.

Hundreds of cars have sought to set new time records between San Francisco and New York. But it has not been an easy accomplishment. The records broken by Essex had stood for four years.

It is not speed so much as absolute reliability that counts in such a test.

The car must keep going. No time can be allowed for delays. Roadside adjustments would make such a performance impossible.

And it is because the Essex held to the task its drivers set and met every road situation with equal efficiency that it today holds a mark never equaled by a traveling machine.

Your demands cannot equal those made in the transcontinental trip. But you require equal reliance of your car, whatever the service imposed.

You also have no time to give for repairs and adjustments when you have need for your car.

You want to know that no road condition will impose a halt on your motor trip. And Essex has in the consistency of its performance obtained a distinction not shared even by the costliest cars.

Doesn't It Prove What You Want?

Light weight has meant economy of operation in fuel and oil. It has not particularly meant reliability, economy of maintenance, performance or comfort.

But Essex reveals how those costly car qualities are a part also of its advantages.

You have the praise of close to 45,000 owners to guide you to the Essex.

You have official records of its 50 hours top speed performance as to its reliability. You have its record of 1061 miles in 24 hours on Iowa country roads.

And now you have this most coveted of all performances—the transcontinental record—made by four different cars. Can you hesitate in deciding for Essex?

First Essex
San Francisco to New York —4 days, 14 hours, 43 min.
Lowers Record 12 hrs., 48 min.

Second Essex
New York to San Francisco —4 days, 19 hours, 17 min.
Lowers Record 22 hrs., 13 min.

Third Essex
San Francisco to New York —4 days, 21 hours, 56 min.
Delayed by storms and Sunday road congestion entering New York. Yet did better by 5 hours, 35 minutes than former record holder.

Fourth Essex
New York to San Francisco —5 days, 6 hours, 13 min.
This car took a longer route and also ran into storms. Yet it broke the former record by 11 hours, 19 minutes.

The average time for each of the four Essex cars over 3347 miles Ocean to Ocean route was 4 days, 21 hours, 32 minutes. Best previous time, 5 days, 12 hours and 31 minutes.

RECRUIT DEBERRY SHUTS OUT BOSTON WITH THREE HITS

Southern Rookie Allows Only Seven Men to Reach First Base, in Gaining 7-0 Victory, His Second Success in Two Major League Starts.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—Joe Deberry, a right-hander, recently uncovered in the Delta League, "somewhere down South" by Bob Quinn, business manager of the Browns, hurled the St. Louisans to a 7 to 0 victory over the Red Sox in the final game of the series here this afternoon. It was Deberry's second start in the American Leagua and his second conquest. His other victory came over the Athletics.

Deberry pitched sensational ball, yielding only three safeties, one of these a scratch in the fourth, when McInnis was credited with a single when his grounder hit Hendryx, who had walked. Hooper singled in the sixth and Vitt in the ninth for the other raps off Deberry.

All told, the Red Sox put only seven men on first and in the nine rounds only 33 men faced the rookie. Three men drew free transportation while one other got on through a fielder's choice. So effective was the youngster that not a single member of the Barrow crew saw the far corner, while only two saw second. Vitt was the fortunate one, getting to Gedeon's station as a result of a walk and sacrifice in the first and again in the ninth, when he singled and Hendryx walked.

Out in Order in Five Innings.

In five of the nine frames Deberry turned the Boston batters back as fast as they came up. This was in the second, third, fifth, seventh and eighth.

The Browns "iced" up the old ball game in the third inning and the assault against Harry Harper, the southpaw, came as a bolt out of a clear sky. Two batters had been retired when Harper's wildness started him to his own downfall.

After Billings had been tossed out by Harper and Deberry had been retired on strikes, Gerber walked. Gedeon followed with a single and Sisler drew a pass, filling the bases. Jacobson was there with a single and Gerber and Gedeon tallied. Sisler scored on a double steal and then Williams walked. Smith brought in his two mates with a three-bagger.

That was enough; but for good measure the Browns put across two more against the hurling of Waite Hoyt, the right-hander, who went to the firing line at the start of the fourth, after Karr had batted for Harper in the third.

Tobin Drives in Run.

In the fifth Sisler walked and Jacobson singled. Williams went out, and on Smith's tap Sisler was caught at the plate. Tobin followed with an ace and Jacobson tallied. Tobin stole, but Vitt threw out Billings.

With two gone in the eighth, the aliens again got busy. This time it was Deberry who started the ball a-rolling with a double. Gerber and Gedeon followed with singles, Deberry scoring, but the mighty Sisler fanned. Sisler failed to get a safety throughout the contest.

The Browns departed tonight for New York, where they are scheduled to open a series tomorrow. Urban Shocker will try for his twenty-third victory in the inaugural with Miller Huggins' troupe.

SIX TEAMS HAVE WON MUNICIPAL PENNANTS

Six team have won pennants in the various leagues of the Municipal Baseball Association and will enter the elimination contests, scheduled to start next week. The clubs which are assured of places are as follows: Kokens, Commercial League; Western Electric, Bell Telephone League; [illegible], Wagner League; First National, Bankers League; Triple A, Manufacturers League; Schumachers, North Side League.

Teams in the Sunday School League will not enter the title series, but instead will play a series among themselves. This is because the S. S. nines do not play Sunday baseball.

Browns Have Won 8 Of 11 Games Played With Eastern Clubs

JIMMY BURKE and his Browns are traveling at a pennant pace on their Eastern tour. When the Burkemen downed the Red Sox yesterday they captured their eighth game in 11 starts for a winning percentage of .727. This is a faster gait than any other club is maintaining at present.

The Browns inaugurated their Eastern stand in Washington and took two out of three from Griffith. Against Philadelphia the count was 3—1 in favor of the Phil ball entry, while the Red Sox were downed in three of four clashes.

TRIPLE A WITH 14-2 RECORD WINS PENNANT IN THE MANUFACTURERS

Triple A, with "Poge" Lewis on the hurling hill, yesterday defeated the Fultons, 6—2, thereby clinching the pennant in the Manufacturers' League of the Municipal Baseball Association. Triple A wound up the year with a record of 14 victories against two defeats. Lewis did not lose a game, the two defeats being suffered while the former Pikeway football star was out of the city.

Yesterday Lewis held his rivals to six hits and fanned 11 batters.

In the other games, Columbia defeated McElroy-Sloan, 9—8; Butler Brothers downed Dittman, 9—7, and the Great Westerns forfeited to Emerson.

Vincent Richards Defeats Clothier For Tennis Title

New Southampton Champion Is Youngest Player to Hold the Honors.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Vincent Richards, of New York, the youthful tennis star, defeated former national champion William J. Clothier of Philadelphia 6—4, 6—2, 4—6, 6—0 in the finals of the men's singles for the medal cup here today.

By his victory Richards becomes the successor to Charles S. Garland of Pittsburg and the Davis cup team, in holding the trophy. He is the youngest competitor who has ever won here.

The point score follows:

FIRST SET.
Richards 4 4 1 5 3 2 2 4 4 4—33—6
Clothier 1 1 4 3 5 4 4 1 2 1—26—4

Clothier 5 4 4 4 1 1 0 0 4 4—27—6

FOURTH SET.
Richards 5 4 5 6 5 4—29—6
Clothier 3 1 3 4 3 2—16—0

Davis Cup Stars Lose.

In the final of the doubles Richards had Ralph H. Burdick, the middle western star, as his partner. The pair in an exciting and thrilling five-set session pulled out a victory against the Davis cup team players, William T. Tilden II. and Charles S. Garland. In the rallies of this battle Richards was easily the best man on the court. He had to plug up the gaps that Burdick's bad smashing made in the score, while on the opposite side of the net Tilden tried to make up lost ground by Garland's weak performance with the racquet.

For all that, it was an exhibition that thrilled one of the greatest assemblages ever gathered here. The final score was 6—2, 3—6, 4—6, 6—2, 7—5.

MEINBERG YIELDS ONLY ONE HIT AND WINS, 1-0

The league leaders in the Bell Telephone League had a hard time nosing out the tail-end Executive-Engineers by the score of 7 to 6, but came through by holding an E-E rally in the ninth to two runs. The feature game of the league season occurred at Forest Park, when the local Bells' star left-hander, Meinberg, won a pitchers' battle from the Accounting star, Minnemann, 1 to 0. He allowed only one hit and Minnemann only three. The only run resulted from a homer by Lusby. By taking the seconds game, 6 to 4, the locals clinched second place, for which they had been tied with the Accounting team.

Strike Agitation Against Mays Is Ordered Stopped

President Johnson of A. L. Has Sent Orders to Every Club, Ruppert Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Agitation for a strike against Pitcher Carl Mays of the New York club of the American League has been ordered stopped by President Ban Johnson, according to an announcement made here by Col. Jacob Ruppert, one of the owners of the New York club. President Johnson was in this city for a short time yesterday and Col. Ruppert said he had a talk with the league president over the telephone.

According to the announcement made by Col. Ruppert, he said President Johnson told him that he had sent orders to every club in the league notifying them that the agitation for a strike against Pitcher Mays must cease immediately.

After the death of Ray Chapman, shortstop of the Cleveland club, which resulted from a ball thrown by Mays in a game in this city, it was reported that several clubs had discussed refusing to take part in games against New York when Mays was selected to pitch. Active agitation for a strike against Mays, however, is said to have been inaugurated by the Cleveland club in a petition sent to the various clubs of the league urging them to join with the Cleveland club in refusing to play against Mays.

Since the accident Mays has pitched games against the Detroit and Chicago clubs, and, with the order now sent by Johnson, prohibiting further action against Mays, it would appear that the fatal accident is now a closed chapter of baseball history.

Should any club, however, violate the order of President Johnson and refuse to play against Mays, the only course left open would be for umpires to forfeit such games to the Yankees, which, under the circumstances, would involve a heavy fine on the offending club, according to the league rules.

GIANTS OUTHIT 12-7, SHUT OUT REDS, 4-0

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 28.—Although the Giants were outhit by the Reds today, almost two to one, they were more successful in bunching their safe drives, and won, 4 to 0. Benton allowed 12 hits and walked three men, but the champions did not get a runner to third base after the first inning. The second game of a scheduled double-header was stopped by rain in the first inning, neither side having scored. The series will close with a double-header tomorrow. The score:

MUNICIPAL BASEBALL OFFICIALS TO MEET

A meeting of the officials of the Municipal Baseball Association will be held at Community Center Hall, Grand and Vista, tomorrow night, when arrangements for the playing of the elimination games to decide the city championship will be made.

All managers of pennant-winning teams are requested to be present, as are officials of the various circuits. Drawings for the first round will be made at the meeting.

Rules, which will govern the elimination clashes, will be explained.

Champion Herman Must Step Lively In Labor Day Go

Eastern Critics Speak Highly of Joe Burman, Who Will Be Pete's Foe.

By John E. Wray.

Kid Bandy, the South Side lightweight, was scheduled to "come back" at the Battery A drill yard, next Wednesday night, according to announcements made last week by the St. Louis Athletic Association. His opponent for the occasion was given out as Ray Rivers, but whether the promoters will see fit to go forward with the match as originally scheduled, after what happened to Ray at East Chicago yesterday, has not yet been made public.

Rivers, a Los Angeles product, was so badly defeated in a preliminary to the Charley White-Pal Moran fight at East Chicago that Referee Ed Smith had to stop the show to save Rivers from cruel and unusual punishment.

Bandy's friends, remembering the broken hand and its present unsound appearance, may think it best to start the game St. Louis fighter against a not too difficult proposition. In this case, Rivers would prove acceptable, if not too badly minced up by his little known Chicago adversary, Purrill.

The most interesting event in the near future for St. Louis, naturally is the coming appearance here of Bantam Champion Pete Herman against Joe Burman, the bout being scheduled to take place Sept. 6 at the Coliseum.

Burman Highly Recommended.

The Labor Day bout will serve to give Burman another chance to make good the nice things said of him in New York, Philadelphia and Newark, where he is classed right up there with Herman and Lynch and would be considered a title candidate except that he seems unable to do the bantamweight limit. Even this remains to be proved, however.

A wire to Billy Rocap, the Philadelphia authority, brought back this statement concerning Burman:

"Burman stands high in Philadelphia, but it is a question if he can make the bantamweight limit, ringside, and be strong. I think 120-122 pounds his best weight. At equal weights he should prove a worthy opponent of Lynch or Herman and should give a good account of himself in a limited round bout."

New York rates him as "about in the same class as Lynch and Herman," according to advices.

In his lone appearance here Burman's showing was interfered with by the tactics of Frankie Daly, his opponent.

According to his admirers, Burman ought to make it very warm for the champion here Labor Day. Herman will be of necessity compelled to fight a careful engagement. With a match on against Jimmy Wilde in prospect Sept. 27, Herman will take just as few chances in St. Louis as he can get away with, unless human nature reverses its customary procedure under the get-rich-quick system of boxing.

Burman May Force the Fight.

The hope of St. Louis spectators lies in Burman's eagerness to oppose Herman and his evident anxiety to make a good showing against him. The elements of a great match will be present if Burman can sting Herman into a real championship display. The Chicagoan has never before had a chance at the champion.

However, Pete is a past master of the safety-first style of boxing. This match would be worth $25,000 if fought in New York, under the new law.

Nothing would delight St. Louis fans more than to find in Burman a fighter willing to give the public a run for its greenbacks.

He May Be Right.

A boxing expert who is on the ground at Benton Harbor sends the following post card bulletin:

"Dempsey looks and acts great. Better come up and see the murder Sept. 6."

Try It Again, Roger.

The local four-round boxing show of last Friday may not have declared a dividend, but it made a lot of friends. Of the card of six bouts three were extremely interesting, especially so that of the ancient warrior, Eddie Lennon against Young Dundee. Edward showed that the old craft and experience can avail at least for a time against the rugged strength of youth.

This Johnny Thompson, too, hung a surprise on Charley Silver, who got away with a victory seemingly because he had condition on his foe. While Thompson was fresh—about three-fourths of one round—he made Silver wonder if he had gone into the ring with Johnny Kilbane by any chance. If Thompson can get into condition he ought to be a card in this four-round stuff."

St. Louisans will have their first professional glimpse of Peewee Kaiser, Labor Day, when he meets Benny Shapiro in one of the Herman-Burman preliminaries. Shapiro met Peewee when they were amateurs without causing John to feel downhearted. Great things are expected of Kaiser, who is being nursed along with as much care as a $150,000 two-year-old.

Orb Jolly and Joe McMullen will battle in another preliminary, Sept. 6. "Battle" is said advisedly, for these two do not know how to shirk, unless they have taken several lessons in the last few months.

Jakie May Wins First Victory This Year, Beating Phils 5-4

Cardinals' Southpaw Shows Control in Pinches, While His Mates Display Unsteadiness—McHenry's Double in Eighth Turns Tide in Favor of St. Louisans.

Frank Spruell May of Wendell, N. C., alias "Jakie," a left-handed pitcher with whose services Branch Rickey has steadfastly refused to part, scored his first 1920 victory for the Cardinals yesterday afternoon, pitching brilliantly against the tail-end Phillies, though the box score shows that the Cravath men outhit the Rickeymen, 10 to 9. The score was 5 to 4, but this does not tell the story of May's effectiveness.

Always owning as smooth a pitching delivery and as graceful a motion as is to be seen in the ranks of major league hurlers, Jake has been bothered all season by wildness and an inclination to blow up when his support wobbled. Yesterday his backers cracked badly, but Jake did not. In six of the nine innings the first Phillie to bat reached base; but had it not been for weak fielding by Harold Janvrin, subbing for Hornsby, the Phillies would have had only two runs.

Rogers Hornsby reported with a high fever and on his physician's orders was kept out of uniform. He probably will be given several days' rest. To offset Rogers' absence, Austin McHenry returned to his position in left field, it having been determined that his finger, injured Thursday, was not fractured. It was Mack's double in the eighth that started the Knot-Holers on the way to the run which gave May his first triumph of the season.

Tainted Runs Help May.

George Smith started for the Phillies and was touched for a run in the first inning. Jack Smith opened with a grounder which Paulette fumbled, giving Jack a life. Fournier walked and was forced by Stock, Smith going to third. Janvrin fouled to Ralph Miller but McHenry celebrated his return to the game by beating out a smash to Fletcher in deep short, scoring Smith.

Another tainted run was pushed over by the Cards in the second. With one down Dilhoefer lined a single to center. Fletcher dropped Rawlings' throw on May's grounder, and all hands were safe. Jack Smith popped to Rawlings, but Fournier drove a liner to center for a base, scoring Dilhoefer.

In the second May showed a stout heart in getting out of a perilous position with only one Phillie run going over. Meusel slugged a double to right center and was held at third by Smith's fast return of Fletcher's ace to right. R. Miller flied to Heathcote and Meusel was held at third, but Fletcher took second on the throw home. Meusel scored while Janvrin was taking care of Witherow's troublesome grounder, and May ended the rally by making George Smith ground out to Janvrin.

The Cardinals came back in the fourth and earned two runs. With one down Dilhoefer lined to left for his second single and took second on May's grounder, too hot for Fletcher to handle. J. Smith bounced a single over G. Smith's head, the drawn-in infield making it an easy safety that scored Dilhoefer and May standing.

Jake Shows Control.

May at this point was showing remarkable control. With three balls and no strikes on Fletcher he "cut the corners of the plate" six times, the batsman fouling off four. Fletcher finally grounded to Lavan. Ralph Miller worked the call to three and two and Jake repeated the feat, Miller fouling off a half dozen before flying to Smith.

In the seventh Jake lost control for a moment. R. Miller opened with a single to center and Witherow and J. Miller, batting for G. Smith, walked, though none of the balls to either batter was much away from the plate. Paulette hit into a fast double play, Lavan to Janvrin to Fournier, R. Miller scoring. Wheat batted for Lebourveau and Stock ended the rally by making a brilliant gloved hand stab of a hot grounder.

In the eighth Rawlings flied to McHenry and May retired Cy Williams on three frantic strikes. Meusel's grounder caromed off Janvrin's shins, and as it took a bad hop it was called a hit. Fletcher poled a big league double to right center, scoring Meusel. R. Miller's grounder went unmolested between Janvrin's legs and Fletcher scored the tying run.

The Cardinals won in their half of the eighth. McHenry opened the attack with a smash to left field bleacher wall for two bases and advanced on Lavan's perfect sacrifice bunt. Heathcote lined a single over Fletcher's head and McHenry walked in. Betts was on the hill during the attack, mounting the mound after J. Miller batted for G. Smith.

The third and final game of the series will be played this afternoon at Sportsman's Park. Schupp and Rixey are the probable flingers. Play will start at 3:15 o'clock.

RICKEY CONFIDENT MAY WILL BE A GREAT HURLER

May's splendid showing yesterday lends basis to Rickey's confidence that the young left-hander some day will rank with the game's great boxmen. Whenever Rickey talks trade to minor leaguers they always wind up by saying that they'll trade their stars, "if Rickey will give them Jakie May." Jake is 22 years old.

May recently had a chance to jump to the industrial leagues, but he turned down a salary much greater than he is receiving from Rickey, and a bonus for his signature. He said he would stick with Rickey. "Any other manager would have sent me to the minors long ago," explained Jake.

Thus far this season May has taken part in 15 games, being charged with four defeats. Yesterday, as told, marked his first victory of the year.

Alexander Blanks Superbas, 1 to 0

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Chicago shut out Brooklyn, 1 to 0, today. O'Farrell's single, Alexander's sacrifice and singles by Flack and Terry resulted in the lone run. The visitors threw away their opportunities by poor base running. Both pitchers were hit hard but were backed by sensational fielding, the work of Terry saving the locals, several times. Score:

MUCKS BETTERS MARK OF OLYMPIC DISCUS VICTOR

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Arlie Mucks, former Wisconsin University athlete, hurled the discus 148 feet 1 inch in a track and field meet here today, bettering the mark of Niklander of Finland, who won the event in the Olympic games at Antwerp with a throw of 147 feet 7 5-16 inches. Mucks was unable to accompany the American team abroad because of an injury.

St. Louis Teams Lead All Rivals In Swat Figures

Collectively and Individually Mound City Batters Are Showing the Way.

This week's averages again bring to light the sorrowful plight of the St. Louis teams, each of which is equipped with the heaviest artillery in its league and neither of which has been able to maintain a constant level anywhere near the high-ups in the race.

Figures which include games of Aug. 26 bring to light the fact that the Browns and Cardinals as teams are leading their leagues in batting, the Browns with a percentage of .302, the Cards with .287.

Sisler of the Browns with .401 and Hornsby of the Cards with .364 were the respective individual league leaders as well.

Despite the fact that we lead as teams and in high individuals, the local clubs have been unable to make the leaders resort to the whip. It's all because we have not enough Shockers and Doaks, reliable hurlers, in other words.

Had the Browns been fortunate enough to have Weilman and Sothoron go at the customary strength, the American League race at least might have been more interesting for St. Louis competition. The Cards' pitching has been too irregular to hope for much.

Following are the more important batting figures:

LOCAL BOWLERS WILL HOLD MEETING TODAY

Local bowlers, who have subscribed to stock in the Middle West Bowling Tournament Co., which will stage the annual tournament here starting in November, will hold a meeting at the Marquette Hotel at 3 o'clock this afternoon to elect officers and make preliminary arrangements for the holding of the event.

All bowlers in the city are invited to subscribe to stock and attend the gathering.

Billy Miske Says His "Ship Will Come In," at Benton Harbor; Must Be a Championship

Miske Trained Six Months In Secret for Dempsey Go, Is Benton Harbor Report

Mystery as to Challenger's Purported Great Condition, Following His Retirement to Hospital, a Year Ago, Is Accounted for in Story—Measurements Show Men Equal.

By Sam Hall,

One of the West's Leading Pugilistic Authorities.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Aug. 28.—Billy Miske claims to be a much more formidable antagonist for Jack Dempsey than he was when he twice boxed the glove cyclone and lasted the distance without even being upset. Miske was ailing all through 1918 and 1919, and he boxed the present champion ten rounds in May of 1918 and six rounds in November, of the same year.

When he was fighting Dempsey, Tommy Gibbons, Fred Fulton and other fistic persons of note, spinal trouble had him in its grip, causing a kidney ailment that dragged him down physically. Miske did not know how serious the situation was and kept right on fighting though Manager Jack Reddy, often objected. Finally he became so ill, after the Levinsky fight outside of Toledo, July 3 of last year, that Reddy insisted on him going to a physician. Then it was learned that he should not have been fighting at all.

The wonder of it all was that he did not get knocked out or badly whipped at least. He did not, and waded through a tough mess of gladiators. He was bothered for months with boils, too once having four lanced in a morning and boxing Tom Gibbons ten tough rounds the same night.

"Bill's a Game Bird All Right."

Now according to Bill and Reddy, he is a far better fighter than in either of his first Dempsey fights. He was only a light heavy weight, then besides being a sick man. Now he's a real heavy weight, boasting 192 pounds of bone and muscle. He says he will be many times as tough as when Dempsey last saw him. Bill admits that Dempsey undoubtedly has improved some, also; but thinks his progress has been much greater because he is a healthy and heavier man.

Miske and Reddy actually talk confidently of the coming struggle with the mighty championship fighting machine. Bill has never been knocked out and Reddy says he never even knew of his man being knocked down. They don't allege he is a superman or anything like that, but contend that if he pulled through the fire with the best in the business while sick, he ought to be able to do much better when blessed with splendid condition.

When Miske was informed that Willard never had been stopped or knocked down, before running into the swinging Dempsey left hook, he remarked that he was harder to topple over than an ancient and undertrained veteran like Willard was in the Toledo mixup.

Here's Miske's View.

"Naturally, Dempsey is the favorite in the betting for this fight," said Miske today "He should be, but that is no sign I won't cop. The champion is always the choice with the public. There have been a few exceptions, but very few. I know I'm the shortender, and that the critics all will pick Dempsey to win, most of them by the knockout route. But that makes no difference to me. Dempsey has a chin like the rest of us, and if I find it first, there will be a terrible crash in that Floyd Fitzsimmons' ring, late Labor day afternoon.

"With my extra poundage, which is of the sort that will stick on me, I'm capable of fighting any man, and that goes for Dempsey. I will not be surprised to see him get into the ring a lighter man than me. I have felt the power of his punch and think I can hit as hard as he can and take just as strong a wallop. If anything, I have more experience and know Jack real well from the two fights I had with him.

"Willard did not know what he was running up against at Toledo. He was caught napping. I won't be caught that way. I know just what to anticipate; am all set, and have my battle plan thought out. Of course, I can't tell what it is because that would be tipping my mitt to Jack.

"It should be a great fight, and if I fail to annex the championship I will give the public the privilege of seeing Dempsey in the hottest battle he has had since he became a great fighter."

Both camps have been busy sending over spies to peek at the rival training layout. The Dempsey spies are bringing stories that Miske is really himself and fighting strongly, and the Miske peepers admit that the champion surely looks as good as ever. So neither is going into the fracas with the idea that he has caught the other fellow short of work.

Bot are shy of real fights, but its even up there. They are young and don't go to seed as rapidly as an aged general like Willard, who stayed away from the ring so long that four or five weeks' work at Toledo did him little good.

Miske trained secretly for four months at a lake cottage he owns in Minnesota. He and Reddy did not grab off the Dempsey match until they felt convinced that Bill would be fighting at his best. They are happy with their bargain, because as they claim, Dempsey will meet the greatest Miske that ever ducked under the hemp.

Miske, Minus Fat, 14 Pounds Heavier Than in Last Dempsey Go

BENTON HARBOR, Aug. 28. Billy Miske now is three and a half pounds heavier than Dempsey, or 15 pounds heavier than when he fought Dempsey two years ago, according to the following measurements of the two fighters, taken today:

DEMPSEY.		MISKE.
25	Age	26
190	Weight	193½
6 ft. 1¼ in.	Height	6 ft. 1 in.
78 in.	Reach	77 in.
39 in.	Chest, normal	39 in.
44 in.	Chest, expanded	44 in.
17 in.	Neck	17¼ in.
20½ in.	Shoulders	20½ in.
32 in.	Waist	33 in.
15 in.	Biceps	15 1-5 in.
14¼ in.	Forearms	13¼ in.
8 in.	Wrist	7¾ in.
21 in.	Thigh	22¼ in.
14¼ in.	Calf	15¼ in.
8½ in.	Ankle	9 in.

Miske weighed 180 at both of his fights with Dempsey, in 1918. Weighing 193½ today, he has not an ounce of surplus flesh. He has been in training for nearly six months, he says. The challenger in the opinion of those who have watched him, is ready to go into the ring tomorrow.

128 Net Players In Title Tourney

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—From the standpoint of playing ability, the entry list of the 39th annual national singles tennis championship tourney which opens at Forest Hills, N. Y., Monday afternoon is one of the most representative of any ever received. Of the 128 players who will take part, 65 were given a national ranking last season. R. Lindley Murray and Ichiya Kumagae are the only two of the first ten not entered. Kumagae is in Europe, where he took part in the Olympic games, reaching the final round, while Murray has played but little this season.

Nearly one-half of the contestants for national honors are residents of New York and vicinity. Fifty players are entered from New York City alone. Boston is second with eight players. Brooklyn has five, while Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco are sending four each. The number of entries from other large cities are as follows: St. Louis, Seattle, Baltimore and Springfield, two each; Indianapolis, three; Pittsburgh one, Dallas one and Detroit one.

In the first round there will likely be some close matches between Walter Hayes and G. C. Caner, Robert Leroy and Harld Throckmorton, Williams; Willis Davis and T. R. Hall; Harry Vories Jr. and A. S. Dabney and Edward Oelsner and Hugh Kelleher.

The outcome of matches in the national championship will be the basis for selecting the Eastern team for the East vs. West matches on Sept. 9, 10 and 11, at Philadelphia. Beale Wright and Holcomb Ward, New York and William Connell of Philadelphia, have been placed on a committee to select the Eastern team. Johnston, Griffin, Davis and Roberts will likely represent the West, although Hayes and Burdick of Chicago may be included. On account of the numerous victories of the Californians in the East this season every effort will be made by the committee to select a formidable team which may obtain revenge and satisfy the East.

HARRY RATICAN, BACK, IN FAVOR OF SWEDISH FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASTS

That Harry Ratican, the St. Louis boy, who for the past few years has played in the East with Bethlehem and the Robins, and who at present is making a tour with the All-St. Louis soccer eleven in Sweden, is rapidly regaining public favor, is the assertion made by John C. Meyers, trainer for the team in a letter written to the Post-Dispatch, Aug. 11, the day the St. Louisans tied Sweden, 2—2.

Meyers says, in part:

"Capt. Harry Ratican was never in better physical condition or played a better game of football. He is fast regaining his lost public favor."

In the game the St. Louisans were forced to use several substitutes because of injuries to Goalkeeper Tintle and Outside Left Forward Brown. Tintle and Brown were both injured in the clash, but, according to Swedish rules, an injured kicker may be replaced at once.

According to Meyers' letter several of the Swedish newspapers commented that the St. Louis team received the worst of the break in the decisions.

UNITED STATES ARMY TEAM CAPTURES TITLE

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 28.—The United States army team won the United States service match in the national rifle tournament here today with a total score of 4447, while the U. S. Marine Corps took second place with a total score of 4430. The civilian team placed third with 4397, the National Guard team fourth with 4354 and the U. S. navy team fifth with 4266. The match was shot over the 220-yard rapid fire, the 600-yard slow fire and the 1000-yard slow fire ranges. Each team was composed of 18 men. The finish of this match today marked the end of the national matches here. Many competitors left for Seagirt, N. J., where they will attend the State matches there.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sand box says one of the most pernicious practices in the major leagues is calling a game before it is finished to allow the teams to "catch a train." The great outdoor sport of catching a train does not appeal to the fans who pay their money to see the players catch the ball.

Connie Mack says he has a team at last that he can stand pat on. Hearing no objections from the other seven teams it is so ordered

While Connie is standing pat on 'em, the others will continue to sit pat on them.

QUITE SO.

All of which is, of course, said in jest. Connie has anything but a joke team. It's like a guy who has the reputation of being a humorist. If he says "Please pass the butter" everybody think's it's funny.

And it would be funny if he said it at one of those restaurants where butter is a thing of the past.

All of which brings us back to the old question: "Does the manager make the team or wice wersa?" Offhand we'd say that a team could get along a great deal better without a manager than a manager without a team.

It seems to be Connie's ambition to get an All-Walker outfield. He's only one man shy now.

MIGHT HIT THEIR STRIDE.

With a few more Walkers Connie would make a runaway race of it.

Ivins Captures Grand American

Red Bank (N. J.) Shooter, Competing for First Time, Gets Score of 99.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 28.—Breaking 99 out of the 100 targets, Albert L. Ivins, of Red Bank, N. J., today created a surprise when he won the Grand American handicap, the classic event of the week's international trapshooting tournament here. When the shooting was interrupted by rain yesterday, Ivins had shot at 75 targets, missing the 53d. Today he ran 25 straight and won. He had never been to a Grand American handicap at clay targets before. Ivins shot from the 19-yard line.

Second place was won by Edgar H. Sturtz of Hamilton, Ont., with 98. Third place was a tie between H. A. Ray of Oakland, Cal., Nick Arie of Menard, Tex., his brother, Mark Arie, of Champaign, Ill.; Wolfolk Henderson of Lexington, Ky., and S. S. Hopkins of Lewiston, N. Y., at 97. Henderson and Mark Arie shot from 23 yards; Nick Arie at 22 yards and the other two at 19.

On the first shoot-off Ray, Hopkins and Mark Arie broke 24, eliminating Henderson, who had 23, and Nick Arie, with 22. On the second shoot-off Ray broke 25 and won third place, Mark Arie and Hopkins each missing one.

Mark Arie withdrew and gave Hopkins fourth place, taking fifth himself. Sixth place went to Henderson and seventh to Nick Arie.

William H. Hall of Maysville, Ky.; U. R. Brooks of Columbia, S. C., shooting a borrowed gun, and William Hoon of Jewell, Ia., broke 100 straight targets in class A. In the shoot-off Hall broke 24 to 23 for Hoon and Brooks.

Toots Randall of Lima, O., won the honors for women.

Cleveland will stage the Grand American Handicap again next year.

Miss Bleibtrey Again Shatters Olympic Record

American Girl Swimmer Clips Nine Seconds Off the 300-Metre Mark.

ANTWERP, Aug. 28.—Ethelda Bleibtrey, Woman's Swimming Association of New York, beat the world's record by 9 seconds and clipped 9 3-5 seconds of the Olympic record, today when she won the 300-metre free-style event for women in 4 minutes and 34 seconds.

This was in the final heat, in which the Americans figured prominently, Margaret Woodbridge, Detroit A. C., was second in 4:44 2-5, which was also under the record. Mrs. Frances C. Schroth, San Francisco, finished third, and Eleanor Uhl, Philadelphia, fifth. The last named contestant collapsed at the finish owing to cramps, but was revived.

Norman Ross, Illinois A. C., won the 400-metre free-style in 5:26 4-5. Ludy Langer, Honolulu, was second, and George Vernot, Montreal, third.

First honors in plain diving for women went to Denmark, Miss Fryland winning the event. The English representative, Miss Armstrong, was second, and the Swede, Miss Oliver, was third. The Americans, Aileen Riggin, New York, and Betty Grimes, Minneapolis, were fifth and sixth, respectively.

McDermott Not Placed.

In the semifinals of the 200-metre breast-stroke, J. Howell, Oakland, Cal., won his heat; M. J. McDermott, U. S. navy, failed to qualify.

In the trials of fancy diving, C. Pinkston, San Francisco; H. Prieste, Los Angeles, and L. J. Bahlback, New York, qualified; Flint, Canadian, failed.

The American team defeated Spain, 5 to 0, in the semifinals for second place, in the water polo event.

AMERICA AND ENGLAND RIVALS TODAY IN FINAL OLYMPIC ROWING RACES

BRUSSELS, Aug. 28.—The oarsmen from the United States will enter the Olympic finals tomorrow with survivors placed in four out of the five events. The Americans did not compete in the event for pair-oared boats with coxswain, although a navy pair was entered formally some time ago.

Today's contests produced several excellent races. Hatfield, the New Zealand sculler, gave Jack Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, single sculls champion of the United States, a hard battle in the first half of the course in the single sculls event. The American won, however, by two lengths in an easy finish.

America and Great Britain will meet in the final of the eight-oared boats with coxswain, which already has become a big betting event. Both crews won easily today, England by three lengths over Norway and the Americans by four over France.

Oh, Boy! Some Race Here.

Interest is keen in the fight to be staged between Kelly and J. Beresford Jr., for the single sculling honors. Beresford won the Henley diamond sculls, this spring, for which competition Kelly's entry was rejected. American visitors are prepared to plunge in their wagers on Kelly and Englishmen appear just as eager to back Beresford and Leander.

ITALY WINS OLYMPIC FENCING CHAMPIONSHIP

ANTWERP, Aug. 28.—With the exception of third place last week in the team foil competition, the Americans went unplaced in the six Olympic fencing events, which have just ended.

In the individual competitions with the foils, dueling swords and sabers, the Americans never reached the finals.

The fencing competition was a great victory for Italy, their team winning a number of events, while their individual champions, the brothers Nejo and Aldo Nadi, took most of the individual contests. The points were distributed mostly between Italy, France and Belgium.

U. S. OLYMPIC BOXING TEAM TO TOUR EUROPE

ANTWERP, Aug. 28.—The American boxing team, which finished second in the recent Olympic contests, is planning a European tour before returning to the United States. The athletes taking the trip will be under the management of H. M. (Spike' Webb, their coach.

MRS. LETTS CAPTURES WOMEN'S WESTERN GOLF TITLE FOR THIRD TIME

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr., for the third time in six years won the women's Western golf championship today, when she defeated Miss Edith Cummings 2 up at the Oak Park Country Club.

Miss Cummings started out strong and early in the match was 2 up, but she faltered on the approaches and greens and lost the advantage at the turn.

Both players made remarkable shots at times, but were unsteady, Mrs. Letts being especially erratic in her putting.

The champion equaled men's par on the eighth and ninth holes, and on the 145-yard thirteenth hole made the best shot of the day, driving the green and scoring a "birdie" two against a men's pair of three.

Miss Cummings then started a rally, winning three straight holes and squaring the match on the 620-yard sixteenth with a seven while Mrs. Letts took eight.

Miss Cummings sent her drive on the seventeenth into the bunker, however, and then made a short recovery. Mrs. Letts drove to the edge of the green and sank in three, Miss Cummings taking four.

With the score one up in her favor, Mrs. Letts reached the green on the eighteenth in three and sank in two putts, winning the match. Miss Cummings drove into the rough but made a good recovery. She fell short on her approach, however, and took four to reach the green, sinking in six.

Mrs. Letts shot a 48 going out and 44 coming in, while Miss Cummings had 45 and 44.

De Palma Breaks Records Winning Elgin Road Race

Italian Averages 79½ Miles Per Hour for Event—Takes $9000 Prize Money.

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 28.—Breaking all records for the course, Ralph De Palma won the annual Elgin road race today covering the 251 miles, 2820 feet in 3:09:64, or at an average speed of 79½ miles per hour.

Tommy Milton finished a close second, his time being 3:11:47. Third place was won by James Murphy in 3:12:47. Ralph Mulford was fourth in 3:12:59; Edward O'Donnell, fifth in 3:16:50, and Percy Ford, of Chicago, sixth, in 3:24:14. Tom Alley and Gaston Chevrolet finished seventh and eighth respectively, but were outside the prize money.

From the first lap to the last De Palma maintained his lead over the field, setting the pace all the way, although he was closely pressed at times by Mulford, Murphy and Milton. Only a few seconds separated the leaders at any time during the race, leaving the outcome in doubt until De Palma had crossed the tape for the last time winning possession of the Cobe trophy, $6000 for first prize money and $3000 more for leading at the end of each lap.

Only Two Stop at Pits.

During the entire contest only two cars stopped at the pits, one being Gaston Chevrolet, who was forced to halt in the second lap to remove an obstruction from his gasoline pipe, and who thus lost four laps which he never recovered; the other being Joe Thomas, driver of car No. 15, who stopped to allow Tom Alley to replace him at the wheel. Thomas was injured during a practice spin last week and found himself too weak to finish the contest, although he piloted his car for six laps.

De Palma covered the first 150 miles at an average speed of 81¼ miles an hour. The nineteenth lap he covered in 6 minutes 11 seconds, breaking the course record made by Spencer Wishart five years ago in the race in which he was killed, of 6 minutes and 18 seconds. Both De Palma and Milton made the twentyfifth lap in 6 minutes and 13 seconds. De Palma's average of 79½ miles an hour for the entire distance also established a new record, the best previous mark of 77.25 miles an hour having been made by Gil Anderson in 1915. Milton, who won last year, only averaged 73.9 in securing first place then.

Milton Leads All Drivers.

The speed shown is declared by race officials to be especially remarkable in view of the fact that Wishart's record was made with a motor having 450 cubic inches displacement and Anderson's 300 cubic inches, while all of the cars in today's contest were limited to motors of 183 cubic inches under the new rules.

By capturing second place today, Milton won 250 points in the A. A. A. championship drivers' contests and thus went into first place ahead of Chevrolet and Murphy. The present standing is Milton, 1220 points; Chevrolet, 1050, and Murphy, 965.

CHARLEY WHITE AGAIN LOSES TO PAL MORAN; RIVERS BADLY BEATEN

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Aug. 28.—Pal Moran of New Orleans had a shade the better of Charley White of Chicago in a 10-round bout here today. Moran carried the fight to White all the way and after a furious exchange of blows in the final round, White fell into a clinch to wait for the bell.

White lost his forfeit when he went into the ring weighing 135¾, three-fourths of a pound above the figure agreed on. White, in a few rounds, gave a good exhibition of infighting, but Moran's superior footwork carried him out of danger.

Ed Smith, referee, stopped the preliminary bout between Bud Perrill of Terre Haute, and Ray Rivers of Los Angeles, in the ninth round to save Rivers.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., defeated Barney Doolan of Dublin, Ireland, in 10 rounds.

FOUR ST. LOUIS GOLFERS WILL PLAY IN NATIONAL AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

The national amateur championship golf tournament will open at the Engineers' Club, Roslyn, L. I., Monday, Sept. 6, with 36 holes of qualifying play over two courses, which will be used to take care of the large field in one day.

Some doubt existed in the minds of local golfers as to the exact time of starting, as last year there was an elimination round on Saturday. Definite information was received yesterday by Clarence Wolff in answer to a telegram to tournament officials. Match play will be started on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Four St. Louisans are virtually certain that they will enter the tournament. They are Jimmy Manion, Richard Bockenkamp, Eddie Limberg and Wolff. Chris Kenney and Walter Kossman may decide to take in the competition.

THOMPSON SETS JAVELIN MARK IN C. A. A. U. MEET

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The Chicago Athletic Association had an easy time winning the senior Central A. A. U. track and field meet held today at Stagg Field, scoring 104 points. The Illinois Athletic Association was second with 43, University of Chicago third with 19; Northwestern University 10, and University of Michigan, 7, followed.

Absence of most of the best athletes in Europe at the Olympic games resulted in performances lower than the usual standard in all events except the javelin throw. Racine Thompson of the I. A. C. hurled the javelin 166 feet 5 inches for a new Central A. A. U. record.

Physical Balance Prime Requisite To Good Golf, British Pro Asserts

LESSON NO. 4—BALANCE ALL-IMPORTANT IN ADDRESSING THE BALL.

By George Duncan.

British Open Golf Champion.

SUPPLEMENTING my last week's discourse on the stance, I might mention that there is one way of bringing off a slice with a "square" stance, and, as it points to a fault that is rather common, I will tell you how it is accomplished, so that you may avoid it. Some players have a habit of leaning toward the ball by putting the bigger half of their bodily weight upon the left foot when addressing the ball.

That sort of thing is splendid if you want to slice, but it is almost invariably fatal if you want to keep straight. Such a stance at the time of addressing means that there has to be a double transference of bodily weight; as your club goes backward, the weight has to be taken off the left foot and transferred to the right; then, as the club head strikes the ball the weight must come forward on to the left foot once more, and such a complicated movement must entail quite a number of inaccuracies, chief among which is slicing.

This "leaning against" the ball is, to some extent, a natural fault, for, knowing the importance of making a good start to a hole, some players lack confidence on the tee, and, as a consequence, they try to get as near to the ball as they can, thinking that by doing so they will be the more likely to hit it hard and straight.

Such players handicap themselves just about as badly as they could from the point of view of keeping straight or hitting hard. If you stand up to the ball with too much weight on the left leg you are forcing yourself to perform an accentuated sway before you can hit the ball any appreciable distance.

There are people who can do that sort of thing, but they are very few, and there is no reason why you should try to emulate the bad example of the few. Only a positive genius at timing can hope to get his club back to the ball in the manner he should after going through all those bodily gyrations. Always be careful to avoid handicapping yourself in the matter of leaning against the ball.

The thing which follows naturally upon stance is "physical balance." Having placed your feet correctly, you must concern yourself very directly with the question of how your bodily weight shall be distributed in order that it shall be helping towards the introduction of power into your stroke instead of interfering with your swing and putting you in the position of being beaten by your own body.

The Distribution of Weight.

Let me tell you straight away that your bodily weight has to be taken through several phases of distribution in the course of the swing. At the address it is in one position; halfway through the upswing it is distributed differently; at the top of the swing it is much the same as at the address; in coming down to the ball your bodily weight goes through the same process of distribution as it did when the club was going upwards.

I mention all this in order to instill into your minds the importance of physical balance in golf. You have seen many a player topple as he swings his club; you have seen others with feet close together, take their clubs up straight, with stiffened knees that are bent quickly as the club approaches the ball; you have seen players pull their heads backward as their club goes upward; all that sort of thing is destroying the physical balance which stance, grip and almost everything in golf instruction is designed to cultivate.

Natural Sense of Balance.

Players who walk up to their ball and fiddle and scratch about until they have succeeded in getting their feet into the position that, to them, seems correct, are all suffering from a lack of what the phrenologists call "weight," the brain development which gives to a man the power to control his body and place it in such manner as will best enable him to achieve the object in hand.

Footballers, cricketers, boxers, tennis players, all men who have been prominent in sport, could not have attained to that prominence had they not been blessed with a natural sense of physical balance or cultivated that desirable quality by close observance of what others did. Without this quality the footballer will not be able to kick the ball with his instep as much as he should (the ball will be hitting his shin); the cricketer will be topping on to his stumps as he moves his feet to make a stroke; the boxer will have no forward shove in his hindmost foot as he punches, and the tennis player will fail to strike the ball at the time when his racket and his arm are in a straight line.

You, as a golf player, must understand that you will not get a satisfactory amount of power into your strokes and will not be able to play with that ease which should be yours if you cannot control your bodily weight during the course of the swing.

Weight on the Heels.

When you are addressing the ball you must feel some weight on the heels, otherwise you will topple forward, almost imperceptibly, maybe, but sufficiently to make a lot of difference. If you do not do that, you are not giving to your body the independence of support that it should have. The slightest suggestion that you are leaning on your club, much as a cricketer rests on his bat while waiting for the bowler to start his run to the wickets, must be removed from your mind when you address the ball. Letting the weight of the body be felt on the heels will do that for you.

Then, you must take care that the major portion of weight is on the right leg as you stand up to your ball. When I say that, if you are an eleven stones man, you should have seven stones of weight on the right leg and the remainder on the left. I do not want any stickler for exactitude to dispute my statement and tell me that I am several ounces out.

But that method of expressing my idea of what the distribution of weight should be, will, I feel sure, convey to you what is in my mind and convey it in a manner that will help you to realize how your feet should feel, for it is your feet which will tell you whether you have got more weight on your right leg than on your left, as you must have for the purpose of controlling your body through the swing.

When your club is pointing in the direction reverse to that in which you are going to hit the ball, there should be very little weight, indeed, upon your left foot; but when the club is at the top of the swing you will have arrived at the original distribution of weight—that which exists at the time of address—but, of course, instead of the weight on the left foot being borne partly by the heel, it should be resting on the ball of the great toe.

WINTERS' PITCHERS GO THROUGH YEAR WITHOUT BEING DRIVEN TO COVER

Few Municipal teams have ever had as good pitching or so many good pitchers as have been at the disposal of the Winters this season in the Empire League. With all but two of their scheduled games completed, Manager Strong's hurlers have gone through the season without any one ever being driven from the box. In the 18 games played only once did a pitcher fail to finish his game, and that was when Outfielder Vorbeck was called to the box to face the ninth inning batters after Higgins had a lead which insured victory.

Jimmy Elliott, southpaw, now under contract with Browns, started and finished 11 games, winning seven of them. Higgins has won four and lost one. Manager Strong also has finished and won the only game he started.

Elliott pitched a double-header in mid-season, one of the games going 12 innings. In the 21 innings he struck out 29 of the Prendergast batters. Higgins holds the league's strikeout record for a nine-inning game, having struck out 17 men in a game with the Prendergasts. Former Manager Gerbig, who organized the Winters, later turning over the leadership to Strong, expects Higgins to soon follow Elliott into the big league.

The Winters and Americans are tied for the lead in the Empire League with 13 victories and five defeats. The two play today in the game to decide the championship.

ST. LOUIS GIANTS WIN

The St. Louis Giants defeated the East St. Louis Butchers, 7—1, at the Giants' park yesterday. Today the Giants go to Alton for a game with the Moose Club.

Conway Defeats Wagoner 5 and 4

Good Matches Are Scheduled Today in Municipal Golf Title Event.

Only one match was played in the championship class of the annual municipal golf tournament over the public course in Forest Park yesterday. In this contest Fred Conway survived the first round by defeating S. B. Wagoner, 5 up and 4 to play. Conway was low medalist in last week's qualifying play, turning in a 76 for the round.

Other first round matches will be played today. The feature will bring together Ed Reagan and Louis Hamel. Other matches are as follows:

J. B. Curran vs. George Koob.
C. C. Miller vs. Vincent Nettler.
Eddie Held vs. Eddie Kane.
E. H. Miller vs. Frank Pep.
Les White vs. Benny Richter.
Frank Lynch vs. J. G. McManus.

FOUR RACES AT WATERWORKS PARK TOMORROW

Four trotting and pacing races are scheduled for tomorrow at Water Works Park under the auspices of the St. Louis Driving Club. The events and entries are as follows:

2:20 pace—Laura B., St. Elmo, Real Grattan, Freddie S. and Equation.

2:30 trot—Fay Cord, Grace Redlander and Robin Reaper.

2:40 trot—Mamie Millerton, Spike C. Direct, Farmer Boy, Reserve Pribce and Miss Prim.

3:00 trot—Miller Reaper, California Patonisie, Baronet Grattan and St. Patrick Millerton.

Former Coach at Beloit to Assist Pikeway Director

O. B. Littick Has Accepted Terms of Washington; Is an All-Around Man.

Washington University athletic officials announced yesterday that O. B. Littick has been selected to serve as first assistant on the Pikeaway athletic staff for the coming collegiate year. George L. Rider was recently appointed director of athletics, and a third man will be named for the staff during the next few days.

Littick will assist Rider with the varsity football squad and will have charge of the Red and Green baseball and basketball teams. Rider will direct the football and track athletes, and the third member of the staff will be in complete charge of freshman athletics. Heretofore the local institution has had only one full-time athletic instructor.

Littick comes to Washington from Beloit (Wis.) College, where he has been director of athletics for the past two years. Previous to that he was director at Centre College at Danville, Ky. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan College, and was a letter man in four branches of athletes during his undergraduate period.

Strong Point Is Baskets.

The newest appointee is best known as a basketball coach. This sport has been Beloit's major athletic activity for the past two years, and the small institution made an enviable record on the indoor court. Last season Wisconsin could only nose out a two-point victory, while Northwestern was held to a four-point win. Other schools in Beloit's class were easily trounced.

Littick's basketball success started while coaching at Centre. In 1917-18, his last season at the Kentucky institution, Centre won 10 of its 12 games, defeating Kentucky, Georgetown, Transylvania and other schools of the section.

Conzelman's Plans Unsettled.

Pikeway authorities are still uncertain as to whether Jim Conzelman will return to school next semester. The versatile athlete has several business offers and is considering the acceptance of one of them. If "Jeems" should decide to forego his collegiate education, the eleven would have to seek a new quarterback. Whitley has turned professional during the summer, and Tommy Thompson is a trifle light for the job. Ollie Kreahe, who played a tackle of the 1919 team, has announced that he is going to make a bid for the general's job this season. Kreahe has a bad wrist from last season and thinks he is better fitted for a backfield job than line duty.

DIESEL AND KAMMANN MAKE GOOD IN JUNIOR CENTER TENNIS EVENTS

In the finals of the junior center tennis championship, played yesterday at Forest Park, Karl Kammann beat E. Bond, 6—0, 6—0, 6—3 for the singles title.

Kammann and Dan Diesel won the junior doubles from F. Scherer and W. Bierman, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3, 6—0.

In the semifinal round of the Municipal men's doubles Ted and Ed Heuerman of Fairgrounds beat J. Brady and Gus Burgland, Sherman Park, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

The remaining matches in this class are held up until the return of Fred Josties from the national championships. Josties and Satterfield are scheduled to play the Moult brothers of Carondelet, and the winner of this bout opposes Reppert and Drewes for a place in the final round.

Two matches were played in the women's municipal tennis tourney. Mrs. A. Stradol of Tower Grove won from Regina Lane, Sherman Park, 1—6, 6—4, 9—7. Etta Roever of Forest Park defeated Georgia Dobson of Reservoir Park, 6—0, 6—1.

In the mixed doubles, municipal, Millicent Endicott and Alvin Schwarz defeated Mrs. Mary Meyers and L. Coleman, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3.

Today at 4 p. m. at Forest Park, Miss Etta Roever will play Miss Frida Brink of Carondelet. The winner will oppose Mrs. Stradol in the final.

In the interclub team play the Forest Park team will oppose the Fairgrounds team at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Fairgrounds is in the lead in the inter-club race. Seven men play on each team. They call it a day after three singles and two doubles matches.

SIR BARTON, CARRYING 133 POUNDS, SETS NEW RECORD AT SARATOGA

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Sir Barton, carrying the crushing impost of 133 pounds, and conceding much weight to his opponents, scored in a sensational manner in winning the Merchants' and Citizens' Handicap here today. In winning the stake, at a mile and three-sixteenths, Sir Barton created a new world's record for the distance, when he stepped it in 1:55 2-5, just two-fifths of a second faster than the best previous time, made by Cudgel in 1918, and equaled two days age by Sleopatra.

In view of the fact that the J. K. L. Ross starter was carrying big weight and setting the pace from the start, his race is truly remarkable. Standing the long drive which he was forced to stand places the stamp of a great thoroughbred on him.

23 in Charter Oak.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 28.—Final closing of entries for the Grand Circuit meeting at Charter Oak Park track, beginning Sept. 6, shows 245 in the events. There are 23 horses named for the Charter Oak $10,000 stake, and the trots for 2 and 3 year olds have a total of 54.

M'CULLOCH-CAMERON TRIAL SET FOR TOMORROW

Defendants and Attorneys Depart Today for Springfield, Where Trial Takes Place.

Defendants and lawyers in the trial of Richard McCulloch and Bruce Cameron, charged with burglary in the second degree and larceny, will leave today and tonight for Springfield, where the trial is set to begin tomorrow in the Greene County Criminal Court, on a change of venue from St. Louis. Witnesses will go, for the most part, after a jury is selected.

McCulloch is president of the United Railways corporation, and Cameron is former superintendent of transportation. The charge against them is based on the theft of referendum petitions from a safe, June 15, 1918. Julius Caesar Jackson, former special agent of the company, who admits that he engineered the burglary, charges the two officials with giving him the orders on which he proceded. He is chief witness for the prosecution.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel intends to bring the case to trial at this time if possible, a continuance having been obtained by the defense in May.

PAYMASTER ROBBED OF $15,000

By the Associated Press.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 28.—Three men in an automobile held up the paymaster of the General American Co. at East Chicago this morning and escaped with $15,000.

The robbers started toward Chicago in an automobile, but on the outskirts of East Chicago stopped and stole another machine, in which they fled across the State line, eluding Hammond police.

COUPLE CONVICTED OF MURDER BY MONKEY

Animal Goes Frantic in Court Room at Trial of Suspected Man and Woman.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Often a mute witness has given the most convincing evidence in a suit or trial at law. For example, many a dog, by displaying naturally, his affection for his master has confounded the pretences of the man claiming to own him. It remained for a monkey, the only witness of the crime, to convict two persons of murder.

The Ackermann circus was giving performances in Constantinople not long ago. Its manager was found dead in front of a cage containing an Indian monkey, to which, because of his affectionate playfulness, had been given the name Scamp. It was shown easily that the manager had been stabbed to death at the moment he was feeding Scamp, of which he was very fond. By the man's body lay a tin dish and remnants of the meal he had been giving the monkey.

Murder Is Re-Enacted.

Two members of the circus troup, a married couple named Starr, were suspected of the crime, for they had quarreled with the manager, who was popular with the other performers. But the Starrs protested their innocence vigorously and no criminating evidence against them could be found.

So the Judge determined to reconstruct the murder; a plan adopted not infrequently and derived, probably from the ancient trial by ordeal.

At the hour at which Scamp had been fed, the circus tent was deserted by all employes. Then the Starrs were ordered to approach Scamp's cage, which they did rather hesitatingly. The instant the monkey saw them he flew into a paroxysm of rage. Never before had he exhibited such violent anger, for, as has been said, he is of an amiable and playful disposition. Chattering fiercely, Scamp hurled himself against the bars of the cage, making frantic attempts to seize the Starrs. Suddenly fear succeeded rage, and Scamp cowed in a corner, shivering and whimpering.

Monkey Taken to Court.

The Judge and police were deeply impressed by the scene during which Starr and his wife tried vainly to maintain composure.

At the next sitting of the court the monkey was led in. Only a few minutes before Scamp, in high good humor, had permitted strangers to pat his head, stroke his back and "shake hands" with him. But scarcely had he entered the courtroom and caught sight of the Starrs than he became infuriated and tried to spring at them. Then, again the remembrances of the tragedy he had seen overwhelmed Scamp and he shrank from them, straining at his chain to escape from their presence.

No spoken evidence could have been half so eloquent. Despite their emphatic and repeated denials, Starr and his wife were adjudged guilty.

TWO OFFICERS AND A NEGRO KILLED IN RAID ON A STILL

Charley Chandler, Alleged Moonshiner, Said to Have Had Other Negroes Guarding Plant.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Aug. 28.—Home Adrean, Deputy County Sheriff, Stanley F. Weiss, Federal prohibition officer, and an alleged moonshiner, Charlie Chandler, a negro, were killed, and Claude Tyler, another Deputy County Sheriff, was seriously wounded two miles north of Arcadia, 20 miles northeast of here, early today, when the officers attempted to raid a still, according to a telephone message from United States officers at Guthrie to the United States Marshal's office here.

A special posse of county and United States officials left here for the scene of the shooting immediately upon receipt of news of the shootings.

It was stated in the report that Chandler, the moonshiner, had other negroes armed with rifles guuarding all approaches to the still.

SNAKE "CHARMER" BADLY BITTEN

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 28.—Mary Harris, "vampire" snake charmer at a side show at the Illinois State Fair, mistook a full-fanged black diamond rattlesnake for one of her harmless pets late yesterday, in doing her "vampire" act. The snake buried its fangs in her cheek. At a hospital where she was taken it was said this morning that her condition was serious.

POLICE AND FIREMEN RESCUE EX-CATHOLIC PRIEST IN RIOT

Mob Burns Tent at Meeting Held in Residence Section of Toledo.

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 28.—Police and firemen were called early yesterday to subdue a small riot in the vicinity of a tent meeting conducted by Rev. Louis J. King, ex-Catholic priest in a residence section of the city. King police said, was rescued from a mob surrounding his tent which was burned.

King is the central figure in a court trial in Monroe County, Michigan, in which two of his adherents are charged with murder following a sectarian riot at Whitford Center last June in which two of the attacking party were killed.

Stills in Coffin; Undertaker Held.

By the Associated Press.

MANY BIG REALTY DEALS SAID TO BE IN CONTRACT FORM

Transactions With Consideration Ranging From $100,000 to $1,000,000 Feature Week's Activities.

HERALDED FALL REVIVAL BEGUN

Negotiations On for Coming of Industrial Concern of Transcending Importance, Operator Says.

By Berry Moore.

Transactions in realty were of a more general character last week. There was plain indication that the heralded fall revival was closely approaching full swing. The scope of activities extended to all parts of the city and to a class of property heretofore relatively unresponsive, and the impression is that trading is rapidly nearing a comprehensive scale.

As to dwellings and single flats the supply open to purchase has well nigh vanished under the overwhelming demand of the last year, while holdings of the investment order are receiving decided attention.

Several transactions, ranging in consideration from $100,000 to $1,000,000, were placed under contract during the week, but details in these instances are withheld pending the conclusion of negotiations for loans for flotation purposes. These operations cover holdings in the business district of which control has been sought for a long time, as well as for large land interests in the industrial districts and in St. Louis County. The successful culmination of these operations is confidently relied upon to have a wholesome effect, in that it is likely to precipitate others on even a broader scale.

Great Enterprise Coming.

According to one of the leaders of the realty fraternity, there are progressing negotiations contemplating an industrial enterprise in St. Louis of transcending importance. The assembling of the site for this project is under way.

Fred G. Zeibig of Cornet & Zeibig, James M. Franciscus of Franciscus & Kunz, William Specht of Barngrove & Specht; Henry Roettger of the Roettger-Masek Real Estate Co.; Earl Giraldin of the Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co.; Bernard Dickmann of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. and a number of other prominent real estate men, returned to the city post haste last week in connection with large deals, while others are expected back the ensuing week, in anticipation of early resumption of heavy business.

Harry Prettyman, the live wire subdivision operator, has returned from Detroit, where he has been for several weeks, talking to captains of industry with a view to interesting them in St. Louis as a manufacturing center. As a result of his sojourn at the Michigan center it is understood that important electrical interests are considering establishment of a plant of major magnitude in St. Louis.

FORMER 'BRIDES' ROW' FLATS ON FINNEY AV. SOLD FOR $50,000

A chain of flats, 4323-43 Finney avenue, has been sold by the Mercantile Trust Co. for Misses Emma and Julia Gartside to F. C. Weinert for $50,000.

The buildings were erected by Joe Duffy, and formerly were known as Brides' Row, having been a retreat for newly weds. They are now occupied by negroes, and yield a substantial return on the investment, according to William L. Geserich of the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co., who promoted the transaction.

H. G. Althen, formerly a member of the Kotsrean-Althen Real Estate Co., has opened an office at 316 Wainwright building.

Maryland Ave. Residence Sold.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. announces the sale of 4209 Maryland avenue, for Leon Rosenblum, to A. J. Major. The house has 8 rooms, reception hall and bath. The lot is 125x125 feet.

Plating Company in New Quarters.

Parish House First of Series of Church Property Additions

THE new parish house of the Episcopal Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Brentmoor, is the first of a series of enlargements of the church property, which is at Wydown and Ellenwood avenues, south of Washington University. The parish house adjoins the church and will eventually be connected with it by an "L". The first floor of the parish house is now partially completed. It is of the prevailing style of the church, Tudor-Gothic, similar to that of Washington University. It will comprise a large auditorium, stage, Sunday School and guild rooms, and will have two stories. The architect is James P. Jamieson, who designed the Washington University buildings. The rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Church is the Rev. George E. Norton.

APARTMENTS BOUGHT BY MUTUAL INVESTORS

New Corporation Pays $135,000 for 27-Suite Property on North Euclid Avenue.

The Euclid Mutual Investment Co. has purchased, through C. R. Miltenberger, the three-story apartment at 785-89 North Euclid avenue, for $135,000. The former owner was Henry Gallant.

The building comprises 27 apartments of four and five rooms, the annual rents of which aggregate $22,000.

The Investment company was recently organized to purchase the property, the intention being for each member to own and occupy one of the apartments, free of rent, and the remaining apartments to be sold or leased. Each member or purchaser will, it is claimed, not only have a comfortable home at a very low cost, but will also share in the profits of the company.

The officers and directors of the company are Leo H. Gamp, president; Otto R. Tasche, secretary; Oliver W. Steigemeyer, treasurer; S. F. Leyser, Louis W. Peters and A. Jacobs, directors.

FOUR HANDSOME RESIDENCES IN UPLANDS ARE NEAR COMPLETION

The Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co. is finishing four houses in Uplands, one of the most eligible and best improved subdivisions on the Natural Bridge road. It is one block west of the terminal loop being built for the Hodiamont, Limits and Natural Bridge car lines.

The tract comprises 130 acres, and is partly covered with forest trees. The firm has already sold several attractive six and seven room residences on deep lots of 50 to 75 foot frontage. Development of the tract along broad lines is being steadily pushed.

The four residences being completed are substantial ones of two-stories, having six large rooms, including sun room. They have hardwood floors and steam heat, and are built on lots 60x150 feet.

SALE OF SIX WEST END HOMES REPORTED BY A. T. TERRY & CO.

Albert T. Terry & Co. report having sold six West End homes, as follows: 7138 Pershing avenue, to Oscar Parley; 5825 Clemens avenue, to Harry M. Stone; 4423 West Pine boulevard, to W. S. Bascom; 2 Radcliffe avenue, to T. L. A. Wray; 6143 Washington boulevard, to E. F. O'Brien; 5830 Clemens avenue, to Hugh S. Graves.

Buoyancy Shown by Sales.

Lawrence V. Cartan of L. V. Cartan & Co., one of the time-honored concerns of St. Louis real estate circles, reports a market of decided buoyancy, the firm of which he is president having had a record with 12 sales, which included both residential and investment property. Prospects are reassuring for a record-breaking business in the real estate market this fall, he declares.

Moves Into Larger Quarters.

The Rembecher-Mehrkens-Ottenad Co., formerly at 3757 South Jefferson avenue, removed to 3805 South Broadway, larger and better quarters. H. Remsbecher is president; F. A. Mehrkens, vice president, and B. L. Ottenad, secretary and treasurer.

SECOND HOMESITES TRACT BEING OFFERED

Company Expects 125 Lots Embraced in It to Be Absorbed Within Six Weeks.

A new subdivision in the northwest industrial district is being placed on the market by the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. The tract is to be known as Homesites Second Subdivision, it adjoining the original Homesites, which was marketed by that company last fall, when 600 lots were sold in 90 days.

Officers of the company state that many of the lots bought in the original Homesites have already been resold by them at substantial profits. It is expected that the new subdivision, comprising about 125 lots, will be disposed of in less than six weeks.

27-ACRE SITE FOR CLUBHOUSE AND BUNGALOW IN COUNTY SOLD

The Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. announces having sold 27½ acres on the LeMay Ferry and Meramec Bottom road, to F. H. Holzer as a site for a bungalow and clubhouse.

The site is one of the most imposing, overlooking the Meramec River, and is heavily wooded with white oak and hickory trees.

The Dickmann agency also reports the sale of several other pieces of property, including flats and dwellings.

DELMAR HEIGHTS LOT SALES LAST WEEK SET HIGH RECORD

Delmar Heights, in University City, which was recently placed on the market by A. R. Schollmeyer & Co., has been well received.

There has been increased attendance at the sale of this property, with the cool weather of the last week, the number of lots sold having set a new record, according to T. C. Turner, subdivision manager.

The tract is divided into 83 lots, fronting on Delmar boulevard and the North and South road. It will have complete surface improvements.

TWO DELMAR AV. APARTMENT BUILDINGS SOLD FOR $60,000

The Dyas-Shelp Realty Co. announces that it has sold two six-family apartment buildings at 5116-20 Delmar avenue, for $60,000. The sale was for John B. Shifflett of Detroit, to Frank B. Stoker.

The buildings contain six apartments of five rooms each, and bring in a gross annual rent of $7800.

Both parties were represented by the Dyas-Shelp Realty Co., and the proprty will remain under its management.

Breck Buys Thompson Home.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. has sold 5959 Clemens avenue for John W. Thompson to Daniel Breck, represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. The house contains 12 rooms and two baths. The lot is 50x175 feet.

Jewelry Company Leases Salesroom.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. has negotiated a lease of the third floor of 415 North Eighth street to the Crawford Silverware and Jewelry Co. as a retail salesroom. The lease was for the David-Nathanson Co.

20 BULLET WOUNDS IN BODY OF SLAIN MAN

Another East Side Saloon Keeper Charged With Murder—Victim Refused to Name Assailant.

A warrant charging murder was issued yesterday in East St. Louis against Thomas Timlin, 29 years old, of 335A Collinsville avenue, proprietor of a saloon at Twenty-first street and Piggott avenue, in connection with the killing of Samuel Jacobson, shot in his own saloon at Twenty-fifth and State streets. It was stated at first that Jacobson had been shot eight times, but evidence at the inquest was that the body showed 20 bullet wounds. The shooting occurred about 11 o'clock Wednesday night, after the saloon had been closed. Jacobson died a few hours later, refusing to name his assailant.

At the inquest, Bernice Cagle, of 1735 McCausland boulevard, East St. Louis, a cabaret singer, testified that Jacobson, Timlin and another man had quarreled in Timlin's place Wednesday afternoon, and that Timlin fired a shot, after which Jacobson left.

Timlin's bond was fixed at $3500 and his preliminary hearing set for Sept. 3. The inquest will be resumed tomorrow, a recess having been taken to permit search for several other witnesses. Timlin has been held since Friday.

SALOON LICENSE FEES DROP FROM $50,000 TO $4615

Belleville's Chief Source of Revenue Is Autos, Which Contributed $7891 Last Quarter.

Automobiles boosted the receipts of the city of Belleville $7891.20 in the last quarter, according to a report made yesterday by City Clerk G. H. Beineke, the receipts showed that $7525 was paid for licenses for automobiles and motor cycles. This tax was imposed for the first time this year. Then the fines for traffic violations amounted to $356.20.

Before prohibition the biggest source of revenue to the city was the saloons which brought in $50,000 annually. The soft drink parlors now bring only $4615 per year, thereby making automobile licenses biggest source since the Eighteenth amendment became effective. Trucks and taxicabs also pay $1875, while horse-drawn vehicles paid licenses of only $994.

BLANKET USED AS DECOY IN HOLDUP AT ST. CHARLES BRIDGE

Highwayman Emerges From Weeds and Robs Autoist of $35 When He Stops to Pick Up Blanket.

An automobile blanket was used as a decoy by a man who held up and robbed Herman Stickford of 2206 College avenue, a poultry and egg buyer, at 8:30 a. m. yesterday, near the St. Louis County end of the St. Charles bridge on the St. Charles rock road. As Stickford alighted from his automobile to pick up the blanket, which he had seen lying in the road, a man arose in high weeds at the edge of the highway, pointed a revolver at him and then took $35 from him.

Orval Hines of Fulton, Mo., a tourist, passing, observed the holdup and reported it to the Sheriff's office at St. Charles. An automobile resembling one which had been stolen Friday night from Fred Wilhelm of St. Charles had been noticed during the holdup parked at the roadside a short distance from the point at which Stickford was robbed.

KANSAS CITY FUGITIVE CAUGHT

Alleged Embezzler of More Than $2000 Held at New Orleans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28.—Claude P. Hill of Kansas City is in prison here, waiting for agents of justice to take him back to Kansas City, where he is charged with embezzling more than $2000 from the Challenge Machinery Supply Co.. Hill was arrested in the offices of the Dock Board, where he had obtained employment as an auditor.

Hill is declared to have said his shortage began about 10 months ago, when he bought a house for $5200 through a homestead association and on which he has paid $1000. He added that he thinks he can sell his interest in the house for $1500, which he declared he would return to make up for the company's losses. He has a wife in Kansas City.

Site for Residence Purchased.

A client of the Joseph Darst Realty Co. has purchased the northeast corner of Washington terrace and Clare avenue, on which it is planned to erect a 10-room house of the colonial type, the plans for which are being made. The corner is attractive for residence purposes.

Quarters for Premium Store Leased.

The United Cigar Stores, through the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., has leased 905 Pine street for use as a premium store. The lease was made by the Rajaw Realty Co., represented by the Mercantile Trust Co.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

Deciding on Location

Wouldn't it be a satisfaction to know that the site of your home was the best in town and would hold its superiority permanently?

The lot represents only 10 to 20 per cent of the cost of a home, but the selection of that lot is a deciding factor in its value.

And in making this all-important selection, remember that has everything to recommend it, being the only direct west, close-in subdivision in which you can buy a lot today. The prices are lower than in any other subdivision of similar character—about 60 per cent of what we would be compelled to ask if Ames Place improvements had to be duplicated today.

See our representative on the grounds. Take the Olive-University car to Pennsylvania Av.

How I Get $250 a Month Without Working

"I go to the ball game every day—to the theaters, ride around in my automobile and enjoy life.

The wise guys who thought I was a fool for saving my money are still slaving for a living.

My wife and I take a trip to the seashore every summer—stop at the best hotels and we LIVE.

I have told the other fellows how to become independent just as I did, and they think I am lying.

It is so easy to accumulate a few thousand dollars and so pleasant to live off the interest of your money that I wonder why more people don't do it.

The way I did—I just bought a piece of land for $750—on easy terms — a few dollars a month. I held the land a little while and sold it for $1500. I kept buying and selling until I got enough money to live on, then I quit my job and started to enjoy life.

It is just like about one man in every hundred has enough sand to do a simple, easy little thing like that."

The foregoing is a true story told to us by a client. Perhaps you can't do as he did—but why not try?

Quick Profits

"$20,000,000.00 are being spent on new factories in St. Louis' new industrial district at Natural Bridge and Union—It is expected that the manufacturing population of the district, because of the huge size of these concerns, will be in excess of 50,000."—Globe-Democrat.

When a city [illegible] springs up over night somebody makes quick profits. It happened in Detroit when automobile factories were built. Buildings, lots [illegible] were sold at big [illegible]. Now you can buy HOMESITES in this district at an amazingly low price—you can buy on easy terms—at a price that will give you a good profit from the wonderful development of this district.

Come out today and see this new industrial district. It is the most interesting and most remarkable development St. Louis has ever seen. Take Union avenue car north. Our automobiles will meet you at Union avenue and Natural Bridge.

BRITISH ADMIRAL OPENS ATTACK ON U. S. DRYS

Says Ministers Calling for Law Against Liquor Confess Failure of Gospel.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Rear Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, M. P., lately Chief of Naval Intelligence, is the most recent Britisher of note to enter the campaign against "Pussyfooters," both foreign and domestic. Admiral Hall (nicknamed in the navy "Blinker"), noted for the vigor with which he helped run down German submarines and spies, is conducting just as strenuous a campaign against prohibitionists.

Writing in London newspapers, Admiral Hall opened his offensive by attacking American drys.

"American advocates of prohibition," he said, "are trying to obscure the issues of that policy by pretending it is unfair to judge a movement which is in its experimental state. The inference is that prior to the liberty-destroying amendment to the Constitution there had not been any endeavor to test prohibition in the United States. That is absolutely false. It is easy, of course, to understand why the prohibition extremists are anxious to dismiss to oblivion the past history of prohibition. That history is one of failure."

He makes a number of statements on the past history of prohibition in America in an effort to prove his point. Then, after condemning the American saloon, Admiral Hall continues:

"But the public house of Great Britain, notwithstanding the need of reform, has never sunk to the degraded level of the American saloon. Hence it follows that it would be sheer folly to apply to the public house of our own country a remedy which has been pronounced a failure in the United States."

Then, as a final argument against prohibition, Admiral Hall raises a religious issue, saying: "A still more vital objection to prohibition is one which may be commended to the serious attention of those earnest-minded ministers of religion who have given their support of the prohibition movement. Do they realize that in so doing they are abrogating their own position? Do they understand that in calling for the aid of the law in repressing a moral weakness they are confessing the impotence of the pulpit, the weakness of the Church and the failure of the Gospel?"

An organization representing the liquor interests is training a number of British ex-officers to preach the doctrines of "moderate drinking." As soon as their education is complete they will be sent out to stump the country.

MRS. DAN R. HANNA TELLS HOW SHE WAS LOCKED OUT OF HOME

Wife Who Appealed to State Constabulary Says Servants Are "Apaches"—No Divorce Suit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Mass., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Dan R. Hanna, at the Lenox villa, where she has been living alone since her husband went to his estate at Croton, N. Y., emphatically denied today that she intends to sue for divorce as a result of her having been obliged to call a State trooper in order to gain entrance to her husband's house on Sunday, where she went on being informed that he was seriously ill.

Mrs. Hanna admitted that she had been denied entrance to Mr. Hanna's house by the servants, and that in order to see her husband she had been forced to call for the assistance of the State Constabulary.

"Discarded servants of mine, who are maintaining an influence over my husband, refused me admittance to his house," Mrs. Hanna told a correspondent for the Post Dispatch. "One of the maids slammed my hand in a door; his chauffeur locked my husband's room against me. They cut off the telephone so that I was unable to phone to the police, and I called through a screen to my chauffeur, who went after the state police, and a trooper came to my assistance."

Mrs. Hanna also declared that there was a young woman in the house who tried to prevent her seeing Mr. Hanna, claiming that she was Mr. Hanna's private secretary. Mrs. Hanna summarily ordered her out of the house and provided her with transportation to the railroad station. Mr. Hanna greeted her lovingly, she said, and begged her to stay with him. She stayed Sunday night, nursing him, she said, returning to Pittsfield on Monday. She describes the servants as "apaches."

PLANS TO ABOLISH OWN OFFICE

Shoemaker Says That There Has Been Many Conflicts.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—Clestino Gasco, former shoemaker, now Governor of the Federal District which comprises Mexico City, is trying to abolish his own office.

Senor Gasco contends that his work is not necessary, since there is a City Council in existence well able to handle the municipal affairs of the capital.

Pointing out the frequent conflicts of authority resulting from the present dual system of administering the affairs of the capital, Gov. Gasco said:

"I am planning to submit to the President of the Republic a legal project for the abolition of the Federal District Government. I believe it to be superfluous."

When the news of Gov. Gasco's plan spread to the employes of the Federal District, dismay is reported to have ensued. It is pointed out, however, that most of these employes can be retained under the City Council system.

The undersigned desire to extend their heartfelt thanks to friends and Willow Grove, W. O. W., 153, for floral offerings and sympathy in our bereavement caused by the death of our mother.
ANTON STROEHER AND CHILDREN.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiske wish to thank the Fremont School Drum and Bugle Corps and the Rev. Mr. Suedmeyer and our many friends for the beautiful floral offerings and services rendered in memory of our dear son and brother, Carol Kiske, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 24, 1919. Sadly missed by all who knew him.

We desire to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife and mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Christ; we especially wish to thank Rev. Father Marks, the Gebken U. Co., and pallbearers for their services and the many friends for the beautiful floral offerings.
JOHN CHRIST AND FAMILY.

We desire to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of our dear mother and wife, Mrs. Mary Stemick. We especially wish to thank the Rev. Paul Konig for his kind work; Hoffmeister, undertaker, and pallbearers for the service, and many friends for the floral offerings.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives and many friends for their many beautiful floral offerings and kind sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear daughter and sister, Loretta Rector; also thanking the Rev. M. J. Sullivan of the Immaculate Conception Church for his kind and consoling words, and Mrs. E. J. Schnur, undertaker, for her kind and efficient service.
MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM RECTOR. (c)

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us during our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear husband and father, Theodore Sandman. We also wish to thank for the beautiful floral offerings, Rev. Father Ebbel of the SS. Peter and Paul's Church for his consoling words, and to the pallbearers.
ANNA SANDMAN AND FAMILY. (c)

We herewith extend our sincere and most heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for the sympathy, condolence and beautiful floral offerings tendered us during the sad hours of bereavement, occasioned by the loss of my beloved son and our brother, George Reeg. We also wish to thank the Rev. H. H. Schroeder for the excellent service rendered.
MRS. MINNIE REEG AND SONS.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the many friends, relatives, his fellow workers, the members of Cache Lodge No. 416, A. F. and A. M., Woodmen of the World No. 590, Typographical Union, No. 8, the pallbearers and the Reverend A. Preis, Ziegenhein Bros. for their kind assistance and floral offerings and attendance at the funeral of our beloved husband and father, Thomas C. Adams.
MRS. THOMAS ADAMS AND DAUGHTER.

We desire to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife and our dear mother, Mrs. Emma Trogahn, daughter, sister, daughter-in-law, sister-in-law; also the kind words of consolation by Rev. L. Bucheimer, the Anchor Chapter No. 54, O. E. S., and Zeigenhein Bros., for efficient service and the many beautiful floral offerings.
MR. FRANK TRAGAHN,
MRS. JOHN EIFERT.

We wish to extend our many thanks to the relatives and many friends for the kindness, sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in the sad bereavement of our dear mother, Margaretta A. Foerster, especially the Rev. Paul Langhorst, Welfer Damen Circle, Praussen Frauen Verein of North St. Louis, Imperial Court No. 1141 Court of Honor, Col. Neuman Women's Relief Corps No. 16, New Light Spiritual Church, Master Whiteners' Association, Musicians' Union Local No. 2 A. F. M., and the pallbearers.
DAUGHTER AND SONS.

We wish to extend to our many relatives and friends our sincere thanks and appreciation for their kindness and sympathy shown us during our sad hour of bereavement in the loss of our beloved mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Anna Duecker. We wish to especially thank the Rev. Fathers Ehlenz and Wieberg of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Father Fechtel of St. Engelbert's Church for their kind assistance and words of condolence, the pallbearers for their attentiveness, for the many beautiful floral offerings, and to the G. Boekers Undertaking Co. for their efficient service.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY. (c)

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who departed this life Aug. 4, 1919.
HAAS FAMILY. (c)

In sad but loving remembrance of our darling mother, Hattie Paul, whose short, but sweet life was sacrificed, Aug. 26, 1917. Sadly missed by Husband and Daughter.

In memory of our beloved husband and father, Mr. Andrew Sippel, who died five years ago, Aug. 31, 1915.
Sadly missed by HIS FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Charles Schneider, who died Aug. 29, 1917. Sadly missed by MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS, SCHNEIDER FAMILY. (c)

In memory of our darling mother, Ellen Kiding, who left us one year ago, Aug. 31, 1919.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTERS, SON, SONS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Dora Hirschhausen, who departed from us Aug. 28, 1919:
Time rolls on; it will not stay
What grief we've felt since that sad day.
With one so loving, kind and true;
How hard it was to part with you.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN.

In memory of Edwin Rehg, who died two years ago today.
Just two years ago you left us;
How we miss you, Edwin, dear,
And remember all your kindness,
As we drop a silent tear.
Sadly missed by his PARENTS AND SISTER.

In memory of Alvin J. Gass, died Sept. 1, 1919:
One year ago on this sad day,
My dear son passed away.
God called him home; it was His will;
But in our hearts he lingers still.
Sadly missed by his mother, father, sisters and brother. GASS FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear Josie Meder (nee Murphy), who departed Aug. 26, 1919:
Time rolls on; it will not stay;
What grief we have felt since that sad day
With one so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN, MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In memory of our dear son, Frank Kern, who departed this life Aug. 28, 1917.
When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing,
If he only could come home.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Edward, who departed this life two years ago, Aug. 25, 1918:
Days of sadness still come o'er us;
Tears in silence often flow;
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died two years ago.
Sadly missed by mother, father, sister and brothers. WITTLING FAMILY.

In memory of our dear mother, Mary Koettker, who died Aug. 27, 1919:
One year it will be since we laid you to rest
And placed your cold hands upon your dear breast;
In silence you suffered, with patience you bore,
'Till God called you home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by
MAY, JOHN AND ELMER.

August 16, 1918, in memory of Gus Granneman, who departed this life, two years ago, 16th of August. The month of August again is here to us the saddest of the year. We could not realize what was said, when the message came saying father was dead. Surrounded by friends we are lonesome, in the midst of pleasure we are sad. Smiles on our faces still a heartache, aching and longing for him. Sadly missed by DAUGHTER AND SON-IN-LAW.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Alvina Tebbe, who departed this life one year ago today, Aug. 29, 1919:
Daughter, dear, it's just one year today
Since you left us brokenhearted.
Those who saw you in your casket,
Pure white, and O. so fair,
Thought you were the like of heaven
As you lay so sweetly there.
Your merry laugh we hear no more.
The voice we loved is still,
And all thought is left for memory
In your grave on a distant hill.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In memory of my dear son, Corporal Walter C. Dietrich, 3418 Cherokee street, who departed his life from us two years ago, Aug. 28, 1918, while in the service of his country in France with his company, D, 354 Infantry, Eighty-ninth Division:
You are gone, but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be.
As long as life and memory lasts
We shall remember thee.
At rest in peace, an American soldier true,
Buried beneath the red, white and blue.
Although far away his remains are laid,
From his parents and sisters this memory shall never fade.
Sadly missed by his FATHER, MOTHER, SISTERS AND HIS FRIENDS.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

H. E. R.—You may get some information concerning the whereabouts of your brother, whom you say was of draft age, by writing to the Adjutant General of the U. S. Army, at Washington, D. C.

THOS. G. GOLDSMITH.—If you will address the secretary of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, he will put you in touch with the South American Consuls in St. Louis, from whom you may get the information you desire.

NO BRAINS, T. R.—In the case you submit all four kings and queens, without the 150 trump, counts 240, as follows: 20 hearts, 20 spades, 20 diamonds, 40 trumps, 60 queens, 80 kings. If accompanied by 150 trump it only counts 200 because you cannot count the 40 trumps twice, that being counted in the 150 trumps. The 150 trumps with the other kings and queens counts 350, and with the nine of trumps, 360.

MISS VIOLET.—The following is a recipe for chili sauce: Twelve medium-sized ripe tomatoes; 1 pepper, finely chopped, 1 onion finely chopped, 2 cups vinegar, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 teaspoons cloves, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons allspice, 2 teaspoons grated nutmeg. Peel the tomatoes and slice. Put in a preserving kettle with remaining ingredients. Heat gradually to the boiling point and cook slowly two and one-half hours. A quarter dollar of the year 1870 is worth 25c to 30c; a 10-cent piece of the year 1856 is worth 10c to 20c; a nickel of the year 1867 is worth 5c to 20c.

MOTHER.—There is no doubt that the liquid form is the best bedbug preparation to use; unlike a powder, or even a paste, it will follow down a crack into remote places where bugs hide, and will prevent their escape, also killing the eggs and nits. The following substances are very good: Kerosene, turpentine, benzine, carbolic acid, oil pennyroyal and strong solution of soap. Here are two good formulas: (1) One drachm pennyroyal, 8 ounces turpentine; enough kerosene oil to make one gallon. Put up in bottles and use when needed. (2.) One drachm oil of eucalyptus, one ounce eucalyptus leaves, 2 ounces benzine, 2 ounces turpentine; enough kerosene to make 16 ounces. Mix the turpentine, benzine and kerosene oil, and macerate the eucalyptus leaves in it for 24 hours; then strain and make up the measure to one pint, having first added the oil of eucalyptus.

AN ANXIOUS COOK.—The following is a recipe for an English fruit cake: One lb. butter, 1 lb. light brown sugar, 9 eggs, 1 lb. flour, 2 teaspoons mace, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons milk, 3 lbs. currants, 2 lbs. raisins, seeded and finely chopped; ½ lb. almonds, blanched and shredded, 1 lb. citron, thinly sliced and cut in strips. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and beat thoroughly. Separate yolks from whites of eggs; beat yolks until thick and lemon colored, whites until stiff and dry, and add to first mixture. Then add milk, fruit, nuts and flour mixed and sifted with mace, cinnamon and soda. Put in deep, buttered pans, cover with buttered paper, steam three hours and bake one and one half hours in a slow oven, or bake four hours in a very slow oven. Rich fruit cake is always more satisfactory when done if the cooking is accomplished by steaming.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A WIDOW.—We would advise you to consult a lawyer.

H. J.—An honorable discharge of a Civil War veteran has no value to the heirs for the purpose of taking up a claim.

F. G. W.—Probably the records of the county in Texas in which the land is located would show the record of the purchase of that land from the Government in 1848.

J. W.—Separation for any period of time will not dissolve the marriage or amount to a divorce. In order to remarry a divorce must first be obtained.

ANXIOUS SUBSCRIBER.—On your death your widow would be entitled to a share of your money. The only arrangement we can suggest is for you to transfer it all to your mother now.

J. E. C.—The only way you can get the clothes from your mother is by engaging a lawyer in that city to file a replevin suit, which would probably cost more than the clothes are worth, unless she can be persuaded to surrender them voluntarily.

C. J. CADY.—The Internal Revenue Bureau's interpretation of Section 29 of Title II of the National Prohibition Act concerning the manufacture of "nonintoxicating cider and fruit juices" in the home was published in full in the Post-Dispatch July 29.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

JESSIE.—There are several devices on the market for which the claim is made that they will reduce the bust. We have no knowledge as to their efficiency.

MARY THOMSEN.—You should be examined by a physician. Bromide of potash or soda in 15-grain doses three times a day, or veronal in five-grain doses three times a day, are reliable and safe nerve sedatives.

A. R.—No recommendation is necessary to have dental work done at a clinic, and only a small charge is made for the materials used. There is a clinic at Ewing avenue and Locust street, and at Grand and Caroline avenues.

JOHNNY.—Simple piles are often relieved by a teaspoonful of the following taken stirred in a full glass of water, before breakfast: Equal parts of washed sulphur, cream of tartar and powdered sugar, thoroughly mixed. Bad cases need operation by excision or injection.

J. W. R.—It is a common practice to cut away ingrowing toenails at the corners, which only makes matters worse. Such nails should never be cut excepting square across. Take a piece of glass and with the sharp edge shave away the nail in the center, quite thin, then cut a V-shaped piece out of the center. This allows the ends to elevate and relieves the condition as ordinarily found. Bad cases may call for the removal of the nail.

R. W. B.—Tonsils are ordinarily removed with the tonsillotome, an instrument constructed for this special purpose, although they may be removed by a hook, knife and scissors. The operation is usually done in a hospital, but may be done in the office or elsewhere. The cost of such an operation varies, depending on the operator's charge. It is not ordinarily dangerous, and age does not matter. Strictly speaking it does not "lay up" the patient at all, but the throat is sore after the operation, and a day or two should be allowed.

SALES MANAGER WHO HAS MANAGED SALES

That is what we want.

A man who knows he can handle and direct a sales force—because he has done it somewhere else;

Who is the type of executive who can reorganize and put men to work on the basis of getting the business because they like it and believe in their product;

A man who knows how to merchandise a line of men's underwear and nightwear to department stores and furnishing goods trade.

If you are certain these qualifications are a recital of your own—even if your experience has been in some other line—and are interested in this proposition on a straight salary basis—

You might write us as fully as possible in confidence. If we're interested we'll arrange an interview. Address G-374, Post-Dispatch. (c)

A Message to Saleswomen

Does a liberal salary appeal to you? Do pleasant surroundings mean anything to you? Would you like to work where you can develop your natural ability and where you will have every chance to advance?

These are the advantages that wait here for experienced and capable saleswomen. Nowhere are better salaries paid to saleswomen than here, and nowhere is more interest taken in their welfare and in helping them to develop and to win promotion.

ALSO WANTED ARE WOMEN AND GIRLS WHO CAN LEARN TO SELL

The profession of selling merchandise offers many splendid opportunities to the woman of today. It offers good salaries, it isn't hard to learn, and it's usually pleasant and interesting work. We offer you a chance to learn it and to become efficient at it. We'll give you a position, instruct you in the principles of selling and pay you well from the very start. The quickness and extent of your advancement will then depend on your own efforts.

WE NEED CASHIERS AND WRAPPERS, TOO

Girls 15 to 17 years old will find that starting as a cashier or wrapper is a good way to enter the business world. The work is easy and leads quickly to promotion. Many of our best-paid saleswomen started as cashiers or wrappers.

POSITIONS FOR EXPERIENCED SEWING WOMEN

Skilled hand sewers are wanted to work on high-grade lamp shades. Also hand sewers and women experienced in running power-driven sewing machines to work in our alteration room.

WOMEN WHO CAN LEARN TO SEW

Are wanted, too. They will be instructed and paid while learning.

Note: The positions we offer are permanent. Unless you are in earnest and intend to stay, do not apply.

Applications should be made at superintendent's office, main floor balcony, at 9 a. m.

YOU "cannot reap" where you have not "sown" for 10 years; we have "reaped" and "sown" and you have "harvested" by our everlasting "effort" to save you "money." When it comes to the "clothing policy." We have "been doing big things" for 10 years, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. In cloth and wool suits, 20 to 40 per cent savings on our drummers' samples, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98, $29.98. "We claim $5 profit is all we need on any suit." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. (c)

On account of our increased rebuilding facilities, we have made more trades for used cars this year than ever before. Even though our sales of used cars have been heavy, we still have a large number on hand. Most of these cars are rebuilt and newly painted; some are just as we received them, and are offered at low prices. ALL of these cars MUST BE SOLD this month. Come early to insure a better selection.

"PLAYER PIANOS"

If you knew the pleasure in store for your whole family if you had one of our players in your home, you'd buy one immediately on our easy-payment plan. We have selected our players with the greatest care because we depend on our customers entirely for new business. Ask any of our many patrons of the past 40 odd years; they will cheerfully tell you of our reliability. Our prices run from $500 to $900; $15 up monthly buys one. Come and see. F. BEYER & SON, 17th and Locust. (c62)

PLAYER-PIANO—A customer of ours has shipped us her 88-note player-piano, and has asked us to sell it for her for $385.00. She paid $700.00 new, eight months ago. This is a snap for some one. MAY, STERN & CO., 12th and Olive sts.

Real Bargains in Used Pianos and Players

The used Pianos we offer for sale have come to us from good homes, as a rule. They have been carefully used, but each one has been thoroughly overhauled in our great factory shop, and put in the best possible condition. Each instrument is marked for sale at the very lowest net cash price. Quality for quality, we guarantee our prices to be at least one-fifth to one-fourth lower than elsewhere.

STERLING Upright, mahogany case, artistic design; sweet, clear, singing tone; all up-to-date improvements, $375, including stool to match.

THE VALUE OF A GUARANTEE is not so much what it says as in WHO says it. We guarantee every Piano sold to the public. Pianos we take in exchange occasionally that are not worthy of our guarantee are either sold to second-hand dealers or destroyed.

RENT PIANOS $5 up monthly; many well-known makes, in all woods; six months' rent credited on a future purchase.

A beautiful SOLO-ARTAPOLLO REPRODUCING PIANO, including 168 Artapollo Rolls and bench to match, at a discount of 20 per cent. This instrument has been used as a demonstrator; therefore, practically new.

A NEW H. C. BAY 88-note Player-Piano, only $395. This is $100 lower than the same make has been offered elsewhere.

PRICE BY ITSELF MEANS NOTHING. Quality must be considered along with the price. To illustrate: We have a beautiful, high-grade, mahogany case Sterling Piano, practically new, priced at $375 and described above. It is a far better bargain than the second-hand Rodgers mahogany case priced at $175 and described below, although both are the best values for the money in St. Louis.

HAMILTON Piano, full cabinet grand scale; very massive art style mahogany case; brass trimmed continuous hinges and pedals; Empire top; remarkably fine tone quality of great depth; easy action; price $290, including duet piano bench.

TWO YEARS or longer time granted on any new, slightly-used or second-hand Piano in our immense stock.

AUTO-PIANO Player-Piano only $250; it is second-hand, but a good "buy" for the price. Immediate sale desired.

YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY SAFE in buying a piano on monthly payments from a financially strong house like KIESELHORST'S. It pays to think and [illegible] before buying a Piano.

[illegible] Upright [illegible] grand scale [illegible] beautiful mahog[illegible] practically new, [illegible] in metal work. [illegible] than new.

[illegible] Newby & Evans, [illegible] Kohler & Campbell, [illegible] Sterling, Reed & Sons, [illegible] Adams, Price & Teeple, [illegible] Bush & Gerts, [illegible] and over fifty other nationally-known makes of Pianos at prices ranging from $125, $145, [illegible] upward. Some are slightly used; others second-hand, but all are genuine bargains and have been thoroughly overhauled or rebuilt in our great factory shop.

WE ARE FACTORY DISTRIBUTORS in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois for the following Nationally-Known, Nationally-Priced Pianos, Player-Pianos and Reproducing Pianos—MASON & HAMLIN, A. B. CHASE, VOSE & SONS, APOLLO, FISCHER, GULBRANSEN, KIMBALL, WHITNEY and HINZE. Prices of these fine New 1920 Model instruments range from [illegible] up to [illegible].

If you cannot call at our warerooms, write us for complete information about the above and all our other Pianos.

"PLAYER PIANOS"
If you knew the pleasure in store for your whole family if you had one of our players in your home, you'd buy one immediately on our easy-payment plan. We have selected our players with the greatest care because we depend on our customers entirely for new business. Ask any of our many patrons of the past 40 odd years; they will cheerfully tell you of our reliability. Our prices run from $500 to $900; $15 up monthly buys one. Come and see. F. BEYER & SON, 17th and Locust. (c92)

PLAYER-PIANO — A customer of ours has shipped us her 88-note player-piano, and has asked us to sell it for her for $385.00. She paid $700.00 new, eight months ago. This is a snap for some one. MAY, STERN & CO., 12th and Olive sts.

Real Bargains in Used Pianos and Players

The used Pianos we offer for sale have come to us from good homes, as a rule. They have been carefully used, but each one has been thoroughly overhauled in our great factory shop, and put in the best possible condition. Each instrument is marked for sale at the very lowest net cash price. Quality for quality, we guarantee our prices to be at least one-fifth to one-fourth lower than elsewhere.

STERLING Upright, mahogany case, artistic design; sweet, clear, singing tone; all up-to-date improvements, $375, including stool to match.

THE VALUE OF A GUARANTEE is not so much what it says as in WHO says it. We guarantee every Piano sold to the public. Pianos we take in exchange occasionally that are not worthy of our guarantee are either sold to second-hand dealers or destroyed.

RENT PIANOS $5 up monthly; many well-known makes, in all woods; six months' rent credited on a future purchase.

A beautiful SOLO-ARTAPOLLO REPRODUCING PIANO, including 168 Artapollo Rolls and bench to match, at a discount of 20 per cent. This instrument has been used as a demonstrator; therefore, practically new.

A NEW H. C. BAY 88-note Player-Piano, only $395. This is $100 lower than the same make has been offered elsewhere.

PRICE BY ITSELF MEANS NOTHING. Quality must be considered along with the price. To illustrate: We have a beautiful, high-grade, mahogany case Sterling Piano, practically new, priced at $375 and described above. It is a far better bargain than the second-hand Rodgers mahogany case priced at $175 and described below, although both are the best values for the money in St. Louis.

HAMILTON Piano, full cabinet grand scale; very massive art style mahogany case; brass trimmed continuous hinges and pedals; Empire top; remarkably fine tone quality of great depth; easy action; price $390, including duet piano bench.

TWO YEARS or longer time granted on any new, slightly-used or second-hand Piano in our immense stock.

AUTO-PIANO Player-Piano only $250; it is second-hand, but a good "buy" for the price. Immediate sale desired.

YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY SAFE in buying a piano on monthly payments from a financially strong house like KIESELHORST'S. It pays to think and investigate before buying a Piano.

MASON & HAMLIN Upright Piano, full cabinet-grand scale; encased in a very beautiful mahogany veneer. It is practically new, having been used in rental work. Price $100 less than new.

IVERS & POND, Newby & Evans, Wing & Son, Kohler & Campbell, Kimball, Sterling, Reed & Sons, Kessler, Carl Adams, Price & Teeple, Stuyvesant, Bush & Gerts, Hinze, and over fifty other nationally-known makes of Pianos at prices ranging from $125, $140, $150 upward. Some are slightly used; others second-hand, but all are genuine bargains and have been thoroughly overhauled or rebuilt in our great factory shop.

WE ARE FACTORY DISTRIBUTORS in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois for the following Nationally-Known, Nationally-Priced Pianos, Player-Pianos and Reproducing Pianos—MASON & HAMLIN, A. B. CHASE, VOSE & SONS, APOLLO, PREMIER, GULBRANSEN, KIMBALL, WHITNEY and HINZE. Prices of these fine New 1920 Model instruments range from $380 up to $3000.

If you cannot call at our warerooms, write us for complete information about the above and all our other Pianos.

Slayer af Zapata Pays for Treachery With Own Life

Col. Jesus Guajardo, Who Turned Traitor to Mexican Federal Government, Betrayed by Former Supporter and Shot.

MONTEREY, Mexico, Aug. 28.—Gen. Jesus Guajardo, who treacherously tricked and killed the wily rebel leader, Emiliano Zapata, himself fell a victim of deception when he was captured by Government troops and executed here July 18 last. The tale of his last adventure is thus told here:

Thirteen months ago Guajardo, a Colonel in Carranza's army, attacked a detachment of his own faction's forces, killed and wounded several of them and convinced Zapata that he had a new adherent. Then, as Zapata greeted him in salute, he had ordered his men to fire on Zapata, and the noted rebel chief was blown out of his saddle, dead.

To reward this act, Carranza made the double dealer a General, and a little over a year later he turned upon his benefactor and joined the successful revolution of Obregon and De la Huerta.

After many misgivings, they accepted him as a General in the new army and gave him the command of a brigade and he started for Torreon on a campaign against Villa. While en route he stopped his trains, assembled his regimental commanders and explained that he had resolved "not to recognize" the De la Huerta regime any longer but to go into the field for the newest revolution and join Ozuna, Ricardo Gonzales and the others fighting to the eastward around Monterey. But several Colonels, his chief of staff and half his command deserted him.

Deserted by His Men.

Finally Guajardo abandoned the trains and started to march for the mountains of Nuevo Leon. Soon he learned that Amaro, leaving the chase of Villa for the time, was on his track and that the risings around Monterey had been failures. The remnant of his command melted away under attacks of Government troops until there remained only one faithful Colonel and an orderly.

Dressed in civilian clothes, Gen. Guajardo hid in the home of a relative in Monterey.

Meanwhile Col. Antonio Cano, one of Guajardo's Colonels, who had abandoned him, had been captured by Federal troops, taken to Monterey and released there. Next day Col. Cano called at the house where Guajardo was hiding to visit the owner, who also was his relative. To his surprise, he found there his late commander, Gen. Guajardo, who asked him not to reveal his whereabouts. Cano, however, revealed Guajardo's hiding place, an order for his arrest was issued and with several other Colonels Cano was sent to execute it.

Cano again was admitted to see Guajardo and pretended to unfold to him plans for the future. While they were talking, the Federal Colonels entered and arrested Guajardo. He was taken a prisoner to the State penitentiary.

Dies Before Firing Squad.

Orders came from Mexico City directing that he should be tried by courtmartial, which was done that night, July 17. With practically no defense to offer, he was found guilty, the sentence was approved by General of Division Eugenio Martinez at Monterey and early in the morning Gen. Jesus Guajardo stepped out of his quarters in the old barracks at the Plaza de Armas, where he had been tried and said farewell to a few faithful friends.

Then he stepped in front of the firing squad and paid with his life the final penalty of his treachery to the new Government.

AMERICAN KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS RECEIVED BY POPE BENEDICT

He Urges Them to Fight Propaganda Designed to Deprive Youth of Catholic Faith Birthright.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 28.—American Knights of Columbus who reached this city yesterday afternoon went to the Hall of the Consistory, in the Vatican, today for an audience with Pope Benedict. When the Knights arrived they were met by Monsignor Cerretti, the Papal Under Secretary of State, who announced that the Pontiff would receive and address them.

It was originally planned that tomorrow morning's mass, which will be celebrated by the Pope, would take place in the Vatican garden, but, owing to a sudden fall in the temperature, it is probable it will occur in the Pauline Chapel.

Prof. Earucchi, a widely-known archaeologist, will deliver a lecture Sunday afternoon in the Lateran Museum, speaking on early Christian history. The knights will visit the catacombs of St. Calixtus on Monday morning.

Pope Benedict, replying to an address by the visiting knights, attacked propaganda being carried on in Rome by an organization which he did not name. He said it aimed to deprive the youth of their birthright of Catholic faith. The Pontiff urged the knights to establish a counter propaganda.

REPUBLICAN PLAN TO WIN VOTES WITH FACE POWDER EXPOSED

Perspicacious Baltimore Democrat Warns of Comforts in Booths Dear to Hearts of Women.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 28.—A newspaper here is indebted to the perspicacity of a correspondent for this note of warning:

"Mr. Editor: I have been informed that the Republican Executive Committee of the city of Baltimore is contemplating furnishing the voting booths with mirrors, nose powder, etc., for the use of the lady voters, and that this is to be done at the last moment, in order to make it appear that they are more thoughtful of the comfort of the women folk than are the Democrats. Have you heard anything about such a maneuver? I don't like trickery, but women are so often fooled by just such smooth confidence men."

Nobody had heard of such a plan, but both organizations are now on guard.

Sea Pigeon Bound in Thread.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 28.—Completely entangled in several yards of black thread, a small water fowl, or "sea pigeon," as it is called on the water front, was picked out of the water one morning by William Case, an employe of the Foss Launch Co. The bird was taken to the Foss office, where it took fully one-half hour to remove the thread. All the time the Foss employes were busy on the thread with their knives the bird attempted to remove it with his bill.

Relatives of Gotlieb Bodensack Sought.

St. Louis relatives of Gotlieb Bodensack, 64 years old, a laborer, employed by the National Enameling and Stamping Co., who was found dead Friday night in a rooming house at Pacific and Walnut streets, Granite City, are being sought. Papers found in his possession indicate that he resided in 1917 at 1321 Clinton street, this city, and that he was interested in a burial lot in St. Peter's Cemetery. His death was due to natural causes.

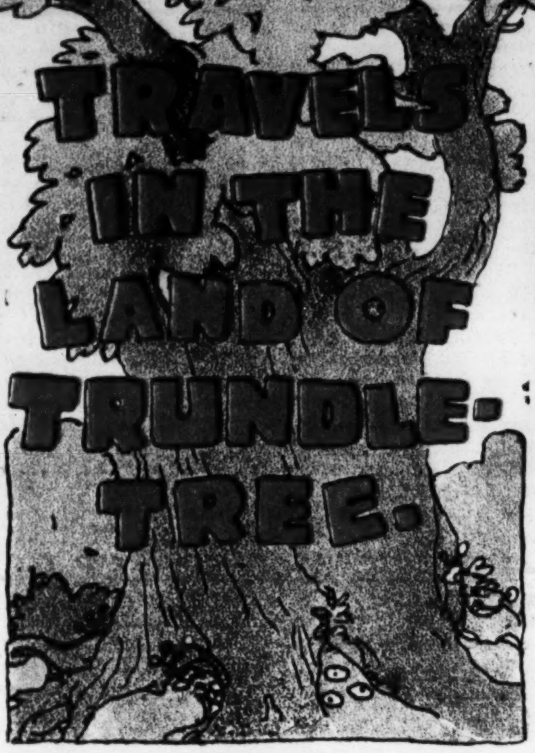
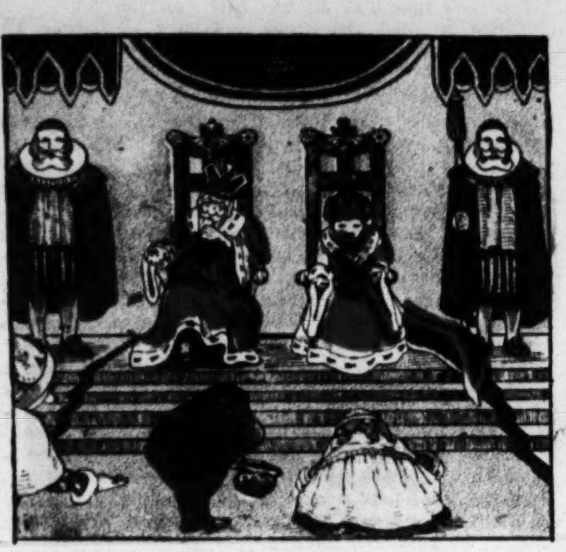
Chosen by Elks as Beauty Queen of West

MISS GERTRUDE OLMSTEAD, the seventeen-year-old high school girl of La Salle, Ill., who was selected in a far-flung Western beauty contest as Queen of the Elks for the Chicago pageant of that benevolent and patriotic order, is the ideal personification of the "Spirit of America," in the judgment of a qualified committee who spent months in examining the thousands of photographs submitted. —Photo by Sykes, Chicago.

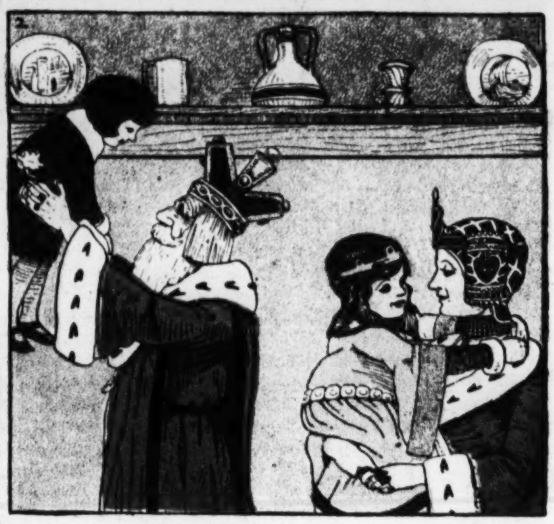
A PAGE FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

TRAVELS IN THE LAND OF TRUNDLE-TREE.

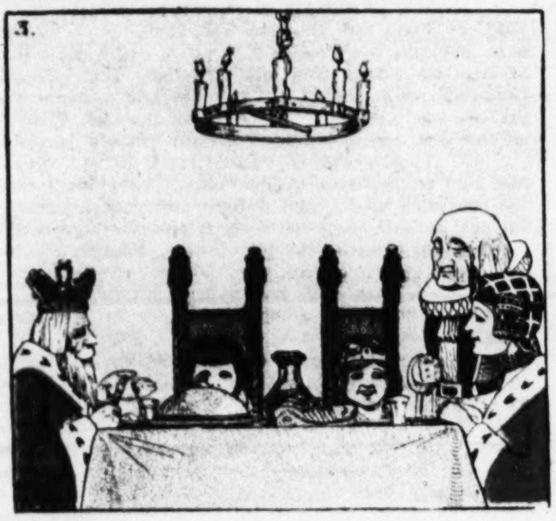




Arrived in the throne-room, they courtesied low;
The King smiled a welcome, the Queen bowed her head,
And said to each other, "How pleasant to meet
Such well-behaved children as Peggy and Ted!"



Ted and Peg were delighted, and cried, "Oh, what fun,
To live in a palace each day in the week!"
The King caught up Teddy and called him, "My son!"
And the Queen kissed wee Peggy on each rosy cheek.



So, soon after that, old King Cole and his wife
Asked the two children if they'd like to be Adopted by them, and be known far and near
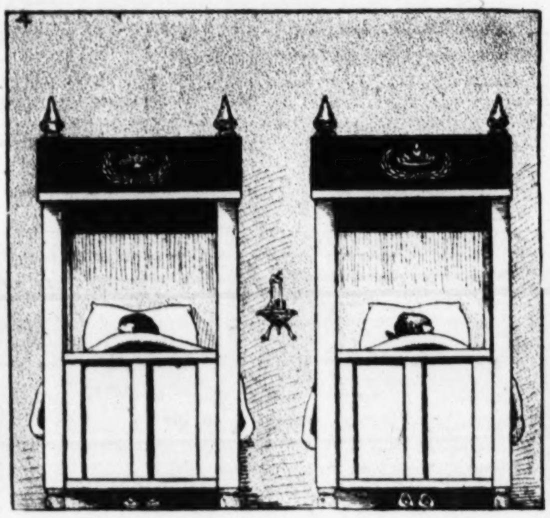
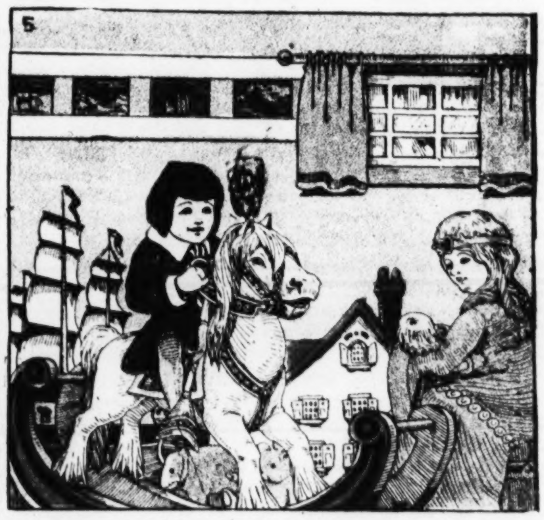
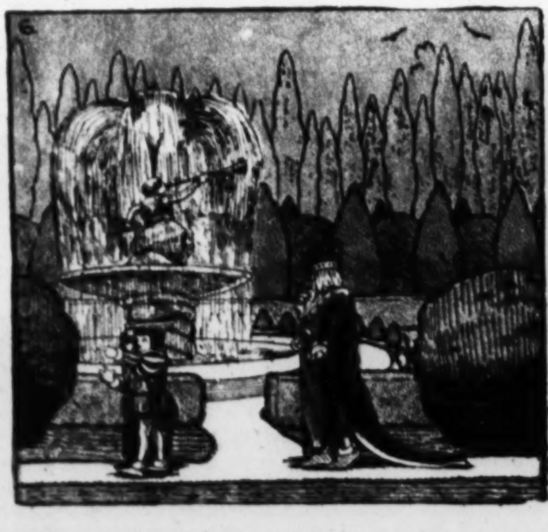
As the new Prince and Princess of Trundle-Tree?



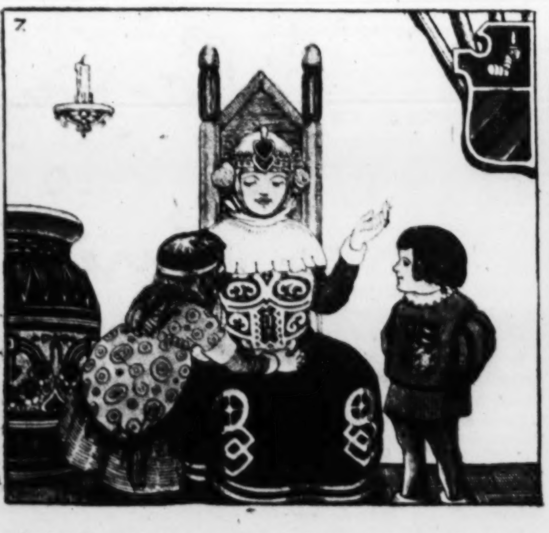
That night, the two children were tucked into bed
Beneath satin covers embroidered with pearls.
Our Teddy had dreams of a crown on his head,
While Peg saw a coronet on her bright curls.



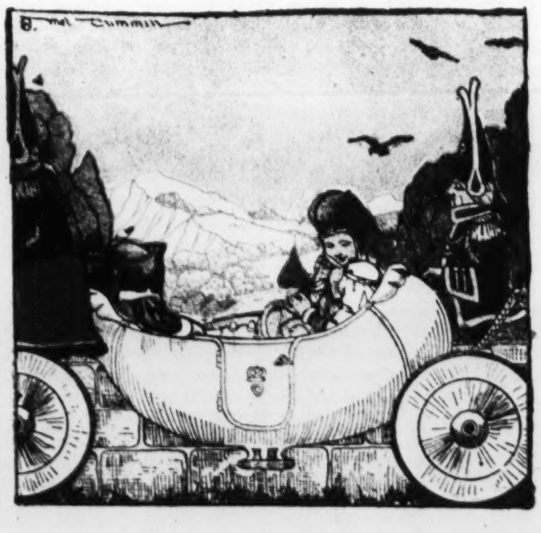
Next morn, while the rest of the palace still slept,
Princess Peg and Prince Teddy both quickly arose
And rushed to the playroom, so crowded with toys,
As soon as they'd put on their new palace clothes.



When breakfast was over, the King and the Queen
Both went with the children to walk in the park,
Where the murmuring sound of a fountain at play
Blended in with the song of a caroling lark.



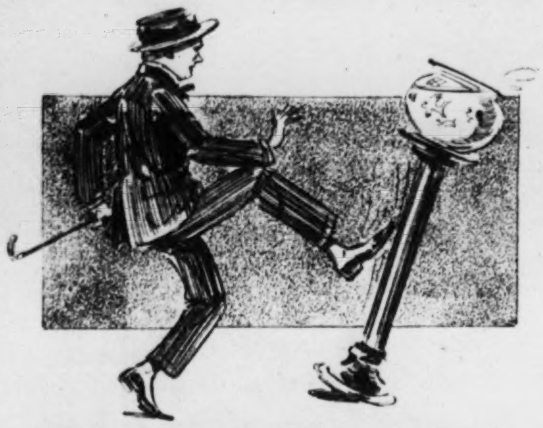
And when they came back from a long, pleasant walk,
The Queen called the Princess and Prince to her side,
To tell them about a trip which she had planned,
To start right away with a long carriage ride.



When luncheon was over, a fine coach and four
With coachman and footman at instant command,
Drove up to the door, so Ted, Peg and the Queen
Set out on their journey through Trundle-Tree Land.

Time Honored Witticisms of the Comic Press - Are Hard Hit by the Advent of Prohibition -

Old jokes, twisted and adapted for generations, may become meaningless in a few years while a new crop, developed in these days of transition from wet to dry, will not long survive -o- -o- -o- -o-



"I'll teach those goldfish to snap at me."

AN EASTERN paper, in its column devoted to the lighter side of life, quotes a tourist in Dead Man's Gulch as inquiring whether there have been many changes in the last year. To which Broncho Bob replies morosely:

"Yep; if you see a rattlesnake coming up the trail now you know it's a sure enough rattlesnake."

Doubtless every community has experienced some change since the momentous July of last year. But nowhere has the alteration in the ordinary current of events been more noticeable than in the time-honored liquor joke of the comic press. The quips and witty sayings based on bibulous amusements have completely changed in tenor and it is entirely possible that a future generation may gaze blankly at Gibson's famous cartoon entitled "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and not grasp its meaning.

Time was, a scant twelvemonth ago, when even the proverbs could be twisted into a witticism before the mahogany. "Never stay dry," "The wages of gin is breath," and "There's many a drip 'twixt the cup and the lip" were some alcoholic adaptions.

One of the favorite situations for the jokesmith to create a year ago was that of the husband and wife at the theater. The husband was supposed to hear an imaginary fire engine that called him out between acts and, on his return, he would remark:

"It wasn't fire, after all."

To which the wife would reply curtly:

"No, and it wasn't water, either."

Nowadays, this has been altered to the account of the wife, trying to keep up conversation with a yawning spouse between the acts, remarking casually:

"Scientists says that candy is supplanting the old craving for liquor."

To which the husband returns wearily:

"Well, I reckon I'll step out and get a couple of gum drops."

Another indication of changed times is afforded in the story of the old man at a gathering that once would have been festive, remarking sadly:

"Yes, things is different. Nowadays the women get together and talk politics and the men gather in corners and swap recipes."

One remarkable feature is the fact that many of the witticisms developed since July, 1919, would have been meaningless before that time. The remark of the Colonel, when asked if a drink of liquor tasted good, and who replied that any liquor that didn't kill you was good nowadays, depended on the Volstead act for its humor. Of course, it was an adaptation of that generation-old remark about all whisky being good, but some being better than others.

The numerous jokes about the sudden fancy developed for raisins have also originated in the last year. So did the anecdote about the Judge who remarked complacently that he was no longer bothered with cases of intoxication in his court, and who was told by the court policeman that all the drunks were taken direct to the morgue nowadays.

These yarns would have conveyed nothing before the prohibition crusade. And if this is the case, what will become of the time honored witticisms that have been enjoyed by so many in the past?

It may happen that a future generation, turning back to some old file of the comic papers, will come upon that tale of the man walking home rather unsteadily in the early light of dawn and seeing a street cleaner turning the tap on top of a fireplug with his monkey wrench. At which the pedestrian remarks thickly:

"Aha! So you're the feller that's turning this street around, hey?"

This may cause some of our descendants to pause and puzzle it out for themselves. There was never any doubt in the mind of the present generation as to the meaning. Neither were we in doubt over the picture of the same pedestrian arriving home and propping himself inside his bedroom door, remarking to himself:

"Next time that bed comes around I'll catch it, sure."

The simple drawing of the front door of Mr. Jaglets, whereon were keyholes in every conceivable position, to provide for his arrival late at night, has been entirely explanatory to us. The caption may be meaningless to the casual reader of 1930.

There has long existed a perfect swarm of stories that might be said to be the second chapter of the "Jolly Good Fellow" cartoon. There was the tale of the man who arrived at home late and whose wife was aroused by a terrific crash in the lower hall. When she hurried to the banisters to ask whether her husband had smashed the aquarium, a thick voice replied:

"Yes; I'll teach those goldfish to snap at me."

This had a companion yarn in the story of the man who tiptoed his way into the bedroom and, upon hearing his wife stir, paused at the cradle and commenced to rock it vigorously. When his awakened spouse demanded to know what he was doing, he replied:

"I've been rocking this child for two hours to get him to sleep."

Whereupon he received the information that the baby had been in bed with its mother ever since nightfall.

This, of course, is kindred to the tale of the wife who demanded what the noise was in the hall. Her husband's voice informed her he had just dropped his coat. She insisted that dropping a coat would not have made such a racket.

"Well," answered a meek voice, "if you must know it, my dear, I was inside the coat."

Then there was the story of the man who solemnly protested that he was entirely sober when he returned home and that his apparent unsteadiness was due merely to eating pickled pigs' feet and soused herring. Also, of two friends calling at the house of an acquaintance on important business late at night and asking of it was Mr. Brown's house. To which a tired voice replied:

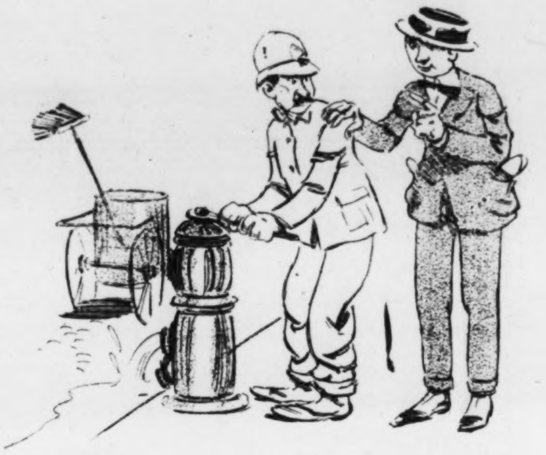
"Yes; carry him in."

The classic story in Washington is of the old negro barber who informed a newly arrived Senator that he reminded him strongly of Daniel Webster. To which the gratified statesman replied:

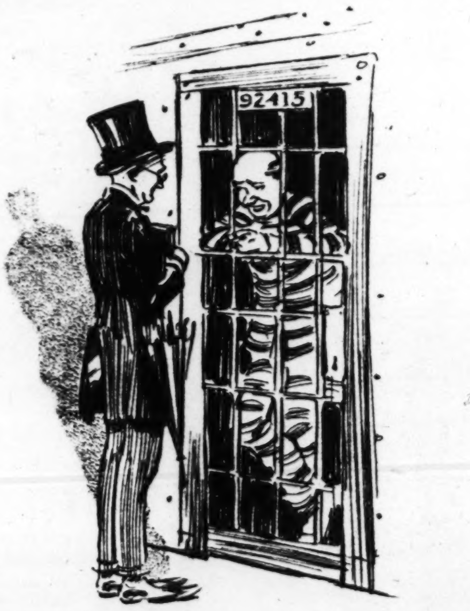
"Ah! My brow, I presume?"

"No, suh; it's yo' breff," was the answer.

All these classics may require a little puzzling out in later years. Two stories that have been hashed and rehashed until they are recognizable in almost any form include the one of Raymond Hitchcock meeting a down-and-out-actor friend and inviting him into a bar. Knowing his friend's tastes, Hitchcock signaled the bartender with the remark:



"Aha! So you're the feller that's turning this street around, hey?"



"Holy smoke, Parson! This is the last place in the world I'd come to get a drink."

"Two highballs."

The friend chimed in with alacrity:

"Same for me, bartender; two highballs for mine."

The other story of the same age, attributed to many persons, originated with the late John L. Sullivan as the leading character. Sullivan is supposed to have endeavored to make a speech at some gathering, in which, due to his previous celebrations, he got his vocabulary a trifle mixed. A well-meaning friend pulled him by the coat.

"Sit down, John," he whispered, "you're saying that wrong. You don't know the difference between 'temporary' and 'permanent.'"

"I do, sir," retorted John thickly, but with dignity. "I'm drunk—that's temporary. You're a damn fool—that's permanent."

This story has been going the rounds for years and is running strongly in spite of prohibition.

The Hitchcock story about highballs has a modern counterpart in that of the Englishman who refused to quote "drink to me only with thine eyes" at a banquet in New York, saying the police would think he meant 'ighballs."

Finally, there is the story of the clergyman, visiting a penitentiary, who sternly inquired of a convict whether his thirst for strong drink had not brought him there. To which the convict replied:

"Holy smoke, parson! This is the last place in the world I'd come to get a drink!"

This story is one of a large collection hinging on the visit between a suppositious clergyman and a convict. But what is the use of repeating them now? They may be meaningless in a few years.

Even the prohibition jokes of what we may call the transition stage of the country between wet and dry periods are passing. What, for instance, will this dialogue mean a few years hence:

Customer in drug store: I have to give a present to a relative I don't like, and I want something as useless as possible.

Druggist: Why not give him a bone-handled corkscrew?

Or what will the story of the wife and husband, just leaving a neighbor's home, mean? It goes as follows:

Wife: I distinctly heard Mr. Smith offer you a drink. Don't you know that's an insult nowadays?

Husband (complacently): Well, I swallowed the insult.

Yes, the old booze jokes are passing. The bits of humor about raisins and kindred matters of today can never survive like their predecessors.

Prohibition has undoubtely hit the comic press a hard blow.

Liquor jokes hereafter will have to be placed in an English or Scotch setting. London Punch and the Edinburgh Scotsman still carry them in places of honor. The adaptability of the booze joke is its chief charm. It can be altered to fit any circumstances. Only recently a British paper published in a modified form the story once told by Barrie. This related to the parson who was starting homeward after two or three convivial glasses at the home of a member of his kirk and who reflected that he would have to walk down a lighted street to his manse. He requested Dugald, accordingly, to watch him as he walked down the street a bit and see if he carried himself with dignity.

"Ye're carryin' yerself richt enough; but who's that walkin' aside ye?"

Below the Medicinal Hundred

credit his father with Machiavellian diplomacy. "You put up a good fight, father," he conceded pleasantly.

He drove magnificently at the last hole, and made no attempt to conceal his delight. "There, by George! It wouldn't take so very long to get back in form if I can hit them like that now."

Mr. Hobgood topped into the rough. "Bless my sinful soul!"

"Tough luck, father. You're not swinging back far enough."

"Yes, I am, too. John Peacock tells me"——

"But you're breaking at the elbow. Look! Like this."

"That's all right. You look at this!" Mr. Hobgood recovered nicely. "Now you're away. Show me yourself. Put her right up to the pin."

Richard nodded gaily. He had a good lie; it was only a full mashie to the green, with an insignificant trap in the middle distance. Confidence was strong within him. He swung the club easily, efficiently, in practice. "Now that we're this far—you wouldn't really have stuck to that impossible idea of yours, would you, if you'd won?"

Mr. Hobgood bristled. "Impossible? What's impossible about it?"

"Quixotic, I should have said."

"Well, don't you know me well enough by this time to see when I'm joking and when I'm not?" Mr. Hobgood was long since heartily sorry for his vow, but he held that it was weaker to retreat from it than to go ahead.

"Yes, but I can't believe it. I"——

"Don't you recall what a blamed fool way I let you come in the company? Would you put it beyond me to make up for it by letting you out in a blameder fool way? Especially when it's for your own good? Anyhow, you've put up some sort of a contest, this nine."

"I know; but if I'd lost"——

"If you'd lost! You don't think you've won yet, do you?"

Richard's smile faded slowly. He realized uncomfortably, that he was beginning almost to be afraid of his father again. He was having sensations which he had imagined, several years ago, that he had lost forever.

"Would you have stuck to it?"

"I will," said Mr. Hobgood sternly. "Shoot!"

Richard, not quite so confident, played a mashie. It was a high, keen shot, of just the right distance. Both of them saw, at the same instant, that it was too far to the left. "The other trap!" gasped Mr. Hobgood. Fascinated, they watched the ball descend, strike the turf and bound forward. "Safe!" breathed Richard. His father caught his arm. "Not yet!"

The ball was running more and more slowly, straight for the trap beside the green. On the very brink it seemed to pause; to stop. Then it disappeared.

Both men knew that it was lying almost under the bank.

"Sweet—spirits—of—niter!" said Richard, aghast.

Mr. Hobgood mechanically went to his own ball. He struck it blindly, awkardly, with little purpose, and instantly he lost it in flight. As he strained forward in search, he heard his son exclaim aloud.

"W-where is it, caddie?" stammered Mr. Hobgood.

"On 'e green, seh!"

On the edge of the eighteenth green Mr. Hobgood, outwardly nonchalant, stood to watch his son descend to the abyss of the trap. Richard was lying two; he would do wonders if he got out in three—if he got out at all—to say nothing of landing on the green. The best he could conceivably get was a five. But probably he would get it. Probably he couldn't get out of the trap in three. It was a wicked lie, at the bottom of a three-foot sheer pitch of sand. He would very likely be compelled to waste a shot—play back, and come out in four. Mr. Hobgood's mood was very low. Richard had rallied splendidly, and he should have won.

"Can you play it, Richard?"

"Don't know yet. You lie three, do you?"

"Three to here."

Richard was handling his niblick suggestively, and humming again. Mr. Hobgood's eyes stole over to his own putt. It was a 12-footer, and if he dropped it, it would give him the only par four he had ever made on the eighteenth. He could surely underwrite a five—he couldn't miss it. And that would mean that he must keep his solemn promise, and do a very remarkable thing. He had figured, of course, that Richard would beat him easily if he tried. And if Mr. Hobgood won, then whether he maintained his ground or backed down, Richard would misunderstand him and despise him equally in either case. Mr. Hobgood grew warm. He felt that he was in an equivocal position, no matter what happened. Six holes ago he had felt like a judicious, if Spartan, parent; now he felt very foolish and melodramatic. If Richard would only hurry up and play. Instead, Richard was speaking to him:

"Suppose we finish all square?"

"In that case," said old Mr. Hobgood, trying to master his voice, "I win. That's because you really didn't earn your half on the second hole. You've got to beat me, Richard." There was a staccato of applause from the little group of spectators, and Mr. Hobgood, coming violently to himself, saw Richard the storm center of a cloud of sand, in which a very white ball seemed suspended. Involuntarily Mr. Hobgood ducked. The ball ran up to the edge of the green and stopped. Richard had accomplished a remarkable out, but he was still 30 feet from the hole. He lighted a cigarette while his father surveyed him, and debated whether praise would be the best thing for Richard just then or not.

From the little gallery: "Plays just as careful as though it was a big match, don't he?"

Richard was bending over for the putt. His father could see the fine lines on his forehead—could see the rigid determination about his eyes and mouth. Mr. Hobgood's heart almost stopped beating as he watched the try.

"You're always short," he said gruffly. "You've still left yourself a shot for it. Well, I've got this for the hole"——

Merciless, for Richard's sake, he threw every atom of his resolve into the task. He told himself that he would beat Richard and then bargain with him. Offer to rescind the promise if Richard would guarantee to take regular exercise, say, two afternoons a week. With this in mind, he putted the best he knew how. To his horror, his head lifted before the stroke was played. He felt it; he knew it; but it was too late. The putt was half-topped; Mr. Hobgood overran by two good yards.

"This for the half," he said unsteadily.

He didn't look at Richard. He was wondering, as judges will, whether his judgment had been unnecessarily severe.

What if Richard, regardless of the outcome, never forgave him?

Mr. Hobgood, squinting at the line of his putt, automatically added Richard's score for the second nine.

Five, six, four, five, three, five, three—and a putt for the five here. A putt for a 40—a putt that he couldn't possibly miss—his first golf since 1909. Mr. Hobgood breathed hard. Talk about your uphill fighters! That was his boy—a champion. And Mr. Hobgood wanted him to be a champion again.

He resolutely closed his eyes tight, and putted. He opened his eyes, and saw that he had missed the hole, just as he had intended, by about a foot. He walked tremulously over, and topped the ball for a six.

"Now," he said, "if you've got the courage of a house mouse, you ought to win the hole, Richard."

Richard barely rimmed the cup, but his ball, following around the curve of the hole, slipped in through the back door for a five and the match, one up.

"Bull luck!" said Mr. Hobgood austerely. "Get off the green—we're holding up the whole course, Richard."

* * * * * * * *

Similarly uncommunicative, they went in to the lockers, and, shortly afterward, to lunch.

"You won't want to go out again this afternoon, I suppose?" said Mr. Hobgood casually.

"Why, I was just thinking about that, father."

"I could go nine more holes with you."

"Well, let's see how we feel after lunch." Here Mr. Hobgood almost fell off his chair, for he could have sworn that Richard had winked at him. But neither of them mentioned the terms, or the outcome, of the morning's round.

"Haven't added up my medal yet," said Mr. Hobgood suddenly.

"I did. You were 47 and 48 for the 95."

Mr. Hobgood quivered. "Honest? No! It can't be! Wait—by George, it is!" He sank back, radiant. "Well, I'll be hanged! Ninety-five! Well, I will be hanged! Why, Richard!"

Richard was smiling his commendation.

"You wasted a lot of shots, too. You putted like a child on the eighteenth." He paused, and Mr. Hobgood grew faintly pink. He wondered whether Richard had seen him shut his eyes on the last green. It was an awful thought. It would destroy all Richard's trust in him. "Still, I can't say very much about putting myself. I made a 92—52 and 40." Richard looked sober.

"Thunder! I bet I could shoot 10 strokes better than that this afternoon. And with a week's practice"——

"And the North and South the week after that," suggested Mr. Hobgood slyly.

"Hm!" Richard frowned. "Of course, my timing's way off. But it's queer how the game does get hold of you again. If Alec Ross could give me a couple of hours—and I've got to get used to these new clubs. You can't take a bit of turf here, can you?"

"Not a mite. And you shouldn't chip your approaches, either, unless you have to. Run 'em up, like I do."

"Yes, I remember. There's a trick to it, though."

After lunch, Mr. Hobgood, craving for an interlude for introspection, waved his son away. "Now let me alone for an hour, Richard. I just want to sit out in the sun. I don't want to talk or do anything. You just go and tend to your business and write letters or something for about an hour, and then you come back and we'll decide what's best for us to do this afternoon."

Accordingly, Richard vanished. Mr. Hobgood, inhaling deeply, went out to the terrace, and sat down to bask in the sunshine. Ninety-five! None of your medicinal hundreds for old man Hobgood any more; he could break a hundred any time he wanted to. It was easy!

"Telephone, Mr. Hobgood."

"What say? Oh, all right—I'll be right in." Nevertheless, he paused for a moment at the corner of the veranda, and looked over to the west, and smiled to himself very thoroughly and with great self-esteem before he answered the call.

"Hello! . . . Yes, this is Hobgood. . . . Oh, hello, Skinner! Where are you—in New York? . . . I guess you wanted to talk to Richard, didn't you?" Here Mr. Hobgood craned his neck, in order to peer out of the western windows. "No; he's busy. . . . No, I can't call him just now. . . . Well, what is it?"

In the course of half a minute Mr. Hobgood took to shaking his head peremptorily. "No, Skinner. He won't be coming up tonight. . . . No. Not possibly. . . . Why, I'd judge in about two weeks. . . . Well, we won't take the contracts, then. . . . Look here, Skinner, don't forget I'm still alive; I don't like to have my young men talk like that. . . . Sure, I'll accept your apology, but you better be a little careful how you talk to . . . No, you can't get Richard on the line, and it wouldn't do any good if you did. . . . Two weeks is what I said. . . . You'll just have to get along without him. . . . He'll send the contracts up by mail tonight and you can see to 'em just as well as he could—or if you can't you ought to be afraid to admit it. . . . Say, Skinner, I made a 95 today! . . . Yes. . . . Oh, you don't play golf? . . . You talk like a fool, Skinner . . . Well, he'll be up in about two weeks. That's right. . . Good-by."

Smiling broadly, Mr. Hobgood stood for a moment, gazing out of the window to the practice greens, where Richard was absorbed with a putter and a dozen new balls. He observed that Richard was vibrant with energy, and that his expression was happier than Mr. Hobgood could remember. And Richard was putting exceptionally well.

"Joe," said Mr. Hobgood to the sable doorman, "go get my putter and some balls. I better warm up for my match this afternoon. Got a good man to play with, too. . . . Yes, he's my son. . . Did I tell you I shot a 95 today, Joe? Yes, sir. I bet I break a 90 before the season's over, Joe. It's a cinch. Here's a dollar for you."

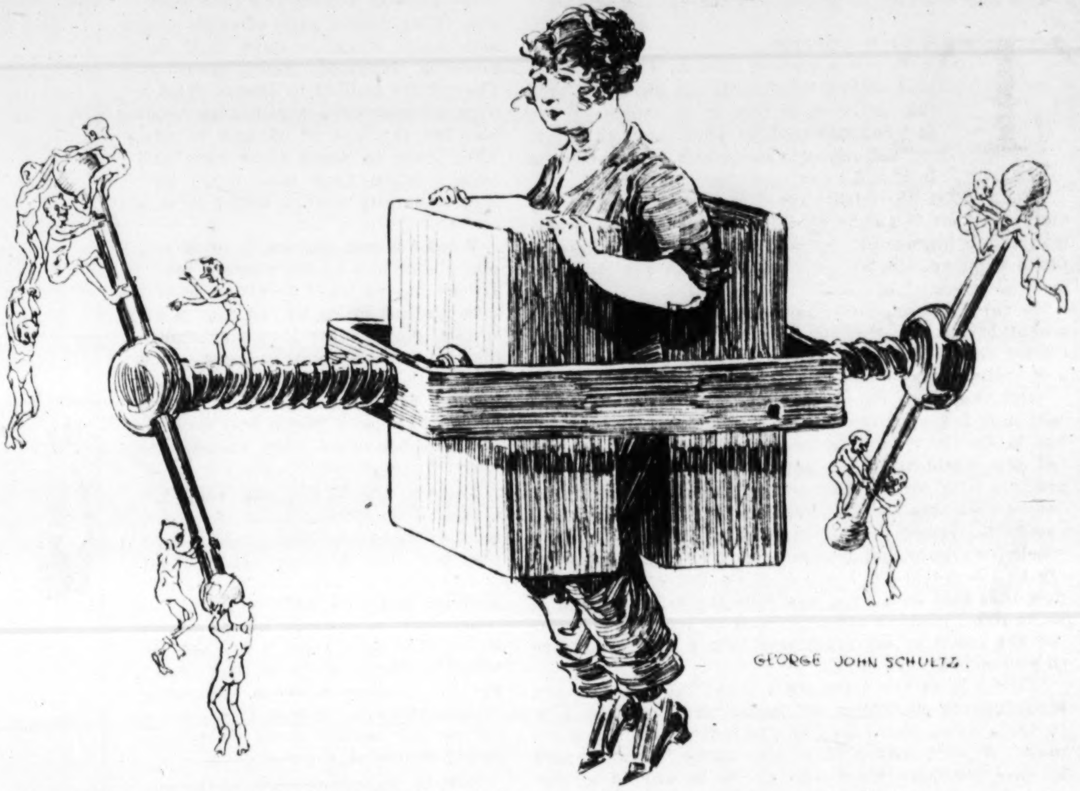
La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they can not buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

Consequences of Drastic Attempts at Weight Reduction Should Be Warning to All Persons Suffering From Fat

Women who endeavor to lessen avoirdupois by drugs or by violent exercise during brief vacation period not only fail of purpose but often do themselves lasting injury — Dieting, exercise and time a sure remedy for obesity, says authority on subject :: :: :: :: ::



GEORGE JOHN SCHULTZ.

THERE is no royal road from corpulence to a slim figure—nor is there any route to slenderness on which short cuts can be taken.

The stout woman, whether portly matron or debutante with a tendency towards embonpoint, should realize that she must spend as much time to take off weight as was required to put it on; and that this slow elimination of tissue is only the first step, if the cure for her obesity is to be permanent.

This is the opinion of Dr. Charles W. Bassett, the first physical supervisor of the old Missouri Athletic Club, now the M. A. A., who in the many years he was connected with that institution made a close study of methods in reducing both men and women.

Efforts to reduce too rapidly constitute a very present menace to the health of any person, states the doctor, and he holds up as one example the woman with wrinkled yet puffy face, lowered vitality and permanently injured health, who has endeavored to cut her weight speedily by the use of drugs. Less serious but equally fruitless is the effort of the woman who has worked conscientiously but misguidedly at healthful exercise, only to find herself increase instead of decrease in avoirdupois.

Proper exercise, combined with a suitable diet, is the only sure way to permanent reduction, says Dr. Bassett.

When the last horse races were run over the old Delmar track in the spring of 1905, one of the leading jockeys was a young boy, who, without having to reduce, could ride at 80 pounds. He was one of the best jockeys at the track.

In the 15 years that have elapsed this boy has grown to manhood under a steady and severe regimen of reduction. He can still ride at 115 pounds, and is regarded as one of the best jockeys in the East. Due to his skillful handling, the first great race of the year was won by an outsider over a Western track.

This still young man made a success of his profession. But he has done it at a cost of his physical being. He is now prematurely aged, with the wrinkled fact of a man thrice his years, stunted in growth, listless from oft-repeated courses in reduction and sure to increase enormously in girth and weight, without an accompanying restoration of vigorous health, as soon as he drops his drastic training methods and gives nature a chance to partially assert itself.

These same effects in a modified form are visible in the woman who tries to lose her extra poundage by undue methods.

Dr. Bassett groups reduction methods, as generally followed, into four systems—drugs, baths, diet and exercise.

Of these, a sensible combination of diet and exercise alone is effective, he thinks, if the well being of the patient is to be considered.

Drugs he would eliminate altogether except such recognized portions of the pharmacopeia as are necessary for physics and needful treatment of the body, as in normal medical practice.

To baths for reducing purposes he gives a qualified indorsement. Cabinet baths, where the head of the patient is in fresh air and where the pulse can be examined to see there is no strain on the heart, are of value, he says.

The Turkish bath is not worthy to be considered an American institution, he adds. It was devised by a people that despise physical effort, and, through the very nature of some of the steps in such a bath, it is unsanitary through lack of ventilation, he considers.

"I have never seen a Turkish bath that was properly ventilated," he said emphatically, when discussing the matter of reduction. "The steam rooms of necessity have to be kept closed and they quickly become filled with poisonous impurities. Their excessive temperature often affects the heart.

"The popularity of the Turkish bath here was largely developed in the days of heavy drinking—when an intoxicated man could enter such a place and, to use the accepted phrase, boil himself out. The fact that his body suffered from the vitiated air and that the "boiling out" process also forced impurities from the liquor into his system, never seemed to count, in the opinion of the inebriate, against the immediate results.

"Fat is not an indication of health nor need it mean strength. But a slight excess in weight need not be considered a drawback. In my experience in handling football players, I never objected to seeing them slightly overweight. With the system in order, a healthy excess of the sort, in both men and women, can become a sort of reserve in case of ill health. Eight or ten pounds overweight is no cause for alarm.

"The person in perfect condition—like a football player or prize fighter keyed up for some big contest—is, to my mind, less able to resist the attack of some such disease as typhoid than the person with a slight excess of weight. The perfectly trained person is at the very apex of physical condition. Any change means slipping backward a bit. You may have noticed that wrestlers who expect a long-drawn match usually enter the ring overweight. They count on losing much of this in a protracted struggle. The man with a little excess weight can stand the longer strain.

"Women should not expect to retain at the age of 40 the figure they had at 16 or 20. Nature did not intend this nor did she intend the body to become a mountain of fat.

"Lack of exercise and overeating cause much of the overweight today. The fat person cannot be accused of gluttony and sloth, however, simply because of excess weight. The woman confined to an office may take on weight in spite of herself.

"The first thing to realize is the proper diet. Nearly everyone knows nowadays that the starchy and sugary type of food, heavy breads, pastries and candies had better be left alone while dieting. But few seem to realize that we often get accustomed to eating too much. We do not rise from the table until we have a sense of fullness. This fullness is not necessary. A little experiment in rising from the table before the appetite is apparently fully satisfied would show that the sense of satisfaction with the amount eaten would come in a few minutes.

"So general is this habit of eating until the sense of fullness is developed that physicians who handle cases of weight reduction sometimes cater to it by prescribing foods which give the sense of fullness without the accompanying weight-building effect. Spinach, water cress and beet greens can be used for this purpose. They are low in calories and nutrition.

"I have known women, honestly thinking they were dieting themselves, avoid a regular lunch and take a glass of malted milk with some syrupy flavoring at a soda fountain. This actually contains more calories than a comparatively heavy meal. A person doing light brain work can get along nicely on 2700 to 3200 calories daily. Consumption of 500 to 1000 calories more than is needed is common. This has to be thrown out of the system, the excretory organs are overworked and part is laid by in excess fat.

"Any physician or physical instructor can lay down a routine of exercise and a proper diet, according to the individual case. Many fail to warn the patient against undue haste, however. I would not advise the average person to work for a reduction of more than 2 pounds per month. Nature will adjust itself to the effort in a slow but steady reduction. A woman who has grown fat slowly should expect to spend the same length of time taking it off. And she must realize if she plunges back into her old ways that fat will accumulate again.

"An incident was related to me, when racing was going on in St. Louis, of a well-known horse trainer who had tried to reduce a jockey to a low weight so he could ride a certain horse. The boy was reduced to the figure by a drastic course of exercise and sweating, but was so weakened when he arrived at the exact weight that the trainer permitted him to take a small glass of beer.

"That beer did not of itself weigh eight ounces. Yet nature asserted itself and the effect was much the same as if the boy had eaten a hearty meal of beefsteak. He took on three or four pounds at once, and much of his labor was neutralized, to say nothing of the injury done to his health by the drastic methods.

"That is a good example for the woman or girl who decides to reduce suddenly in vacation. It must be remembered that the muscles become soft and flabby from fat. If she overworks she not only causes such lameness and soreness that it resembles "staleness" in an athlete, but actually tears minute fibers of muscles apart, which makes her unable, in subsequent exercise,

Oranges and Lemons For the Teeth

SOME new and highly interesting ideas about the treatment of the teeth are set forth by Dr. Albert Westlake of New York in the Medical Record. Speaking of pyorrhea, he says that a youth from 19 to 25 or a girl from 16 to 21 years of age, whose gums show a line of redness about the margin, is sure to have that disease within 15 years unless they follow the vigilant rules of oral and body hygiene.

In his 32 years of active practice he has never seen a case of true pyorrhea in which the bowels acted freely and regularly.

After describing his method of operating on a case of pyorrhea, he says it leaves the gums sensitive for a few days, and the diet must be of soft food. "Naturally," he adds, "the toothbrush is looked upon with dread; therefore a substitute is suggested. A piece of cheesecloth or cotton rolled on the finger may be used, or the skin of an orange or lemon. A strip of skin of the grapefruit is an excellent abrasive used as one would a stick of sugarcane or an orange stick."

As a mouth wash, Dr. Westlake highly praises lemon, orange or grapefruit juice, followed by a glass of clear water. "Citric fruit juices," he says, "are especially effective if the skin and pulp are crushed together in a porcelain bowl, as in that way the vitamine, antiscorbutic and antineuritic elements are retained. The usual preparation for a wash is about five parts of water to two of fruit juice. The reason why lemon juice 'sets the teeth on edge' is because its action clears the mucin plaques from the teeth. The alkaline saliva is automatically stimulated by fruit acids.

"The dentist can restrain the decay of teeth, diseases of the gums and the infected areas of some roots, but these inhibitory treatments do not insure immunity from recurrence if dental and body hygiene are neglected.

"While the physician is studying the medical pathology of the patient, the use of a fruit laxative is suggested as an emergency correctant which not only acts as mildly operative but has a favorable action in severe pyorrhea cases.

"One-half pound of prunes, pitted, chopped fine and soaked; one-half pound of figs, chopped fine; five teaspoonfuls powdered senna, one cup New Orleans molasses.

"Simmer for five minutes, pour into a Mason jar and keep in a cool place.

"Dose: One to three teaspoonfuls at night, as required.

"After the morning and evening meal, the patient drinks the juice of two or three oranges and one lemon. Part, at least, of the skin should be crushed with the pulp, because it is accepted as carrying the vitamine content. This drink, after eating, appears to have direct action on the endocrine secretions as indicated by their stimulation, due doubtless to the rapid distribution of the natural organic salts of the fruit. In some cases the physician has recommended yeast treatments, which appear to have beneficial results.

"Every dentist who has been in active practice for 20 years or more knows from observation that decay of teeth and diseases of the gums are constitutionally associated with destructive metabolism. Decay of the teeth and pyorrhea alveolaris are primarily due to either a congenital or an acquired defect in the glandular co-operation of the individual. It is not true that 'a clean tooth never decays.' Many an individual who has never used a toothbrush will show a perfect set of teeth.

"We are not required to go back to the aborigines to prove that statement. This statement may hurt the feelings of some masters of the unclean toothbrush drills. It may awaken them, however, to be diligent in the crusade to correct the 'wholesale' method of cleaning teeth and enroll them as teachers of the truth that each tooth and gum must be cleaned with the same care as is bestowed upon the individual nail of the fingers, once daily—at least until the evolution of an improved race, who will use clean cotton or a similar product rolled on the individual finger to massage each tooth."

WHEN LITTLE CHILDREN GET INDIGESTION

CHILDREN rarely have real indigestion. They often have a rebellion of the stomach or bowels against too much food, too much of one kind of food or food that is bad, but a chronic disease of the digestive organs is uncommon, and when it comes its cause is usually to be sought elsewhere. Diseased tonsils or teeth are likely to cause it.

In an address to the American Medical Association Dr. John Lovett Morse, professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School, spoke of other causes and the best method of treating them.

"Overfatigue," he said, "is an even more common cause of chronic disturbances of digestion in childhood than are diseases outside the digestive tract. The whole difficulty in many instances is due to overplay, overstudy, overexcitement or too late hours. The removal of these causes will almost at once result in the disappearance of the indigestion. Until these causes are removed, however, no improvement, or very little, can be expected, even with the most rigid attention to the details of feeding.

"Incidentally, it is important in all disturbances of digestion, no matter what the cause, to regulate exactly the intervals between feedings, to enforce regularity in feeding, and to forbid the taking of any food between meals. It is extremely important to make sure that the child chews its food properly and never washes it down with liquid before it is thoroughly masticated. Regulation of these simple matters is of itself often enough to cure the milder disturbances of digestion in childhood."

Dr. Morse said that in the treatment of children there was no place for any of the medicines that are given to aid digestion. It was merely a matter of ascertaining what particular food was causing the trouble, cutting that down to the limit of toleration and substituting other things for it. When there was a rebellion against some certain article of diet, it was usually the result of eating too much of it.

In cases of intestinal fermentation the gas bacilli are often the cause, and the best remedy against them is buttermilk. It is far better than any of the tablets of Bulgarian bacillus, because it contains infinitely more of these organisms and is rich in lactic acid.

The Wrens and the Housing Problem

"They never tried, that's the reason. It's my opinion that a cat can climb anywhere it likes. The fact that I was always there and ready to pick their eyes out if they showed their ugly faces at the door, was the only thing that kept them away."

"Well, what about the sparrows?"

"Well, WHAT about the sparrows?"

"They can get in through the door if you happen to be out, and eat the eggs or the children."

"If I happen to be out! I should think you'd be ASHAMED to talk about my being out. You know very well I'm NEVER out.

"Day after day, and night after night, I sit here taking good care of the children, while you are chasing all over the neighborhood, trying to vamp strange wrens with that everlasting song of yours. If you knew what a frightful voice you have you'd at least keep quiet.

"But, my dear, I do get part of the children's food, you know."

"Yes, and what do you get them? Dead angleworms that have been thrown away by other birds, bits of sawdust that you think are seeds, bugs that a sparrow wouldn't eat. Help feed the children, indeed!"

"Oh, very well! Have it your own way. Go ahead and take the new house. I'll go and get some twigs to start the nest. The other place was a rotten dump anyway."

"Well, of all things! Just because I happened to glance at this place you want to force it on me. You know it is unsafe; you said so yourself. And just to keep me from telling you what I think of you, you'd leave me here exposed to all the cats and owls and sparrows that wanted to eat me. I never in my life saw"——

But just then a hawk hovered over the yard and Mr. and Mrs. Wren ducked nimbly into a sheltering rose bush.

When I went into the yard yesterday morning I found them building in the old house, and, barring a few disputes about the sort of twigs that should be employed for the foundation, getting along very happily together.

Guesting at Karlsbad - -

bring us a few patients," said Dr. Gustav Toepfer, one of the most distinguished members of the gathering. "After seeing what autocrats are developed by a republican form of government, I'm in favor of monarchy."

The physicians of Karlsbad have many reasons to be depressed. The famous health resort has had very few visitors since 1914. During the war, of course, only Germans, Austrians and Hungarians could take the cure there. And since the war the train service has been so poor—not to mention the passport difficulties—that few people from overseas have come here.

The week I arrived the first through trains from Berlin to Vienna started running, and now that the Paris-Vienna express runs by way of Strassburg and Munich, through service from Paris has been inaugurated. But it will be next summer before Karlsbad will begin to attract visitors in anything like appreciable numbers.

In addition to the lack of visitors, the people of Karlsbad are very unhappy under the Czech rule. Their taxes are higher under the republic than they were under the monarchy, and they assert that they have no share in the affairs of state. And to make matters worse, a large proportion of the people in Karlsbad and the surrounding country are often without bread. The masters of the republic—the 5,000,000 Czechs, who dominate the other 9,000,000 Slovaks, Germans, Hungarians, etc., in this new state—strip the country of foodstuffs for their army—which, by the way, is larger than the entire military forces of the old Austro-Hungarian empire before the war.

The Karlsbaders are not talking revolution—as yet—but if the Czech army is ever engaged elsewhere—with the Poles or Hungarians or the Austrians—the German population will endeavor to demonstrate the Wilsonian principle of "self-determination."

"We're really serious about an American mandate over Karlsbad," Dr. Tyrnauer confided, "but, of course, I realize that it is impossible. Dr. Toepfer's suggestion is a better plan. Why couldn't we get an American billionaire to take over our country? He'd have a wonderful time and it wouldn't cost so very much. We have less than 4,000,000 Germans in the entire country."

I promised the assembled doctors that I would suggest the scheme to some of my millionaire friends in New York, but that nothing could be done until after the election in November. From which it will be seen that I spoke conservatively, if nothing else.

A Simple Course in Character Reading

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

They's a cuckoo over in Paris France that claims to of made the discovery that the different letters in a persons name is what makes them what they are today.

"Tell me your name and what letters is in it and I can read your character."

That's what the bird says. And then he goes on and says that O means that the owner has got ambition and brilliance and is fond of luxury and wants to make a impression and if he is a writer his language is libel to be rich.

He says A stands for harmony, sentiment, delicacy and style and a girl with a A in her name is libel to be tender and refined. I shows pride and R means vigor, a S spells wit and malice and smartness.

Well they's no doubt that the guy is on the right cent and has give the matter a good deal of thought, but is he the bird that invented this idear? I will tell the world in the negative. I been looking this problem over for several yrs. and probably got into it deeper than this wise cracker because in the 1st. place I can think faster than a Frenchman even if I talk a whole lot slower, but I wasn't going to give the discovery to the world till I had it down Pat and Mike, but now that this here Frog has split the original idear it looks like I couldn't afford to wait no longer but better tell the result of my researches before this poilu hops in and cops all the credit.

Well then in the 1st place I spent the last 45 years studying the character of people that has got a E in their name and found the following, male and female. A male with a E in their name is almost sure to have whiskers when they get to be around 20 yrs. old. The whiskers may be dark or light according to the hair but if they don't shave every once in a while their whiskers will become conspicus. Their teeth needs cleaning every few mornings and it wouldn't even hurt them to wield the tooth brush over their bicuspids about every third evening or so. When people with a E in their name picks up a paper or a magazine or a book, they always read it right side up and from left to right. You won't never see a E man lying on their stomach with a book parked on their heels trying to read it.

A party with a E in their name is libel to have colic and croup when they are babys and later on in life they should ought to keep away from all pest houses that makes a specialty of catering to small pox patients and leopards as they are prone to catch 1 or the other.

When a boy that boasts of a E in their name gets to be 14 or 15 yrs. old they would better put on long trousers as their legs looks funny without them. It is also well to send these boys to school and take spelling. They need 3 pairs of shoes a yr. and should ought to have their fingernails trimmed every so often. Their voice is libel to change from a high soprano to a baritone or tenor between the age of 12 and 17 yrs. They hate to wash their ears and neck. When they take down sick they generally always better have a doctor.

When a E man reaches 25 or 26 yrs. old, either him or his parents better see he has at lease 2 collars so if 1 gets kind of soiled he can take it off and put on the other 1, as they's nothing that looks quite as bad as a young man with a E in their name going around without no collars or with a collar that looks like it had went to the neck too often. They should also either have a bow tie or a 4 in hand.

You will almost generally find that a man of the masculine sex with a E in their name like beef steak, though they may have different idears about it and some of them like it rare and medium and well done and etc. In conclusion, in regards to the males with a E in their name, I will ask the world if they's anybody that hasn't got one outside of Thos. Woodrow Wilson and even at that if you stick the word President ahead of it, why he is just like all the rest of us.

Now in regards to girls of the opposeing sex with a E in their name, I have found out after my yrs. of study that the big majority of women with this letter in their name gets married between the age of 16 and 92. They are always worried about how their hair looks, though nobody else cares nothing about it. They wear a much smaller shoe than the E men, but they wear a whole lot more of them. Most of them don't play golf as good as a E man. They are a whole lot more libel to break down and cry if things goes wrong. The most of them hates to see a E man throw cigar ashes on the liveing room floor. If a E woman has children its pretty near a safe bet that she will think they are cute. A E woman most generally always orders the grocerys but won't pay the bills.

Now in regards to a man with a U in their name. Most of them was christened with the sir name Gus and won't stand for no other, where as you take a female with a U and you will find the large majority of them is Ruth or Ruby. People with a U in their name is likely to get hungry every 3 or 4 days and want something to eat. They most generally wear either stockings or sox. They are libel to be sentimental and when somebody asks them to marry them they will either say yes or no.

I have got a whole lot more informations about the different letters in the alphabet and will give them in a later essay but in the mean wile don't let this Frog think that he has beat me to the subject.

THE WRENS AND THE HOUSING PROBLEM

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WHERE we made our mistake was in putting up two wren houses. It was a natural mistake, under the circumstances. We supposed that the house shortage is acute among birds as it is among the rest of us. It isn't. Thanks to cats, small boys, hawks and owls, there are more houses than birds. This excess was what made all the trouble.

Last year we put up one house. It was duly discovered and occupied. Of course there were disputes about its location and availability, but as there was only one house, it had to do.

A wren family was reared in it, and the offspring are presumably living happily ever after. Of course, we don't know positively about that. It was only the parents that came back this year.

The father wren turned up about the middle of May and went straight to the old house. We could tell by his enthusiastic welcoming of himself that it was home, sweet home, to him.

He tucked a few things into the doorway, just by way of filing a claim on it, and then went to page his wife.

Three days later she came along. She looked at the house and appeared to feel that it was good to be back again. Of course, she pulled out and threw away all the twigs her husband had put in. She has held a low opinion of his house-building ability ever since she has been coming around here.

But as she was heaving overboard the last twig of his collecting, her beady eye fell on the other house, which is about a hundred yards away on a cherry tree.

We needed no interpreter to know what she was saying as she angrily called out to her mate.

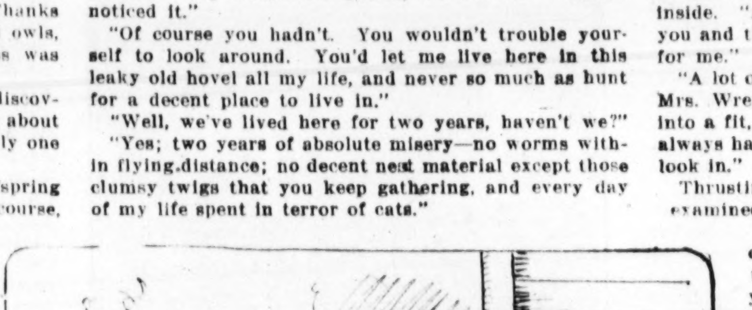
'Why go back to this old place, when there's a nice new house over there?' she said.

"Hm!" responded her husband, "so there is. I hadn't noticed it."

"Of course you hadn't. You wouldn't trouble yourself to look around. You'd let me live here in this leaky old hovel all my life, and never so much as hunt for a decent place to live in."

"Well, we've lived here for two years, haven't we?"

"Yes; two years of absolute misery—no worms within flying distance; no decent nest material except those clumsy twigs that you keep gathering, and every day of my life spent in terror of cats."



"Why go back to this old place, when there's a nice new house over there?"

"Oh, all right," said the father wren, wearily, "let's go take a look at the other house."

He flew over to it and looked in, closely followed by the lady.

"Entrance too big," he said, as he cocked his eye inside. "A cat could reach his paw inside and snake you and the kids out in less time than you could chirp for me."

"A lot of good it would do to chirp for you," snapped Mrs. Wren. "Even if you were here you'd be scared into a fit, and the minute a cat walks up the path you always have an engagement in the next block. Let ME look in."

Thrusting her partner off the perch at the door she examined the interior of the new house.

"Splendid," she cried. "Clean, modern, lots of air and light. If you had to spend your time in a stuffy dungeon like that other house, you'd appreciate decent living conditions."

"But what about the cats and the sparrows? Do you want to have them dropping in for a meal every time they feel hungry and taking a couple of the children away in their insides?"

"Nonsense! Isn't there always danger of cats and sparrows? Didn't I live in constant dread of them all the while we were raising our last family? Is my life anything whatever but a constant shudder of fear of cats and sparrows? And if I have a chance to shudder in comfort, in a clean, airy house instead of in an ill-ventilated, messy tenement house, is there any reason why you, who spend all your time singing songs to other wrens' wives, should deny me that simple pleasure?"

"But the cats couldn't climb up that pipe that holds up the other house, you know that well enough."

EVERY WIFE'S VACATION

By HELEN ROWLAND.

EVERY Wife looks blithely forward to the Summer Vacation

As a sort of domestic holiday—

An annual honeymoon!

She dreams of lolling indolently on the beach, steeped in sweet irresponsibility, clover blossoms, and starlight—

Of strolling under the mellow moon, holding hands,

And flirting with her own husband!

She dreams, figuratively speaking, of BURYING her wedding ring—that symbol of a thousand petty worries and responsibilities—

She writes for the summer resort catalogues.

And they fume and fuss and worry and argue over where they shall go,

And correspond with 20 or more rapacious hotel proprietors,

And finally "compromise" on something that they don't want, but CAN afford, or on something they DO want, but can't afford.

And, after that, she has nothing in the world to do,

But find a place for the maid, for the summer,

And send the rugs to cold storage,

And find somebody to take care of the cat,

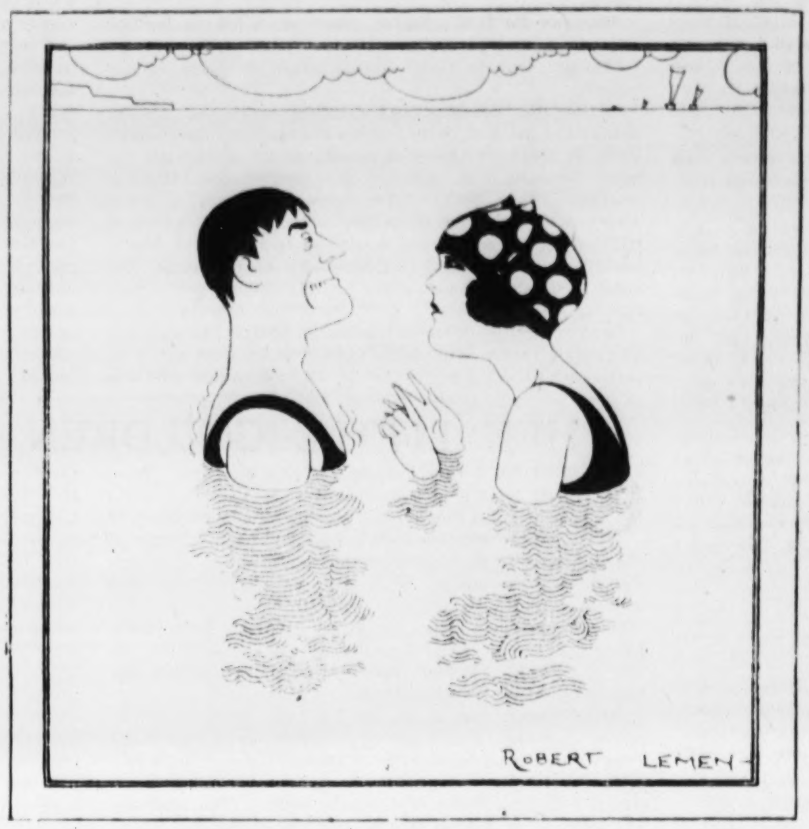
And ship the dog to Uncle Jim,

And put away all the woolen things, in camphor,

And see that the ice, and the milk, and the newspapers are stopped,

And make sure that the last of the laundry has come home,

And pack all the trunks,



"And explain why the bathing is so cold."

And unpack them all again, to get out something she put in by mistake,

And repack them—half a dozen times,

And put all the toothbrushes, and the sweaters and the toilet articles in the grips,

And find his steamer cap, and his fishing tackle, and his old shoes, and his dancing pumps and his "sneakers."

And see that he doesn't sleep under an open window and catch cold,

And write all the separate members of the family the moment they arrive,

And unpack all his things, and find his clean handkerchiefs, and his bathing suit, and his canvas shoes,

And "fancy up" the hotel room, so that it will look a little more homelike,

And find something for him to do, while she finishes unpacking,

And ask the maid for more towels and an extra blanket,

And order his shaving water and get out his sport shirts,

And find the "lost chord" in his bathing suit,

And run a new drawstring through it,

And wait for him to finish shaving,

And find the courtplaster,

And try to explain why there are so many mosquitoes,

And find the citronella,

And convince him that he has the very best table in the dining room,

And sympathize when fish don't bite,

And explain why the bathing is so cold,

And find the quinine,

And utter the morning and evening invocation,

"Rain, rain, go away! Little Hubby wants to play!"

And prove to him that it CAN'T go on raining forever!

And go down on her knees and apologize to him for having "gotten him into this!"

And then—

Well, then, it's time to go back HOME again,

And take up life's REAL burdens!

Consequences of Attempts at Weight Reduction

to contract and expand them properly. The heart muscle is similarly affected. The entire functions of the body are disturbed. And if, owing to profuse perspiration, there has been a sudden reduction of tissue, this is likely to build up rapidly again by the exhausted organs of the body failing to perform their usual duties of elimination.

"Then there is the woman who takes drugs. In the old days, lemon juice and vinegar were often drunk to excess by misguided persons. While they may not come under the head of drugs, the effect is much the same. The digestive and excretory organs are so affected they fail to do their duty and a mass of surplus, not carried from the body, builds up a supply of unhealthy fat. The kidneys refuse to carry off the liquids and this adds to the puffiness and unwholesomeness of this sort of fat.

"Many drugs used for reducing contain thyroid extracts—preparations drawn from the thyroid glands. These have the peculiar property of destroying what is called metabolism. That is, they upset the balance of nature which gives the system the selective power to distinguish between nourishing food and useless materials. The food is not properly assimilated and the system fails in nourishment so rapidly that we see the haggard, pallid type of women, with wrinkled skin lying in folds where the fat has shrunk and with huge pouches under the eyes. The general run-down condition of the body is reflected in the listlessness of the patient and the lack-luster eyes. Such treatment often permanently injures the system when misapplied.

"I have known of some most disastrops cases through the use of drugs.

"It must be remembered that a healthy and slow process of weight reduction brings a healthy contraction of the skin as the fat cells dissolve. Sudden reduction, with the fat cells dissolving rapidly, permits the skin to wrinkle in folds. Moreover, many thyroid preparations cause the breaking down of healthy portions of the body more rapidly than the fat cells.

"In most cases, exercise alone will not reduce if the fat is excessive. Dieting is necessary for the average woman. Even drinking as much water as desired, after exercise, will often replace the dissolved fat cells.

"For an extremely flabby woman, a process of walking and massage should start her efforts at reduction. She should get an opinion from a competent authority as to the amount of exercise and the sort of diet needed in her case. If extremely flabby, a course of electric treatment which alternately expands and contracts the muscles and which increases the heart beats only three or four per minute, instead of 15 or 20 per minute, as might result from exercise, is often prescribed.

"Reducing by baths is more devitalizing than by exertion. But a steam or hot air bath, in a cabinet, under proper medical supervision, is of assistance. This can be so arranged as to put no strain on the vital organs.

"We must all remember that, after 30, there is generally a slowing up of the entire system. Yet we continue to eat as much as before, in most cases.

"To the person with excess weight let me earnestly advise moderation in attempting reduction. A slow and systematic course can be taken in one's own home. Sudden efforts during vacation may do more harm than good; drastic methods of sweating not only upset the entire system but bring a violent reaction from nature in the form of increased weight and treatment by drugs is too often a form of slow poisoning.

"There is no easy road to weight reduction, but there is a sure one, and that can be followed by moderation and common sense.

"The woman who will take proper advice, who will conscientiously adhere to a program of exercise and dieting and who, above all things, will give the needed time to a course of reduction, can permanently regain the weight nature intended without injury and with lasting benefit to her health.

"But the woman who is determined to attempt drastic reduction of weight must abide the consequences, and these are almost invariably disastrous."

Time Honored Witticisms of the Comic Press

Another witticism which depends upon the English morning "bawth" to carry it off, is that of the man who calls at an acquaintance's lodgings and asks if Mr. Jones is up yet.

"Yes," answered the landlady sternly, "he got up an hour ago, drank his bath and went back to bed."

When war-time restrictions were placed on liquor selling in England, there was bitter complaint among the workingmen, especially about closing down the bars at 9:30 at night. One philosopher, however, is made to remark in the columns of Punch:

"Well, wot I says is, if a man ain't drunk by half past nine, 'e ain't trying."

Another bit of British humor depicts the former soldier, who has pledged himself to temperance, leaving a public house with a friend at closing hour. His friend asks rather anxiously:

"What will you say to the missus?"

"I'll say 'Goo' night, 'Arriet,' and she'll say the rest," remarks the inebriate.

Another English paper takes a swing at the present prevalence of strikes by depicting a British workman walking unsteadily down the street in a cheerfully intoxicated condition. He is confronted by the pastor, who says reprovingly:

"Robert! Robert! And you were one of our chief temperance workers!"

"Sthill am, parshon," answers Robert cheerily, "jesh on strike, jesh now."

These anecdotes cannot be told of our United States any more. The only way they can hope to survive is by the adaptation with which British jokesmiths are fitting our choice bits of humor to their insular setting. One anecdote, stolen bodily from American papers, of a bygone date, relates to the husband who came home and informs his wife that he has spent the evening at the Smiths.

"The Smiths have just left here, after visiting all evening," she replies coldly.

"Well, anyway, that's my story and I'm going to stick to it," he retorts hotly.

One well-known anecdote of bygone American days was of the Irishman who had never been known to purchase a drink. Finally, he aroused expectation among the loungers in front of Dolan's bar by remarking as he entered:

"Well, boys, what are we going to have"——

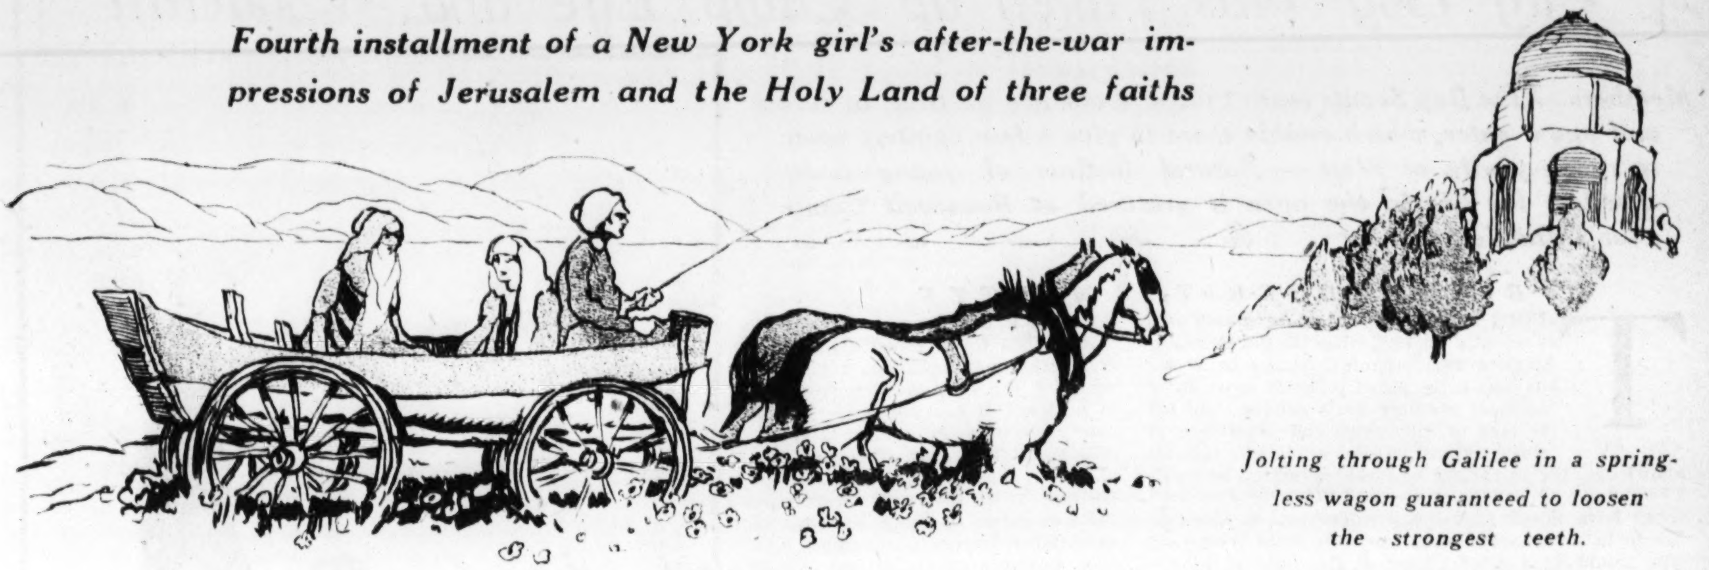
And then he threw a damper on the surging excitement by adding:

——"rain or snow?"

It is reported that this was published in British papers and fell flat. It was too typical of actual conditions in that country to be humorous. So if our standbys of hectic humor cannot even survive in the English press, it seems safe to say that the booze joke is gone forever.

VIGNETTES OF PALESTINE

Fourth installment of a New York girl's after-the-war impressions of Jerusalem and the Holy Land of three faiths



Jolting through Galilee in a springless wagon guaranteed to loosen the strongest teeth.

MISS MARION WEINSTEIN is a Barnard College graduate and metropolitan newspaper writer who has just returned from a six months' trip to Palestine, whence she sent home a voluminous correspondence. She is best known to Post-Dispatch Magazine readers as translator of the Sholem Aleicham (Yiddish Mark Twain) sketches, published in these pages a few seasons back.

By MARION WEINSTEIN.

Poudre de Riz.

ARAB cries pierce the smiling peace of Galilee. It is only the raucous debate of our two swarthy oarsmen, as they steer their sturdy craft into the clear blue sea. From the pier on Tiberias' shore bantering farewell calls rise from the dusky throats of the few ragged stragglers, the omnipresent Palestine audience that speeds every arrival and departure.

"Saida! Saida!" the green hills re-echo above the ancient city of Herod and, beyond the water, from the forbidding haunts of the Bedouins.

The morning sun seeps through the low-lying mists in a trail of iridescence. Past squalid huts, primitive baths that catch the cascade of the hot mineral springs, past the whitened tomb of Rabbi Meir Baal ha-Ness, the boatmen tug their way. On the dewy fields early spring blossoms glisten like tiny jewels. Where the gentle slope joins the Sea of Galilee, a herd of black goats lazily lap away their thirst.

There are some 20 of us in the old boat—Arabs, Jews, Armenians, mostly natives of the Holy Land. My fellow passengers, in all sorts of mismated clothing—galabiehs topped by European coats or lambskins, shawls, fezzes, turbans—are a carefree company.

I find myself beside a jolly peasant woman, and at my right a little Jewish girl who is traveling with her patriarchal father. Our knees touch two Moslem ladies, whose bright robes peep from beneath dark, nun-like garments, their faces faintly visible at our close range through heavy black veils. They sit very still under the eyes of a watchful manservant. While they are fixed in hushed rigidity, the unveiled peasant woman chatters volubly and laughs with great gusto.

The little Jewish girl laughs, too. Like most of the Hebrew children in the land, she understands Arabic. She interprets the scene before me. The Arab fellah woman is singing the paean of praise of her beautiful daughter.

"I'll give you 40 pounds for her," comes from a gayly turbaned youth in the stern of the boat.

"Forty!" she sniffs contemptuously. "I have been offered 400, and if I wait I'll get 500. She has eyes like the night, and lips"——

Here her attention is distracted to my conversation with the little girl. Our Yiddish is strange to her ears. As she leans toward us to catch our words I admire the silver bracelets on her arm. She is soon offering them for "bakshish"—coins—and in a few moments we have made a mutually satisfactory exchange. And now she is all curiosity about me. She learns my age, my business, my birthplace, my prospects of marriage. From head to toe her lively gaze passes over me in frank appraisal. My tailored outfit is evidently found wanting. Her Oriental disparagement seems almost a challenge to Western civilization. Perhaps that is why, in justice to myself and the Occident, I am driven to an extremity. I produce a box of flesh-colored powder. Her eyes open wide. I wield a generously dipped puff faceward.

A speechless pause. Then suddenly she is begging: "For my daughter, for my beautiful daughter!"

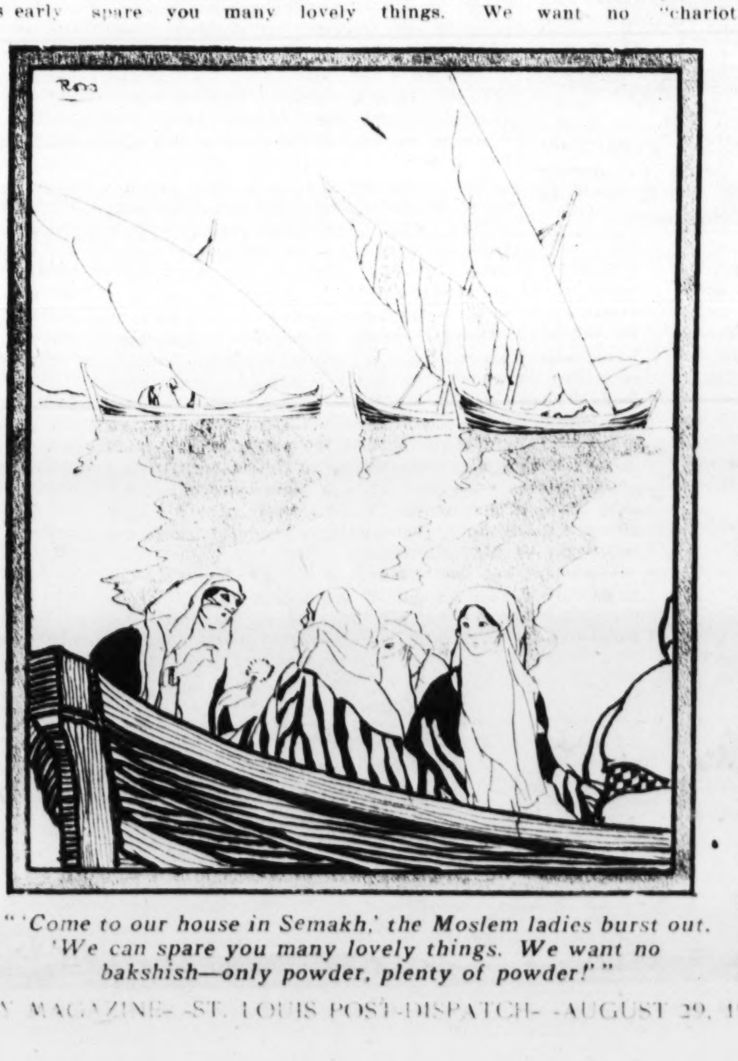
With many chuckles she pockets what I give her in the folds of her faded dress.

This is too much for the Moslem ladies. They forget their position in life, their zealous guardian. They, too, have bracelets to barter, I hear in soft Arabic, via my young interpreter. But what they want in return is some of that powder. A quantity of American rice powder quickly changes hands, perhaps laying the foundation for a future popular import. Peaceful penetration.

By this time we have reached the banks of the Jewish colony, Kinnereth. Before our eyes the Jordan leaves the lute-shaped Sea of Galilee in a meandering stream. With great to-do the oarsmen shove the boat toward a steep, muddy cape, for my benefit. The others are to disembark two miles away.

The Moslem ladies watch my movements with suppressed interest. As I step ashore, they burst out in a farewell whisper:

"Come to our house in Semakh, the house of Mahomet Effendi, near the huge cistern. We can spare you many lovely things. We want no bakshish—only the powder—plenty of the powder."



"'Come to our house in Semakh,' the Moslem ladies burst out. 'We can spare you many lovely things. We want no bakshish—only powder, plenty of powder!'"

We are at the tail of a three days' wagon journey that has taken us through the Jewish colonies in Lower Galilee. Leaving Poriah, the American settlement, we clatter down the mud-cleft road that winds to the source of the River Jordan. Our destination is the old Turkish railway junction, where I am to entrain in a few hours for the halting ride to Haifa.

My companion, a merry girl from Sedjerah, is busy teasing our driver, her brother's friend. He is pale and slight, a fair, boyish down on his cheeks. Usually his work is in the grain fields of a colonist in Mesha. But between seasons of planting and plowing, his "boss" is glad to earn a pound a day hiring out his idle cart, mules and man to chance travelers. The youth looks upon such odd jobs as welcome outings. They offer a chance to visit his pals in neighboring villages.

Our driver draws up his team for periodic rests. It is then that he slips from his seat in front and brings us the first flowers of spring, lovely blossoms of rich blue, purple and rose, tiny lilies and daisies and anemones, with a rare vivid poppy. Of endless variety they seem, miniatures of their Western kin in a miniature land.

We joke about the springless wagon, with its improvised seats, two planks covered with meal sacks. Our driver assures us it is warranted to break any ribs or loosen the strongest teeth, if given time and a fair opportunity. He asks me if I have ever seen such a "chariot" among the wonders of wonderful America. Our laughter rings out over the smiling hilltops. How else are we to forget the accumulated aches of countless jolts?

"Never mind," our driver consoles me, "The next time you come there will be British roads here. And my boss will have an automobile—maybe an American automobile."

His attitude toward his employer piques my interest. He is the first field worker in Palestine who has had a kind word to offer for his colonist boss. Elsewhere I have heard only bitter cries of "capitalists," "exploiters." I wonder why this mere boy is different. I ask him.

I fancy the merry girl is not pleased with the serious turn in the conversation. Our driver, however, plainly welcomes it.

"I have no patience with these grumblers," he bursts out. "Talkers, weaklings. What have we to do with capital-labor problems? We Jews here have but one problem, each one in his own small way to rebuild our ancient homeland. What should we pioneers say, when these newcomers talk of their 'claims,' their 'rights'?"

His eyes glow with a faraway look. He is gazing into Palestine's past of epidemic, of war, of want.

The merry girl has grown sober, too.

"Joel was a Russian student," she whispers to me, with a nod toward our driver, who has turned abruptly to his team. "He came here with a little band of Zionists. He left rich parents in Odessa. You should have seen him a few years ago. Now he's wasted and worn. He has fevered and fevered in the marshy fields. And he was to have been a musician."

A silence enfolds us. We both look fixedly at the mules that are now tearing down the last stretch of slope to the shore. A few moments more and we stand at the Jordan's edge.

"Sholom! Peace be with you!" comes their parting call as they drive away toward Kinnereth. "Sholom!" I answer.

to the left, deep in the pine woods. "Out of bounds?" he inquired, without passion. "Aren't any bounds," snapped his father. "You go on in there and play it out—and kindly don't tee it up in there, either. I don't."

As his son disappeared among the trees, Mr. Hobgood allowed himself the full luxury of his emotions. For many weeks he had looked avidly forward to the joyousness of this occasion; and the present discovery that Richard couldn't even take an interest in it was demoralizing. It was more than that; it was tragic. And it harassed Mr. Hobgood for more reasons than one; he knew that he saw in Richard symptoms of that same arbitrariness of disposition, that same disregard for everything but business attainment, which had put Mr. Hobgood himself on the list of incapables at age 65. The worst of it was that Richard, let alone, would have retained his diversions. If Richard ever worked himself into uselessness it would be Mr. Hobgood's own fault. It was palpably Mr. Hobgood's duty to get Richard out of the frame of mind into which Mr. Hobgood himself had put him. He must arouse his son's old enthusiasm—but how?

Naturally, while his mind was filled with sorrow and reproach, there was little room for golf. He pecked sharply at the ball and sent it nosing against a stump, where there was no possible stance. He tried standing ahead of the stump, then standing behind it, then standing with one foot on it. Eventually he prodded it a few feet into the open, and promptly hooked it back into the woods; upon which he opened the floodgates of his mood, and opened his caddy's eyes with envious admiration. He staggered onto the green in six and cast about him for Richard. Richard was just emerging from agricultural pursuits, and indulging in what has inelegantly, but aptly, been termed the tragedy of the hoisted bean. But Richard was as imperturbable as ever.

"How many?" demanded Mr. Hobgood, gruffly.

"Oh, five or six. Somewhere along there."

"How many?"

Richard, perceiving his father's irritation, counted thoughtfully on his fingers. "Five. I was under a tree over there, and"——

"Never mind the postmortems. Call it medicinal. It keeps us out in the open air, anyway. I'm on in six. See if you can get a half."

They halved in a gallant eight. "What I'd call a clubhouse five," explained Mr. Hobgood. "Meaning, when I get back to the clubhouse I could say if I'd had a decent drive, and then everything else had gone the same way, I'd have a real five. Well, I'm still one up. Here's where a long drive won't hurt you any. Do you s'pose you can remember you're playing golf long enough to hit one in the eye?"

He had the pleasure of watching Richard whip out a beautiful shot, which headed his own best effort by a hundred yards. Mr. Hobgood, however, played warily short of the pits on his second, and chipped to the green in three. Richard fumbled shamefully into a trap, overplayed and came back in four. Mr. Hobgood won the hole by a stroke, but Richard displayed no chagrin. He halved the next in six and the short hill hole in four. On the seventh Richard again triangulated to the woods, and wanted to pick-up.

"Merciful heaven!" snapped old Mr. Hobgood. "Who'd ever have said there's a rank yellow quitter in my family! Go play it."

He won the hole in seven to eight, halved the eighth in four, and won the ninth in a par three to a sloppy four for Richard. Then he turned to the caddies. "You boys go up to the next tee and wait till we come. Richard, I want you to come over here and sit down a minute."

"Tired, father?"

Mr. Hobgood nodded rapidly.

"Yes, I am! Tired of this cussed way you're acting." He made himself comfortable on the slope and lighted a slender cigar. "You don't seem to be able to put your mind on the game."

"No," said Richard frankly, "I can't."

"Still thinking of business?"

"Yes."

Old Mr. Hobgood puffed slowly. "Would you ever be willing to go to work for any other company but ours?"

"No. Hardly."

"Will you make me a solemn promise on your word of honor that you'll never work for anybody else?"

"Why, of course. I don't see the point, but if it'll please you any, of course, I'll promise."

"Shake hands on it. There! Now." He sat up straighter. "Richard, I used to be an awful fool about these things—games like golf; recreations; I pretty near killed myself. The biggest mistake I ever made was when I had you give it up. If I'd had sense enough to take some fun and exercise as I went along, I wouldn't be a broken-down old fool now. And we wouldn't have made near as much money, either. That ain't the point. But you're doing the same thing. You look awful peaked! You ain't the boy you used to be; you're a machine, just like I was. You're a strong man, but you can't stand the strain much longer. Don't dream, there; listen! You've got so you can't even realize you're out supposed to be having a good time with your father. You can't even brace up so's not to get licked by an old man. Well, you've got to. You've got to get some relief from business, or—— Why don't you enjoy this, Richard? Why don't you like it the way you used to? Why don't you begin to play at Garden City again?"

"The competition was what I used to like, father. Something at stake. Tournaments, you know. Some kind of stimulus. But the Hobgood company means so much more than"——

Old Mr. Hobgood reached out to touch his son's knee. "All right, boy. You've got to get some diversion, or you'll go all to pieces. And you say it takes competition to get you excited. A stake. All right. Listen to me. In 1915, when I put you in to run the company, the partnership agreement was that you'd be the managing partner, but I'd be the directing partner, wasn't it? And while I was so sick, you acted as directing partner, too; and after your work on the Russian situation, I let you keep on with it, and I never said a word. But, according to that agreement, I can put you out any minute I choose to—as an executive, I mean; of course I can't put you out of your interest. Richard, you look at me. I'm an old man, but I'm your father. I'm four up on you for nine holes. And you say that Hobgood & Co.'s all you're interested in. Listen! If I beat you this match, so help me God, I'll fire you!"

Richard laughed. "Don't be silly, father."

"Silly!" roared Mr. Hobgood. "You look at me!"

Richard looked. "You certainly don't expect me to take that seriously."

"Did I ever break a promise to you yet? You want a stake, do you? And you want to stay with Hobgood & Co., do you? And you won't even show enough energy to give me a decent match the only time we've played together in all our lives, won't you? Well, then, by gravy, I'll make you! And it's my fault I've got to make you, too. I don't forget that, not for a holy second. But as sure as you sit there, Richard, if I trim you today—you big, hulking money grubber, you—you're out of Hobgood & Co. on Monday morning! If you think that's a bluff—call it!"

There was a long pause. Richard knew his father. He was overwhelmed with disgust at his father's idiosyncrasies, but he knew that his father's word wasn't subject to discount. It was a terrible and grotesque threat. Unbelievable. Hardly sane. Yet old man Hobgood had the expression of a Daniel. He was palpably sincere. Yes, and well-meaning. Besides, Richard had formerly been ranked among the leading golfers of the country. It was a sickening performance; still it might be better to humor the old gentleman for the present. Richard's gorge rose, but he had sense enough not to tell his father exactly what he thought of him.

"Is that your final statement?" he asked coldly. "If it is, of course, I'm under your control—commercially."

"It's my promise, boy. And I'll keep it if it's the last thing I ever do."

Richard, red to the ears, got to his feet. "Very well. Quite a happy little thought. Quite. Come on and play the match out, then. I believe it's your honor."

* * * * * * * *

Now, after Mr. Hobgood had driven just over the pond on the tenth, putting into that drive the best there was in him, he stood aside for Richard, who was some distance away, swinging viciously at grass tops. Mr. Hobgood observed, with a sudden thrill of joy, that Richard was very much concentrated, and that already, in practice, he had lengthened his swing. Mr. Hobgood knew that Richard was secretly loathing him, but he also knew that Richard was blessed with the spirit of the Vikings. Once fully aroused, Richard would fight until he couldn't stand up. That was precisely why he was killing himself in business. When he finally drove, it was with greater abandon than ever, but it was with the carefully applied abandon which brings results. The ball was hooked, but Richard had cared, for once, what happened to it. His reaction of annoyance made Mr. Hobgood want to chant a hymn of praise, but he compromised by murmuring, so that Richard could hear him: "Pretty punk!"

They crossed the isthmus in silence. Richard halted to watch his father play. "This'll make me five up," said Mr. Hobgood bravely. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself." He hit a very respectable shot past the corner of the deep trap, almost to the green. "I bet if I'd gone to Yale I'd have made the football team myself."

Richard gave him a sour smile. He was writhing inwardly at the mere thought of the awful farce in which he was a conscripted actor. He wondered if he ought to ask the courts to appoint a guardian for his poor old father. Still, it wouldn't be politic to antagonize him now. He'd better play it out and argue afterward—if necessary.

But after Richard had chipped up within striking distance, and his poor old father proceeded to miss the hole—and a birdie three—by hitting the flagstick from off the green, Richard stopped smiling. He was reminded that the short game on sand isn't to be acquired quickly after a 10-year lapse. He gauged the distance carefully and played 10 feet from the cup. He still had a chance for a half, but he made his strike too gingerly.

"Five up," said Mr. Hobgood. "And a man who's always short on his putts has got a yellow streak in him a yard wide. Who did you ever beat in the Metropolitan, Richard—cripples? Five up and eight to go."

He played the eleventh cautiously, and got his usual six. Richard, in deep trouble and outspoken profanity from the tee, emerged from the rough in four, put his fifth on the edge of the green, and sank a 20-footer for the half only. The long putt consoled him somewhat for having betrayed his feelings after the drive. Not for worlds would he voluntarily have let his father know that he intended to hand him the worst walloping he could. His purpose was to simulate the utmost indifference and to play his best.

"Lucky putt," said Mr. Hobgood. "I ought to've been"——

"Lucky!" demanded Richard. "How do you make that out?"

"Well, it kept you in the game a while longer. If you'd missed it you'd have been out of a job."

Richard shut his teeth hard. "That's all right. You've been putting on these confounded sand greens all season. Your ideas of a fair match are sort of humorous."

"I'll give you a week's practice, and putt you a round on the clock for a hundred dollars a hole. Darn it!" said Mr. Hobgood, dolefully, "I'm beginning to wonder whether you were always a four-flusher!"

"Keep still when I'm driving!" said Richard furiously. "If you expect to hold me to your crazy, wild ideas, for heaven's sake don't play mucker golf, father! Keep still and give me a chance!" He smote powerfully, straight and true; and thereafter achieved a beautiful second shot. He was dead to the hole in three, and took a four to Mr. Hobgood's labored half dozen. "My honor!" To save himself he couldn't keep a grin of triumph off his face.

"Well," observed his father, "the time to gloat's when you've got the chance. That's what I say. That's the first hole you've won, and it's about the first one you couldn't call medicinal."

On the thirteenth, however, there was no need to throw away a stroke. Richard was slowly finding the ball, and, with all his attention riveted on it, kept in the course. His approach was too heavy, and his first putt too strong, but he went down in five to his father's six, and became three down with five to go.

"I didn't see you outputting me there so very much," said Richard icily.

"Everybody finds a horseshoe sometime," retorted Mr. Hobgood.

Richard's drive at the fourteenth was herculean; Mr. Hobgood was transfigured as he watched it. Mr. Hobgood himself duffed badly, and came along by short marches to an inglorious seven. Richard put an approach squarely on the flag, and gathered a par four. He was more relaxed now, and his expression was far less dramatic.

"Speaking of the leather market," began Mr. Hobgood.

"Keep still!" said Richard. "What are you trying to do—put me off my game deliberately?"

"I didn't know you had any game," said old Mr. Hobgood innocently. "You certainly haven't showed any of it to me."

On the short fifteenth, Richard caught the green with a full iron. His father, playing the driver, was barely over the traps. But they halved the hole, and Mr. Hobgood, whose short game was deadly, chuckled aloud. "I'm two up and three to go," he remarked, "and I can play the seventeenth and eighteenth as good as you can. I guess you won't talk about stakes to me after this!"

Richard said nothing, but he was humming to himself as he walked to the tee. Before he played, he looked up momentarily at the sky and drew a long breath. Mr. Hobgood's heart bounded. "You're doing mighty well coming in. I bet if you had a week down here, you'd shoot around 85 most any time."

"Eighty-five," said Richard contemptuously. "What do you think I am—a baby? I've played this course in 80 with a jigger alone." He sent out a cracking drive, which put a sparkle into his eyes. "Beat that!"

"I don't have to. Where I catch you is around the green."

But he didn't. Richard won handily in five to six, and took the seventeenth by virtue of a sterling drive, in par three. "All square," he said, relieved, "and one to go." Feeling that he was freed from all danger, he regarded his father more tolerantly. He even experienced a moment of positive affection for the old gentleman, who took his pleasures and his games so seriously. He comprehended something of his father's motive for this unequal combat, and because he was now in a position to see the lighter side of it, he could even

The "Tenderfoot" Lives in the Country Now That City Boy Has Taken up Camp Life and Woodcraft

Members of the Boy Scouts learn things about life on trail, in forest and upon water, which enable them to give a few pointers even to ranch youths of West — Natural instinct of young town dwellers for life in the open is gratified at Roosevelt Camp near Irondale

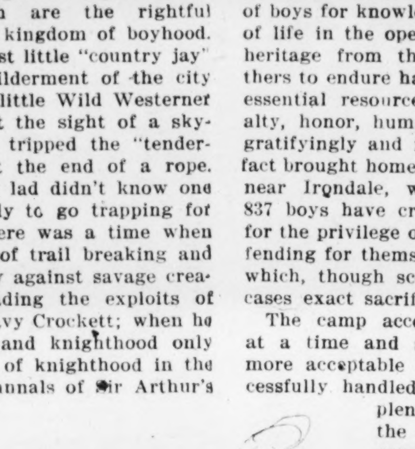
By MARGUERITE MARTYN

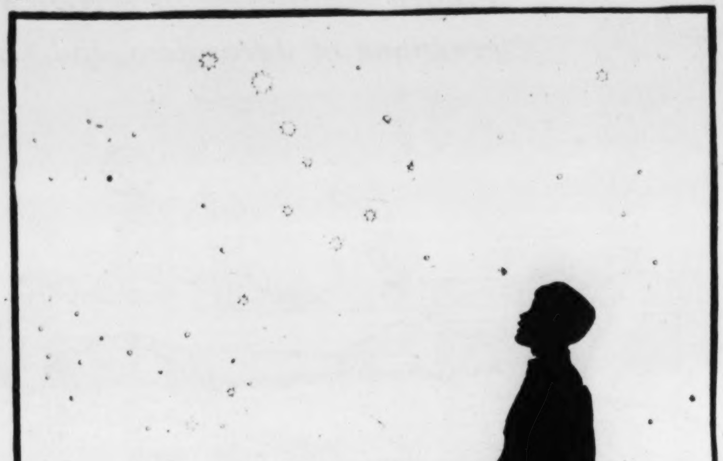
THERE was a time, not so very long ago, as recently as 1910, when the Boy Scouts of America were organized, that a little city boy was to be pitied or made sport of by the most ordinary little country boy for the lack of knowledge and experience of those things which are the rightful knowledge, the birthright of the kingdom of boyhood. There was a time when the veriest little "country jay" could have laughed at the bewilderment of the city cousin in a barnyard, when the little Wild Westerner who would have stood aghast at the sight of a skyscraper, could have tangled and tripped the "tenderfoot," defenseless in a noose at the end of a rope. There was a time when the city lad didn't know one bird from another and was likely to go trapping for kingfishers in Forest Park. There was a time when the city boy enjoyed the thrills of trail breaking and pathfinding and fighting his way against savage creatures in the wild, through reading the exploits of Daniel Boone, Kit Carson and Davy Crockett; when he felt the exaltation of chivalry and knighthood only vicariously through the exploits of knighthood in the novels of Sir Walter Scott, the annals of Sir Arthur's court. There was a period when little or no organized outlet was provided for the average city boy for his inherent craving for adventure and romance unless he sought it in gangs in dark, unwholesome city byways or broke away singly from family ties and guidance and ran away to sea or other fascinating places of the earth.



"Kitchen police" experience which will come in handy when fending for himself in the wilderness.

But all that is done away with now that any boy who has the patience to wait until he is 12 years old may join the Boy Scouts. Boyhood has come into its own again, and through this merciful agency he is rescued from dread mollycoddleism. Indeed, the full-fledged Boy Scout who has progressed through some of the degrees of the order may be able to teach the farmer boy some things he doesn't know about fending for himself in the wildnerness, as how to build a fire without matches, for instance. The Boy Scout can match knot-tying with the sailor, can fling a lariat with the Westerner, can box a compass or tell directions from the stars with the mariner, can talk to the hunter and the fisherman in their own language, exchange knowledge of the haunts and habits of wild animals with the trapper, respond to the wigwagging of the sailor, can test his skill with many chemists and scientists, to say nothing of what he can give and take with the heroes of romance in chivalry and courtesy and kindly deeds. Indeed, it is beyond a mere woman of another generation to begin to enumerate the feats a Boy Scout can perform.

It is good to observe that, though civilization may have been neglecting some of the essential requirements of boyhood, it has not succeeded in starving utterly the natural instincts of boys for knowledge and experience of life in the open, nor subdued the heritage from their pioneer forefathers to endure hardship, nor obscure essential resources of courage, loyalty, honor, humane instinct. Most gratifyingly and impressively is this fact brought home at Roosevelt Camp, near Irondale, where this summer 837 boys have crowded one another for the privilege of living in the open, fending for themselves, obeying rules which, though scout made, in many cases exact sacrifice and restraint.



A scout can tell the time of night and locate the points of the compass by the stars.

The camp accommodates but 200 at a time and smaller groups are more acceptable as being more successfully handled by scout masters, plentiful enough though the scout masters are, considering that they are all graduates of scoutcraft who give up their vacations voluntarily to pass on to other boys benefits they themselves have received.

The limitations are not mentioned with the idea of discouraging new recruits to the camp. On the contrary, the more who seek admission the more the camp will grow and prosper. A sudden impetus to the popularity of the camp is due to the fact that this summer the scouts have come into actual ownership of their camp ground as a permanent vacation resort. For seven years they have enjoyed the hospitality of the recent owner. Now 50 acres of cedar-wooded hill country, upon which there are 13 springs purling out of enormous red, iron-tinted rocks, have been deeded to the organization for a consideration, provided largely from the funds raised during the drive a year ago last June.

Two thousand dollars a year are assured for the maintenance and equipment of the camp, these funds being derived from payment for scout services on many occasions, payment always going to the movement, never to the individual scouts. A swimming pool is a dream likely to be realized soon, though it will have to be provided through special donations. Meantime, woodcrafters among the boys are enthusiastically constructing many improvements. Already they have bridged many stream crossings, built observation towers and erected a stadium which seats 600. In the middle of the stadium games are played, stunts performed and at night the big camp fire is built, round which tall tales are told, for your scout can cap ancient lore, such as a campfire inspires, with tales of daily adventure, and he is encouraged to put into words descriptions of his experiences.

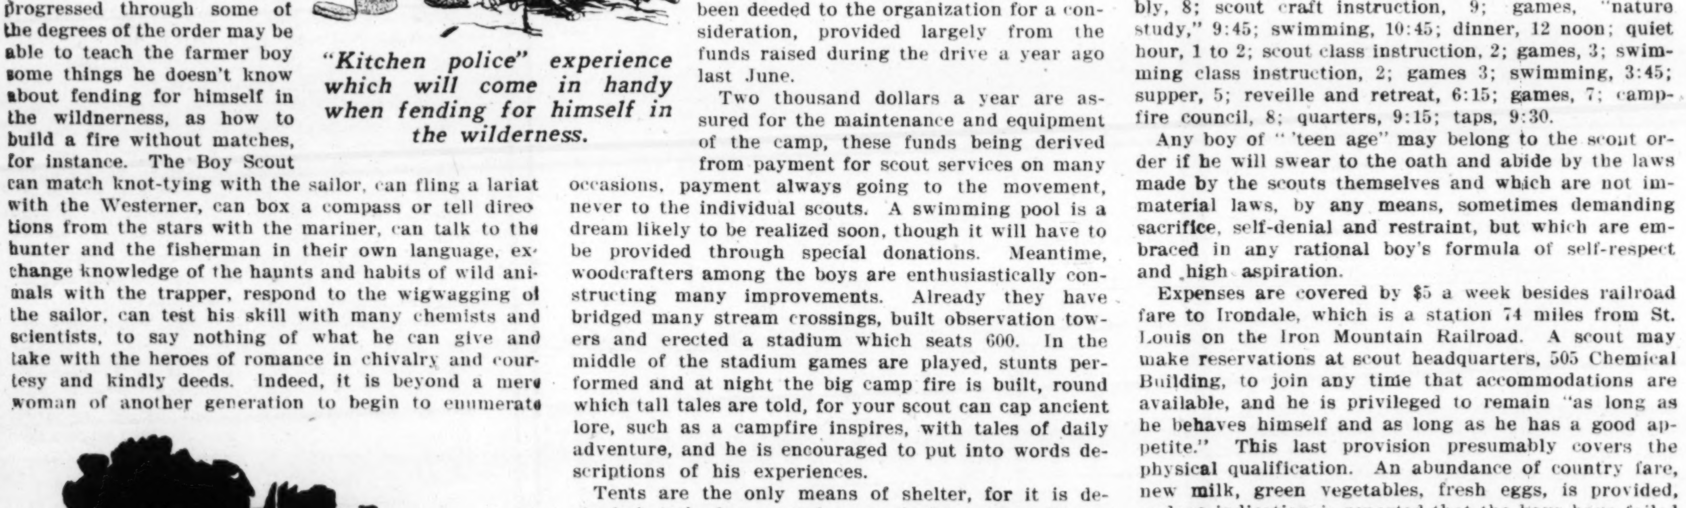
Tents are the only means of shelter, for it is desired that the boys spend as much time as possible in the open. The camp opens the week school closes and breaks up the first week in September. Scout Commissioner Maj. H. H. Simmons spends the entire season there. A negro cook, formerly a dining car cook, is employed. He established a record recently on dedication day when he cooked an average of 11 pancakes each for 225 boys. He has one paid assistant and boys taking turn at "kitchen police" provide the rest of the labor. The scout manual describes scout craft as being neither military nor nonmilitary, but a schedule of the day's regime includes many military terms and regulations.

It isn't all play, for it is recognized that that makes Jack a dull boy. "Constructive work and constructive play" are planned as the order of the day on a 50-50 ratio. The schedule itself is enlightening as to the occupation of a scout camp:

Reveille, 6 a. m.; assembly, 6:15; camp police, 6:45; breakfast, 7; tent inspection on first call, 7:45; assembly, 8; scout craft instruction, 9; games, "nature study," 9:45; swimming, 10:45; dinner, 12 noon; quiet hour, 1 to 2; scout class instruction, 2; games, 3; swimming class instruction, 2; games 3; swimming, 3:45; supper, 5; reveille and retreat, 6:15; games, 7; campfire council, 8; quarters, 9:15; taps, 9:30.

Any boy of " 'teen age" may belong to the scout order if he will swear to the oath and abide by the laws made by the scouts themselves and which are not immaterial laws, by any means, sometimes demanding sacrifice, self-denial and restraint, but which are embraced in any rational boy's formula of self-respect and high aspiration.

Expenses are covered by $5 a week besides railroad fare to Irondale, which is a station 74 miles from St. Louis on the Iron Mountain Railroad. A scout may make reservations at scout headquarters, 505 Chemical Building, to join any time that accommodations are available, and he is privileged to remain "as long as he behaves himself and as long as he has a good appetite." This last provision presumably covers the physical qualification. An abundance of country fare, new milk, green vegetables, fresh eggs, is provided, and no indication is reported that the boys have failed to do justice to the meals. There has not been a case of sickness reported this summer.



A second-class scout must be able to go a mile in twelve minutes, scout's pace, as one qualification to become a first-class scout.

funny. Well, we can fix it up all right, I guess. The shop's fine. Say, Richard! I've shot 101 four times. John Peacock says I'll break a hundred before the season's over! Anything over a hundred, I say, don't count as golf; it just counts as health. When you score in three figures you've got to fall back on what a good day it is, and how much better you feel. But I'm going to get so I won't have to call it medicinal. By gravy, if I'd taken up this game when I was your age, I could play it now. Yes, sir!"

"That's good," said Richard absently.

His father surveyed him and seemed cooled. "You've been here before, haven't you?"

"Yes—part of Christmas vacation in junior year."

"Wha'd you make on No. 2? Your best, I mean."

Richard shrugged his shoulders. "I've forgotten. Seventy-one or 72—somewhere around there."

Mr. Hobgood regarded him with reverence. "Richard, I want to say to you right now I never appreciated you. All the things you've done. I"——

Richard's eyes had depths in them. "Did I write you we added a million and a half to surplus account the last quarter?"

Old Mr. Hobgood glanced sharply at him, and sighed. "Well, here we are! I've got your room. Don't take too much time, now. We've got to hustle and get out there."

Richard, in the hotel lobby, looked pained. "I'm awfully sorry, father. But I've got two or three contracts with me I've simply got to go over, so I can send 'em back to New York tonight."

"Oh—you have! Couldn't you have done 'em on the train?"

"I did three. There's four left."

"Well, let 'em slide. This is your vacation, and I want you should"——

Richard looked shocked. "There's a hundred thousand profit in 'em, father. As a matter of fact, I ought not to have come down here at all. We're awfully busy. But you insisted so"——

Mr. Hobgood became insistent. "But you need a vacation, boy! You haven't had a day off since you went into the business."

"It'll be vacation enough to work in a different climate. I've got to clean this stuff up first. Business before pleasure, always. I tell you what. You go without me this morning, and tomorrow I'll see if I can't fit in somehow."

Old Mr. Hobgood's shoulders drooped. "Couldn't you manage it just this once? Why, Richard, you and I never played any kind of a game together in all our lives. You musn't wear yourself out working, like I did. You"——

"Can't be done," said Richard firmly. He paused at the desk. "Any mail for me?"

The clerk produced a few letters and a dozen telegrams. Richard looked up from them to inquire: "Where's the public stenographer?" Old Mr. Hobgood, his mouth curved downward, softly muttered: "Damn!"

It was Richard's first vacation in a decade, and he celebrated it by working seven hours in his bedroom while his father went around the championship course in what he called a medicinal 103.

"But just as sure as you're a foot high," declared Mr. Hobgood, exultantly, "I'll get under a hundred, Richard, and forget the medicine part of it before the season's over. Oh, I do hope it's when I'm out with you. If I'd ever had the sense to take up this game 20 years ago—say, why aren't you playing at Garden City any more? I'd like to try that course some time. There was a man I beat in the semifinals of the thirteenth division consolation in the spring tournament—he said Garden City has the best traps you ever saw anywhere."

"Oh, I resigned from Garden City four or five years ago. No use paying the dues when I never go there. One of my wires today was from Skinner. He thinks we ought to incorporate. I told him"——

"Listen, Richard! Speaking about traps. Remember the one on the right of the third hole on No. 2? Well, I was in there on my drive this morning, and I played out hole high with a midiron. With a midiron! What do you know about that?"

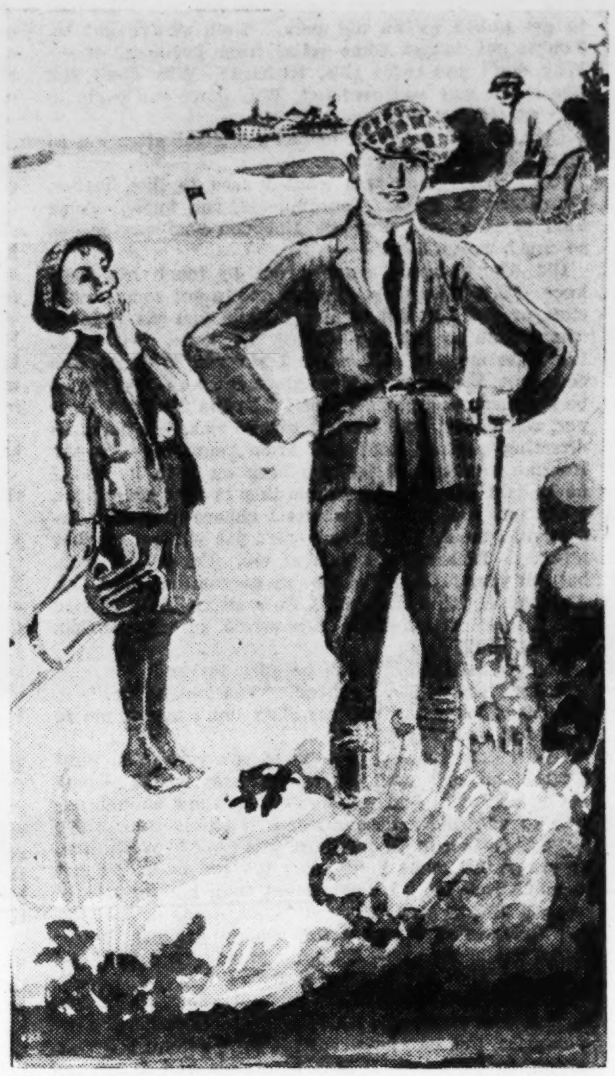
"Fine!" said Richard indulgently. "I hope things'll work out so I can get a round in with you before I leave."

His father stared at him, and in that stare there was understanding, contrition, and fear. "Boy," he said, "boy, have you lost all your interest in games?"

"Pretty nearly," laughed Richard. "I'm too infernally busy. It's sort of funny, when you think of it"——

Mr. Hobgood shook his head. "No, not funny—not a bit funny. It's serious. First thing you know, you'll break down, and"——

"Oh, no I won't. When I get stale, I'll retire," said Richard.



He opened the floodgates of his mood, and opened his caddy's eyes with envious admiration.

Mr. Hobgood shook his head again. "You can't. Nobody can—nobody that doesn't have to. One of these days you'll be retired—but that's different. Now, tomorrow morning, I want you should promise me you'll go out and play golf with me. I'm just as like as not to break a hundred. Won't you promise me that much?"

"I will if I can, father. But one or two things have come up this afternoon—I'm carrying a pretty heavy load just now. We'll wait and see."

"My God!" said Mr. Hobgood bitterly. "I don't believe you want to play any golf, Richard."

Richard deliberated. "Yes, he said, sincerly but without enthusiasm. "I think I should. It ought to be rather amusing. I certainly will try to go out with you before I leave."

For the next three days it rained doggedly, and poor Mr. Hobgood, diverting himself with bridge and cowboy pool, felt more and more estranged from his unfamiliar son, who was making the most of the opportunity and laboring diligently upstairs. After the rain, the weather turned cold. It was Saturday morning before Mr. Hobgood dared to go out again—Saturday morning, and Richard had announced that he must positively return to New York on Saturday night.

Mr. Hobgood, standing in the shop while Richard bought half a dozen clubs, remarked his son's tenseness of expression, his tautness of muscle, his nervous little mannerisms. "It's a judgment," said Mr. Hobgood wearily to himself. "It's a judgment! Games and business do mix!"

On the first tee it was the father's hands which trembled. It had spontaneously come to him that he had forfeited more than 20 years of the durable satisfactions of life. This was his first moment of true companionship with his boy. And all at once he was as eager and excited as Richard might once have been on Yale field waiting for the kickoff. Mr. Hobgood had made commercial success his fetish; his only ambitions had been success for himself and success for Richard. This morning, while he was vaguely conscious that each of them was worth four or five million dollars, he realized that the most important thing in all his life, so far, was that Richard should enjoy the round, and shouldn't be ashamed of his father's game. Mr. Hobgood steeled himself to die as hard as possible.

"Want to drive first, Richard?"

"No; go ahead." Richard had surreptitiously extracted a business letter from his pocket and was reading it. Reading a business letter on the first tee!

Now, Mr. Hobgood had been soundly taught, but his awe of Richard's quondam reputation was enough to wipe his mind clean of instructions. His stance was wrong, but he didn't dare to change it, for fear that Richard might be impatient. As he swung, he knew that he was still and constrained; he would have liked to try a few practice swings first, but he hadn't the courage to make Richard wait. Whatever else happened, he mustn't let Richard think he was a dawdler. Richard probably wouldn't remember that for a man of 70 to average, say 105, day in and day out, was no small achievement. So that Mr. Hobgood hooked feebly into the railroad track, and felt the need of apology. "I'm not generally as bad as that, Richard. Most always I keep straight, no matter what else I do."

"That's all right." Richard had teed a ball, addressed it, and sliced a hundred and eighty yards while he was speaking.

They parted company at once. Mr. Hobgood, somewhat steadied by the interval between them, remembered Peacock's formulas, and came out pleasantly to the fairway. There he watched his son rip out a mighty divot with a brassy.

Mr. Hobgood put his hands to his mouth. "Don't—try—to—take—turf!" he shrilled. "You got to hit 'em clean."

"All right," said Richard cheerfully, and hammered a long iron diagonally across the course to the rough on the other side. He appeared to be very little affected by the error.

Old Mr. Hobgood was visited by a glorious idea. Richard was still in trouble. A five would certainly beat him. Even a six might do. To beat Richard, who used to be such a champion, at the very first hole! To be sure, Richard hadn't played for several years, but before that his handicap in the Metropolitan was four. Mr. Hobgood was 70 years old, and had played no games at all, not even croquet, until two seasons ago. For his age, he was as good a golfer as Richard had ever been. Disability for disability, alibi for alibi! He flexed his jaw, got his wrists in order, and swung in accordance with his $400 worth of lessons. The shot was as nearly perfect as Mr. Hobgood could ever expect—short, but mathematically straight; not on the green, but only a few yards distant.

"Nice one!" said Richard, and old Mr. Hobgood blushed like a debutante. Richard overplayed his mashie, and went on in five. Mr. Hobgood, fighting down a wild impulse to hurry, rolled his ball within two feet of the hole, and, feeling very Napoleonic, fluttered amazingly about the heart.

"Give it to you," said Richard carelessly, tapping down his own ball with one hand.

"I'm—I'm one up on you!"

"All right. Go ahead."

Mr. Hobgood, cumulatively chilled by his son's diffidence, prepared to drive.

"I expect to see Central Leather common above par by June," observed Richard soberly. "Want to buy some with me?"

Mr. Hobgood lowered his driver. "The only kind of a par that interests me right now is the part on this next hole," he stated flatly. "I didn't bring you out here to keep blatting about leather all the time; I brought you out here to play golf." In the resultant silence, he drove creditably. Richard, bathed in deep thought, sent a fast grounder hopping into the nearest trap, and never used an expletive.

"I hope," said Mr. Hobgood, speaking the grievance to his immortal soul, "he don't get out of it, either!"

Richard, however, clawed back to the course and played three. It was a flash of olden form; a low, whistling brassy shot which ran as though it would never stop.

"My!" said Mr. Hobgood. His smile was paternally proud. He looked at Richard, expecting to find him happy, but Richard was merely abstracted. Mr. Hobgood shut his teeth and played a fair second and a fair third. Both men approach-putted and left themselves four-foot putts. Mr. Hobgood, with all the painstaking zeal of a surveyor, found the line, and breathlessly sank the putt. "Five!" he carolled. Then his eyes bulged, for Richard had lifted. "That's close enough," said Richard. "Call it a five."

His father opened his mouth wide. "Call that a five, do you? Humph! I call it a ladies' five. Without the putt. So you claim a half, do you? All right—all right."

Richard laughed. "What earthly difference does it make?"

"Difference!" choked Mr. Hobgood. Failing a satisfactory vocabulary, he turned and walked wrathfully to the third tee. "And I used to think you were a regular sport!" In his unseeing anger, he topped fearfully. "Well, if you did that, I suppose you'd want to take it over again! You make me sick. Go on—shoot!"

Obediently and in a state of mild astonishment at his father's outburst, Richard shot. He shot 45 degrees

GUESTING AT KARLSBAD

The famous Bohemian sprudel baths are as sprudeliferous as ever, but alas! there are no takers since the place is Czecho-Slovakian :: ::

No. 2 of Capital Nights' Entertainment. A new series of gay adventures in the principal cities of continental Europe.

By KARL K. KITCHEN

I HAVE just been given a free bath by the City of Karlsbad.

I realize that it is not good form to boast that one has been given a bath by a city—even in exclusive workhouse circles. But one doesn't get a bath in an Emperor's tub every day—or even every Saturday night. So listen to my tale.

In the first place, I want to explain that Karlsbad is not the capital of any country—as yet. But it is a capital watering place, and for that reason I am including it in my Capital Nights' Entertainments. Besides, it may be a capital before the year is out. Since the Wilsonian principle of self-determination has become the ruling passion of Central Europe, new capitals have been appearing overnight—and disappearing during the day.

Take the capital of the Ukranian republic, for instance. Yesterday it was at—I don't remember the name of the city—but it doesn't matter, for it isn't there today. So there is hope for Karlsbad.

But I digress.

For three days I have been the guest of the City of Karlsbad. I have been parked free of charge in an apartment at the Imperial Hotel, wined and dined by the leading physicians and otherwise treated like the hero of the night. In fact, the only thing I've missed is the address of welcome from Hizzoner, the Mayor.

All this has not detracted from my enjoyment of the beauties of this capital health resort, and although several years have elapsed since I have been here, I am able to report that (externally, at least) Karlsbad is unchanged and that its sprudel water is as sprudeliferous as ever.

To be sure, there are less than a score of guests at the great Imperial Hotel, automobiles are as scarce as airplanes in Central Park and the shops have a somewhat deserted air, but the few people who are taking the cure are living up to its best traditions. American dollars go a long way for one receiving nearly a hundred Czecho-Slovakian kronen for a single case note. A Czecho-Slovak kronen is worth less than a German mark, but it buys a lot more here in Karlsbad. Not only was I able to buy more beer for a kronen than I was able to buy for a mark, but the beer was several times as good.

For three days I have wandered around the hills, visiting the Jager Haus and other delightful restaurants in the immediate vicinity. Not being on a diet, I have experienced the delights of being well enough alone. Even my cure tax has been waived by the municipal authorities.

But the finishing touches of this delightful—and inexpensive—visit were not applied until today.

When I went down to the Kaiserbad, the municipal thermal institute, to thank Dr. Tyrnauer, its celebrated director, for all Karlsbad had done for me (instead of done me for), the old doc asked me if I would do the city the honor of taking a bath.

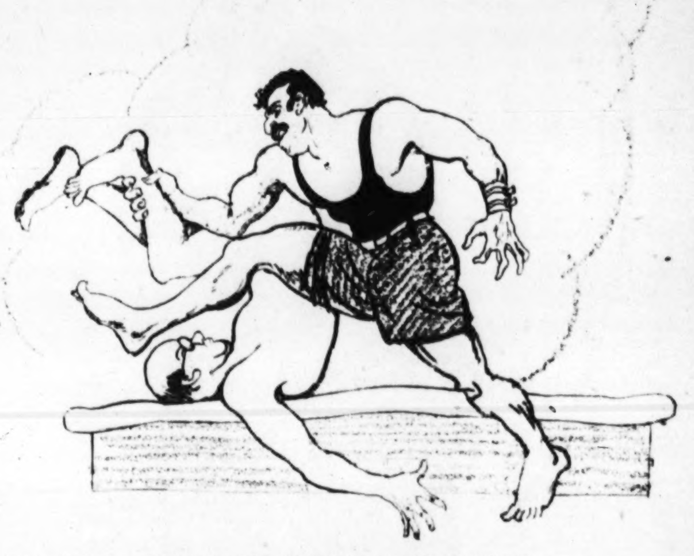
"Just as you say," I replied, for I felt the city had been so kind to me that I couldn't refuse a little favor like jumping into a tub.

"It will please the people of Karlsbad immensely," answered Dr. Tyrnauer. "If you will allow me I will have the royal suite placed at your disposal."

And after summoning his assistant, the superintendent of the bath department, and a huge, villainous looking masseur, Dr. Tyrnauer conducted me to a beautiful apartment on the first floor of the great bathing establishment.

"This is the 'Furstenbad,'" he said simply, leading the way through a gorgeous sitting room to a blue-tiled bathroom, in which was a sunken pool. "Before the republic was established it was only used by the Kaiser Franz-Josef and visitors of the highest rank. Today it is yours. I hope you will enjoy it."

Although my bath was free, the rub was on me.



Before I could more than stammer my feeble thanks in still more feeble German, Dr. Tyrnauer and his aids departed, leaving me alone with the villainous looking masseur, who told me to ring the bell when I was ready to emerge from the steam cabinet in the adjoining room.

There was nothing to do but take off my clothes and take a little steam. So, dressed a la Gunga Din, I draped myself in a comfortable wicker chair in the glass steam room and proceeded to cook. In about 20 minutes I was just able to ring the bell, and then the entertainment began.

The villainous looking masseur looked in on my reclining form with a diabolical grin and motioned to me to stagger to a marble slab in the blue-tiled bathroom. There he proceeded to give me the worst beating I ever had in my life. Not content with changing my color from the rosy pink of a well-cooked lobster to the black and blue of a defeated champion, he nearly lifted my spine out of my back.

"Is this the way you treat royalty?" I asked in anguish.

"Yah," replied my tormenter with an idiotic grin.

"Do you mean to say you have abused an Emperor like this?" I persisted "Ya, ya!" he replied, digging his iron thumb under my spine and letting it snap back.

"No wonder your present Emperor abdicated and decided to live in Switzerland," I came back at him. "I know I'm the guest of the city, but will the city bury me free?"

"Ya," replied my monosyllabic intimate, adding another "ya" for good measure.

When I was so exhausted I couldn't talk, my conqueror stood me under a cold shower until I came to and then pointed to the sunken bath. With faltering steps I descended into the beautiful tiled tub, where I waited until he returned with the largest Turkish towel I ever saw in my life.

"Am I free now?" I asked, to which he answered the inevitable "Ya." But it was half an hour before I had the strength to dress and return to Dr. Tyrnauer's office.

On arriving there I asked for permission to pay for my bath, lying like a gentleman that I had never enjoyed anything quite as much. But Dr. Tyrnauer wouldn't listen to it.

"But I want to tell the folks at home about it," I protested, "and I want to know what you charge for a bath in the Emperor's private suite."

"One hundred kronen," replied the celebrated physician. I did some quick figuring.

"That's 62 1-2 cents at the current rate of exchange. But it would be cheap at half the price."

Dr. Tyrnauer looked puzzled. "You mean there was something wrong with the bath?" he queried.

"Not with the bath," I corrected. "The only thing is that now I need a doctor."

I don't know whether Dr. Tyrnauer took me seriously, but the fact remains that that very evening he had a dozen doctors at his "stammtisch" at the Restaurant Hopfenstock to meet me.

The dinner was another fete in my honor, and instead of being vivisected I was stuffed with Hocheecroquetts mit Erbsen, Rostbraten mit Zwiebel, Spargelsalat, a Schokolade Creme torte and some excellent cheese.

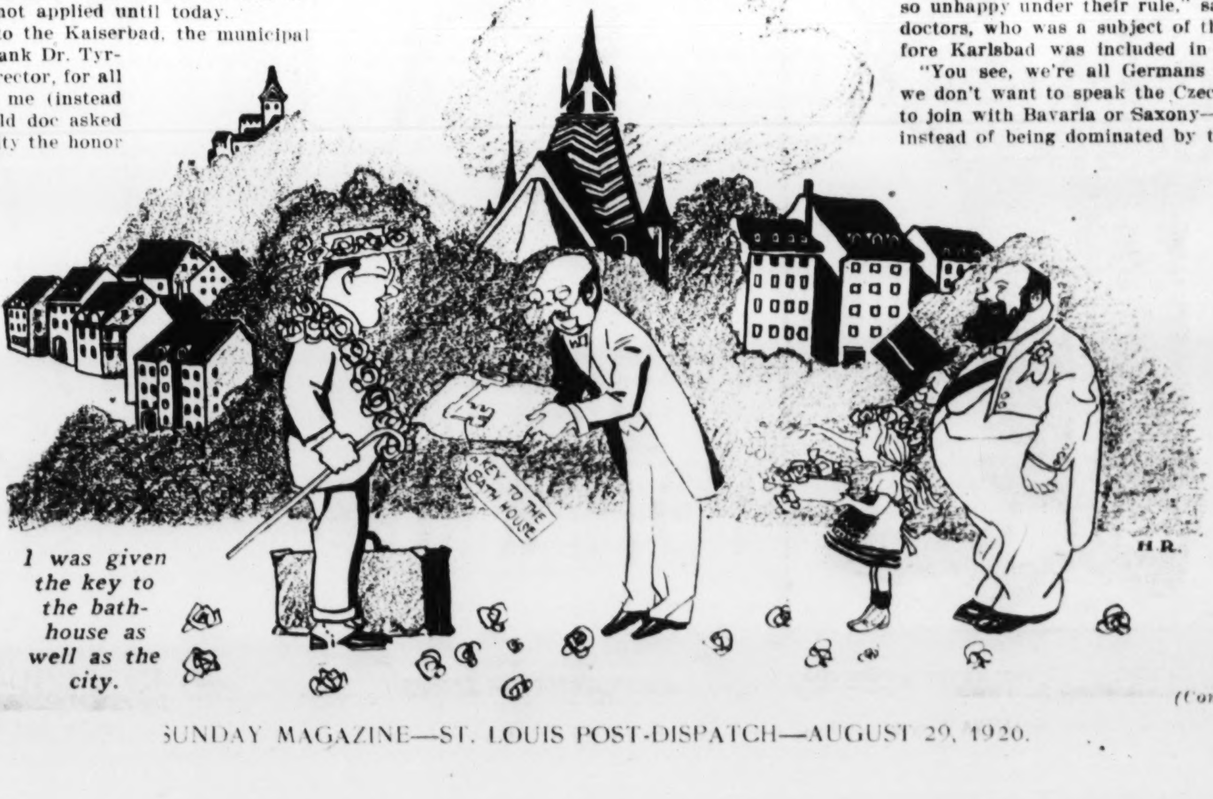
We all bathed in Pilsener and I enjoyed it far more than the water at the Kaiserbad.

There has been a serious shortage of foodstuffs in Karlsbad, owing to the fact that the Czech Government stripped the surrounding country of everything for the Sokol gathering in Prague, but there has never been any shortage of beer. Pilsen is only three or four hours away, and the breweries there are running day and night.

One of the first things the Czecho-Slovak republic did when it got to functioning was to provide enough coal for its breweries in Pilsen, Budweis and other towns made famous by their brews and our musical comedies. Very little of the beer is shipped out of the country, the Masaryk Government believing in Czecho-Slovakia first.

"If the Czechs were as intelligent about other internal affairs as they are about beer, we wouldn't be so unhappy under their rule," said one of the German doctors, who was a subject of the Austrian Kaiser before Karlsbad was included in Czecho-Slovakia.

"You see, we're all Germans here in Karlsbad and we don't want to speak the Czech language. We want to join with Bavaria or Saxony—with German people—instead of being dominated by the Czechs."



KEY TO THE BATH HOUSE
H.R.

I was given the key to the bath-house as well as the city.

"I wish the United States would make us one of its crown colonies," suggested another medico, whose knowledge of our American form of government was a bit hazy. "Better still, let one of your multi-millionaires adopt us. If he would only pay our bills—and we wouldn't cost an American millionaire very much—we'd make him President of all the Germans in Czecho-Slovakia."

"We'd make him King or Emperor if he'd improve the railroad service and

Below the Medicinal Hundred

By HOLWORTHY HALL

FOR 65 years, nothing had pleased Mr. Samuel Hobgood quite so much as his freedom from criticism, whether public or private. His successes had been so pronounced, his methods so conservative, his errors of judgment so purely incidental, that among his contemporaries he passed as a very Daniel of the leather market—a man who habitually did the right thing seven times out of 10; and this percentage was enough to make millionaires out of office boys.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Habgood had begun as an office boy and at age 50 he had found himself a millionaire. He had also found himself the parent of a son who was frequently recognized, across the street, by distinguished people who had never met the son, or even heard of the father. Mr. Hobgood took prompt steps to avoid criticism.

"I think you'll find, Richard," he said kindly, "that most prominent young men fall down hard, sooner or later, on account of the same qualities that made them prominent. I don't believe a young man ought to be noticed hardly at all before he's 35 or 40, except as a good, hard, steady worker. If folks keep thinking of you as a football player, and then a pool player, and then a golf player, you'll find it's going to be awful hard to talk business when you want to. And when you go out representing Hobgood & Co. this fall, I want you should be regarded as a representative of Hobgood & Co., and not as an athlete with his picture in all the papers. What do you really want out of life, Richard? So far, you're a great game player, and you never made a penny of your own. When I was your age I didn't know how many men there was on a football nine, or whether you played polo on a horse or a donkey, or what the names of a pack of cards are—and I don't yet. So in the trade, Hobgood means just one thing, and that's leather. When you start working for us, I want it to keep on meaning leather, and not golf. I've thought it all out, Richard. If you want to work with us, your name can't be in the papers to advertise anything but Hobgood leather. We can't afford it, and you can't. From the day you start, you ain't Hobgood, the famous quarterback from Yale; you ain't Hobgood, the golf champion; you're Hobgood of the city sales force of Hobgood & Co. Everybody'd criticise us if it was different. I'm not going to be harsh. You've had a long vacation, and it's time you got serious. All I say is, in five years, if you work hard, I'll make you a junior partner and then you can do anything you like. Nobody criticises what you do after you've succeeded. In the meantime, no tournaments of any kind whatsoever, no titles, nothing to pull attention away from the one fact that Hobgood means leather. Is it a bargain?"

Richard was very nearly dead-centered in his mind, but because he was enjoined from competition only, and not from practice, and because a junior partner meant complete independence after the five-year interlude, he finally succumbed. He loved his polo almost as much as he loved his golf, but the sacrifice would plainly be justified by the reward.

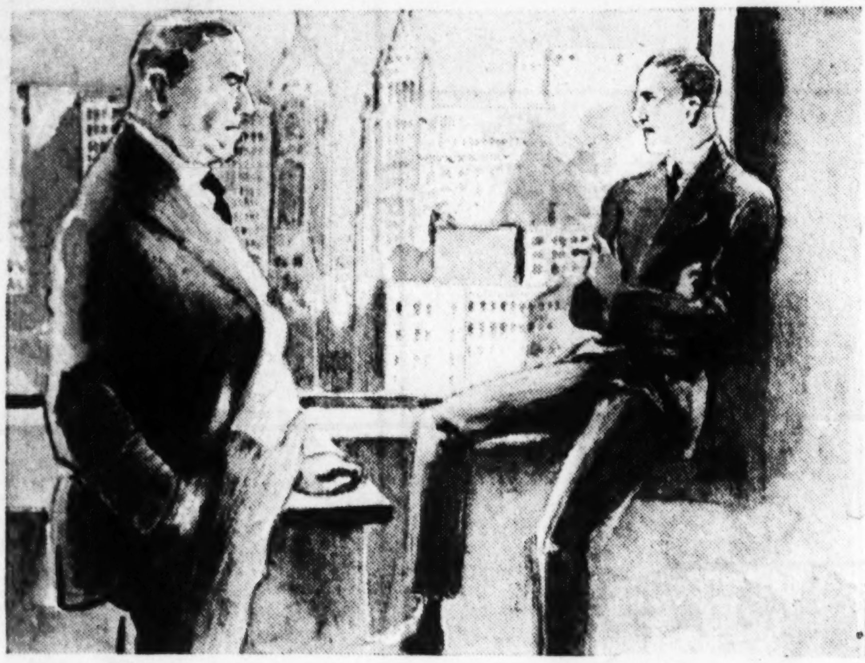
As a city salesman he began like a whirlwind, and his father was filled with platitudinous misgivings. "Up like a rocket, down like a stick," said Mr. Hobgood warningly. "Besides, I don't call it exactly selling when you take a man that used to belong to your same society 20 years ago out to Garden City, and shoot a game of golf with him, and then pry loose an order. You mustn't be disappointed when you begin to fall down, Richard. And I'd rather lose the order, any time, than have you make a sale based on anything in the world but the quality of the goods. In fact, I guess we'll have to make it a rule that when you have to play games with a man to get his business, that don't count on your sheet, Richard."

Nevertheless, the son of his father, applying to business all that tremendous vitality and eager concentration which had made him a splendid athlete, continued to break sales records. Doggedly, relentlessly, he put golf out of his mind, and set up for himself an artificial perspective which was limited by the hide of a cow and the number of uses to which it could be put. In two months he led the squadron of city salesmen by so wide a margin that to prevent actual friction, Mr. Hobgood had to send him on the road. Six months later the sales manager, who was fat and sensitive, resigned abruptly, and Richard, who had set too hot a pace for him, stepped into the vacant office.

The son of his father, once weaned from the out-of-doors, had settled down to a life which permitted the intrusion of nothing unprofitable. He discovered that without the intoxicant of competition ahead, there was little charm in informal practice, considering that his time was steadily growing precious. Therefore he didn't even practice.

A year's absence from Meadowbrook and Garden City had put him into the journalistic discard. He had ceased to be news, except to the extent of casual mention among those ancient heroes present at the Princeton game. To his father's delight, and to his own rather bewildered but at the same time flattered realization, Hobgood now meant leather exclusively.

In time, he became as dynamic a figure in the trade as once he had been in sport. At the end of another year of triumph, old Mr. Hobgood, doing the right thing eight times in that particular 10, took him away from sales to be assistant general manager. "Only going to show," said Mr. Hobgood ingenuously, "that business and play don't mix. And just to show, I'll give you a twentieth interest in the company right now."



"When I was your age. I didn't know how many men there was on a football nine."

"A tenth," said Richard gently, thinking that the medalist at Garden City this year had done 78 and 77. Richard had once shot 11 consecutive rounds under 78. He was resigned to his status, but the original agreement had provided that he should be paid for it.

"All right. A tenth. And if you keep on going"——

Obligingly, Richard kept on going. It was almost a year now since he had spent a part of Sunday afternoon in polishing his irons for the sheer pleasure of having them in good condition. A little of the buoyancy went out of him, but the hide of the cow was still as a blazing star to guide him. In the fourth year, when he acquired the general managership and a quarter interest in the company, it never occurred to him that once his ambition had been to play regularly, at this time, on the Meadowbrook four, and to have won the Met and been a semi-finalist in the national amateur. He was too busy writing his speech for the national convention.

There came a July, however, when Richard, gazing out over the hot roofs of the lower city, was startled to realize that his sentence had scarcely three months to run. He wasted fully a quarter-hour in contemplation of the respite, and that night, at home, he hunted up his golf clubs. The majority of the shafts were warped, but it made much less difference to Richard than he would have imagined. He resolved to send the bag out to Garden City and have the set completely overhauled; but in the morning something distracted his attention and he forgot all about it.

His attention had been distracted by happenings on the continent of Europe. The export problem instantly became so vexatious that Richard had no stomach whatever for play. Then, of a sudden, the country was overrun with foreign purchasing agents, and Richard could have lived on twice as many hours a day as Mr. Arnold Bennett has prescribed.

At this juncture, old Mr. Hobgood, who had never learned how to live at all, wrote his name to a Russian contract after a terrific contest of wills with Richard, and immediately fainted at his desk. He had fallen down by virtue of the exact qualities which had made him rich; he had never refreshed himself by any exercise or any hobby; he had burned out his carbons, and he was done. Richard quietly put the contract in his pocket, and, a few hours later, when the doctors had agreed on his father's future, tore it up.

Mr. Hobgood, too feeble to protest, was presently shipped to the seashore; and, still in ignorance that the Russian orders weren't on his books, made Richard an equal partner with himself, and managing partner at that. There followed fireworks. No contract was made with the Russian agents, or with any others; and Richard drew to himself within a very brief space, more criticism than his father had excited in 65 years. The echo of it rolled even to Seaview, where old Mr. Hobgood had a relapse and bit a clinical thermometer in half. He would have summarily ejected his son that very day if the nurses hadn't refused to transmit his message, let him have a fountain pen, or even listen to him rail. He wasn't to think of business, they said.

Mr. Hobgood thought, and the trade thought, that for Richard to refuse war orders, when the profits were never so high, was direct evidence of insanity. But the nurses, although they couldn't save his father from another nervous collapse, saved Richard from expulsion.

In the spring, Richard was still too busy to play any golf, even though the ban was now removed. He was accumulating stocks of raw material, and spending the company's hard-earned surplus for more factory space and more machinery. Suddenly the trade changed its point of view. Old Mr. Hobgood was suddenly stricken with hysterical remorse. Seven nations came into the market with frantic appeals for war materials at any price, and Hobgood & Co., standing alone with vast facilities, vast stocks and no entangling alliances, wrote its own ticket while its competitors, glutted with those earlier orders at a third the price, frothed impotently, and hailed Richard as the wizard son of a fairly successful and fortunately superannuated father.

At 28, Richard was not only forced to accept deferred classification in the draft; he was also persuaded not to enter the service voluntarily. The Government, through the Ordnance Department, convinced him that as the head of the third largest leather company in the country, he was more valuable to the allies than as a potato peeler in a cantonment.

At 30, when the war was over, he went down to Pinehurst, after much correspondence, to spend a reluctant week with his father.

The train arrived before breakfast, but old Mr. Hobgood was down at the station to meet it. He was wearing sprightly knickerbockers and a plaid cap, and to his son he presented a very ludicrous appearance.

"Come on, Richard," said Mr. Hobgood briskly. "I drew for time last night, and we've got 9:15 on No. 2."

Richard stared at him blankly. The old gentleman had long since written that golf had been prescribed for him, but Richard couldn't remember exactly how long ago it was. "Drew for what?" he asked.

"For starting time. There's so many people here you have to get your time the night before."

Richard glanced at the heavy brief case under his arm, and then at the sky.

"It looks pretty much like rain to me," he said. "And I haven't any clubs with me, and"——

Mr. Hobgood stopped short.

"Didn't you bring your clubs?"

"Why, no. I couldn't find 'em."

Mr. Hobgood followed him into the bus. "That's

New type of rudder, consisting of two curved blades, for which it is claimed that they not only steer a vessel, but remove the necessity of ever reversing the engine. It is intended to obviate the necessity of having a complicated gear box on small motor boats, but is adaptable to larger vessels as well.

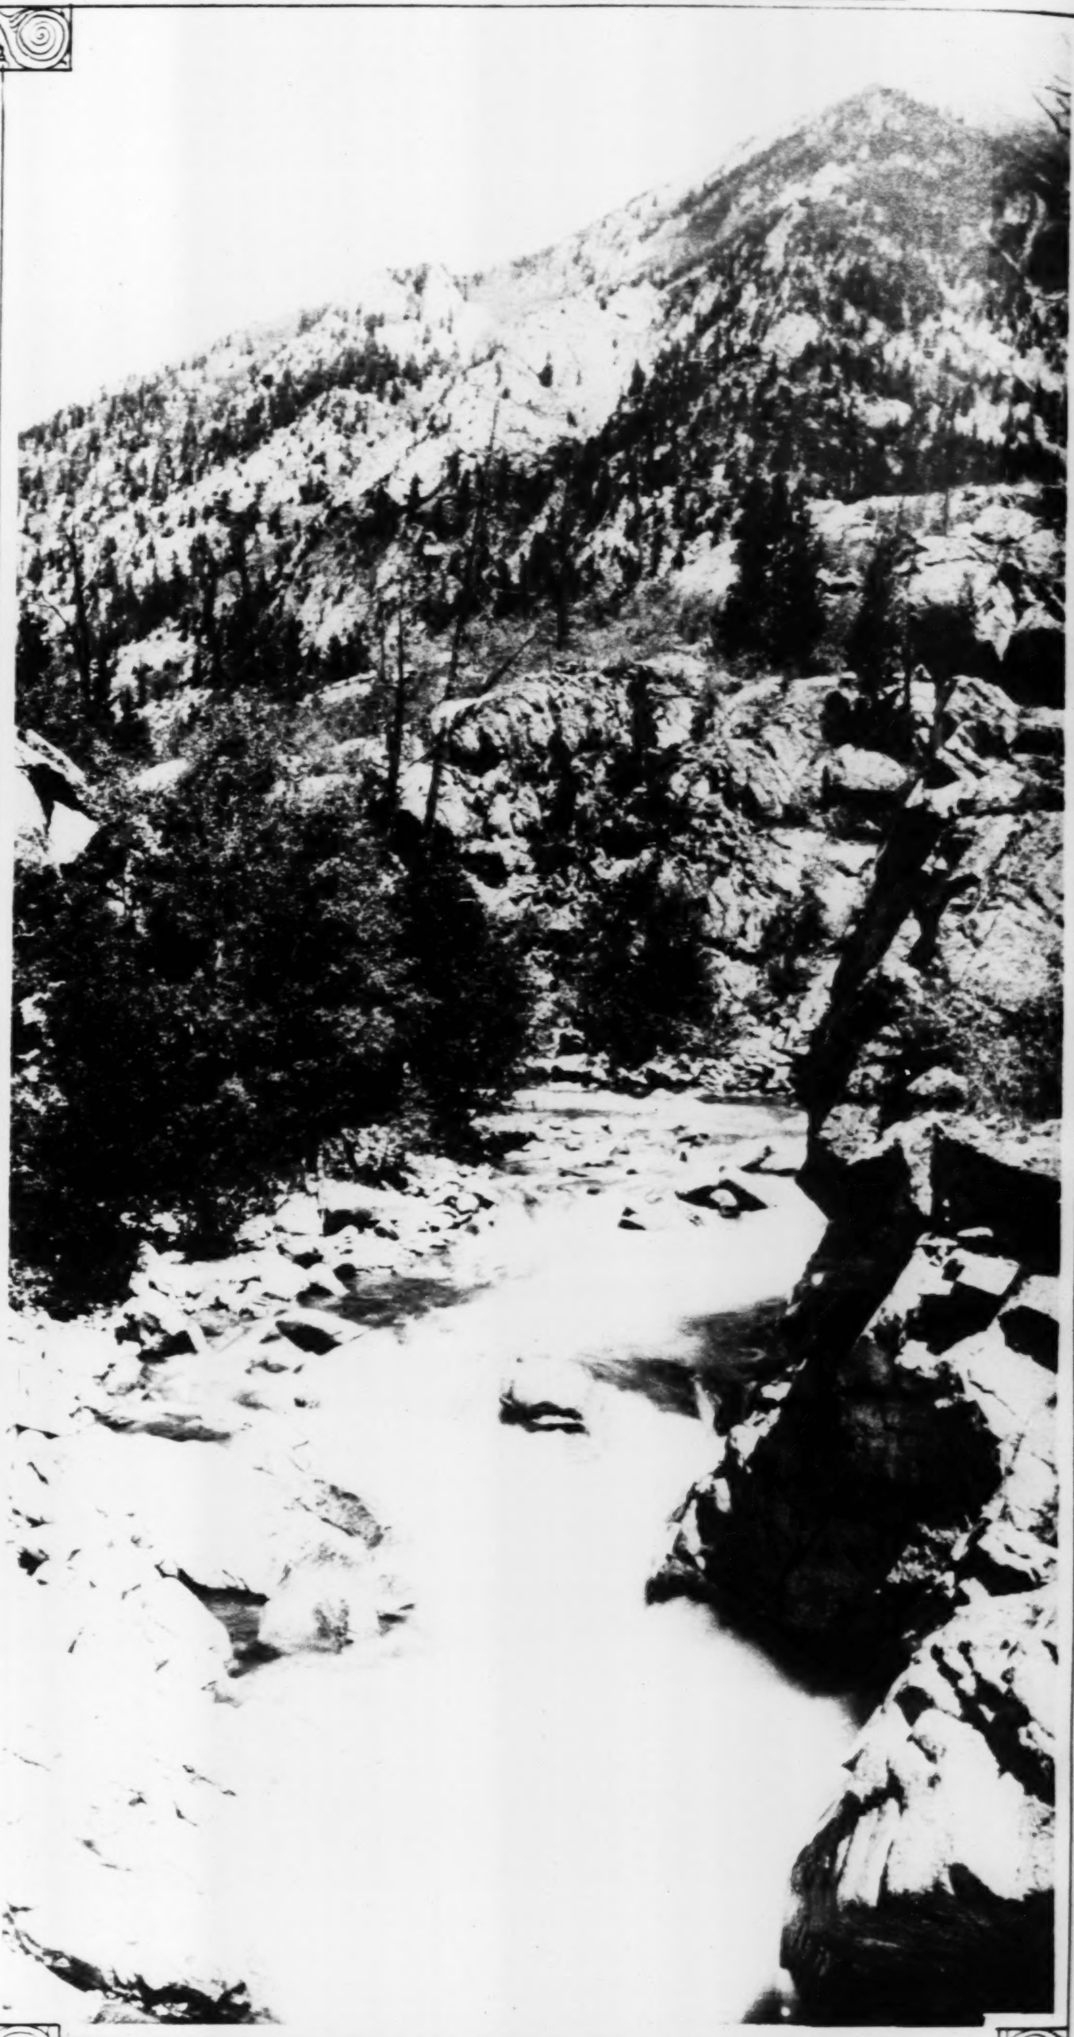
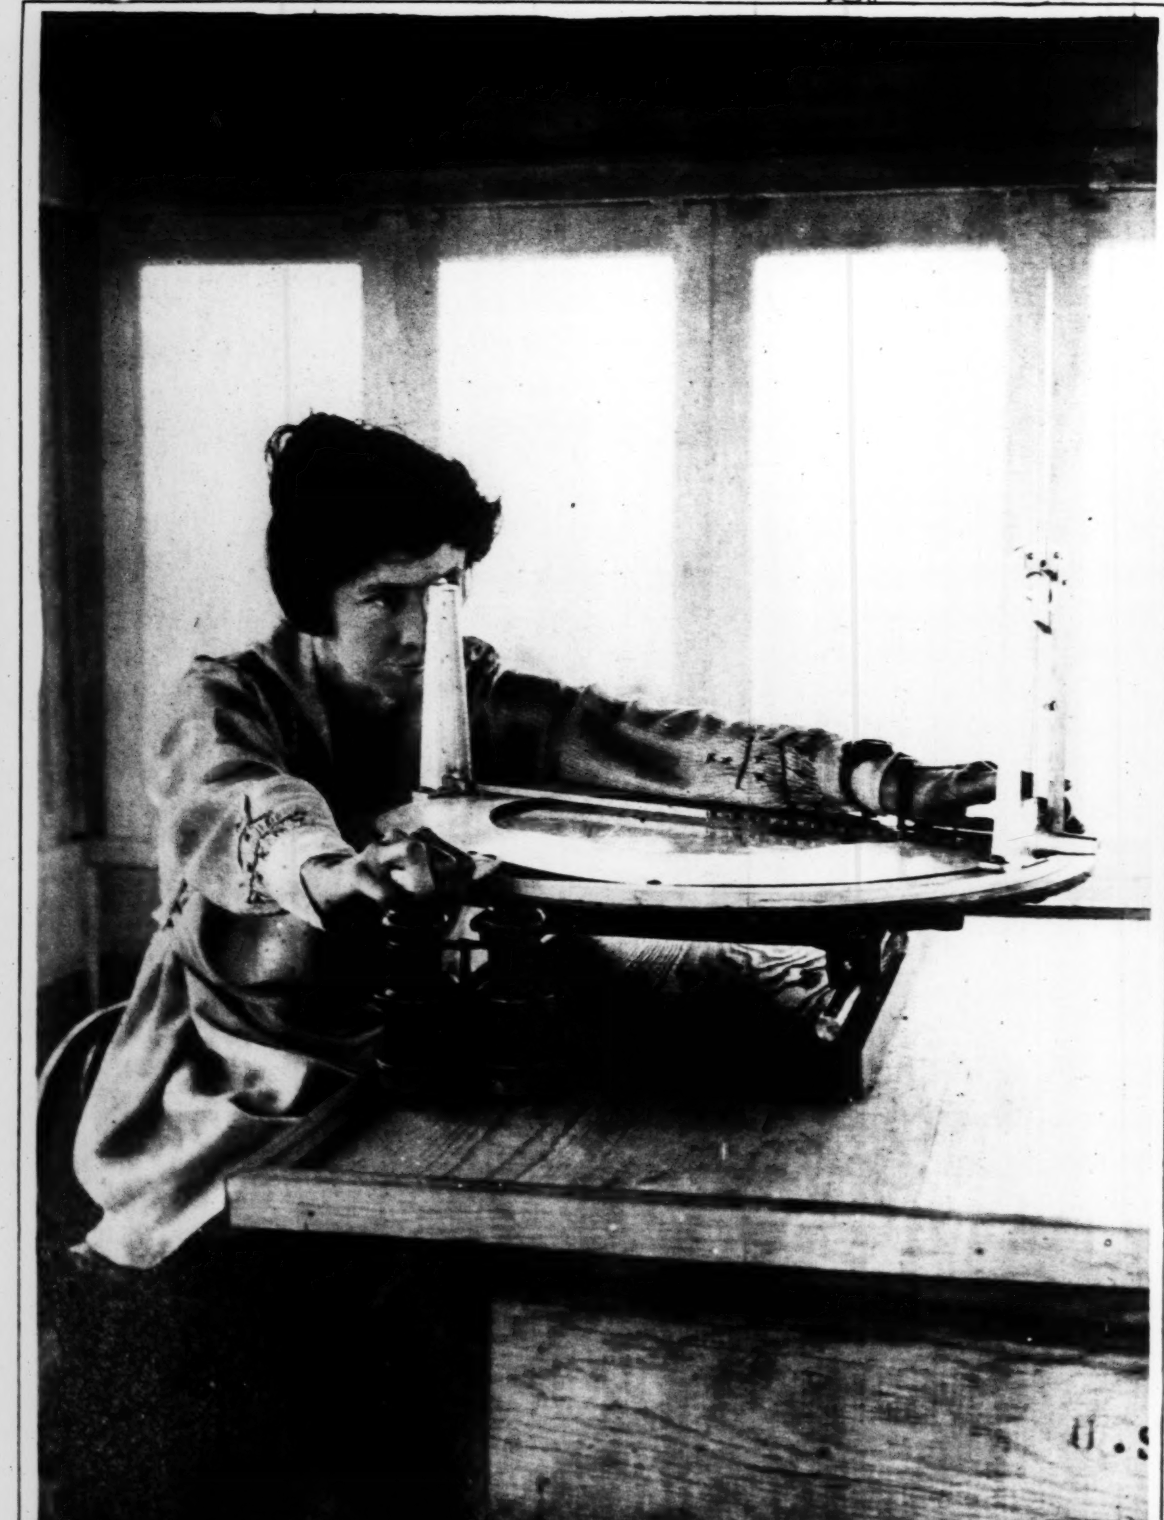
A far-flung vista of beauty in Pike National Forest, Colorado, with clear-cut shadows of clouds on slopes, so characteristic of the Rocky Mountain country. A remarkable photograph.

The national forests offer some of the best trout fishing in all the Rockies. This picture was taken along the rushing North Fork of the White River in White River National Forest, Colorado.



Another of those startling effects arranged by Nature. The towering, motionless bulk of the mountain, and the irrepressible little stream rioting along at its base. Photo taken in Leadville National Forest, Colorado.

The national forests are the nation's playgrounds, and to increase their use and appreciation by the public, the United States Department of Agriculture distributes a large amount of information concerning them. The photographs on this page were furnished by the Forest Service.



One of the young women employed as lookouts by the United States Forest Service in its work of prevention and control of forest fires. Sitting in a glass-enclosed room upon a fairly high elevation, she watches for the first sign of a conflagration. After sighting it through the revolving fire-finder, she reports the fire and location to the nearest ranger. Miss Helen Dawe, fire lookout in the Pike National Forest.

Typical scene when the fishing party, after catching a big string in the morning, have stopped to cook lunch before casting some more or starting back to their camp. The photograph was taken at Trappers' Lake, White River National Forest, Colorado.

"A skin you love to touch"

You, too, can have this charm

No matter what other charms you have, they count for little unless you have the greatest of all charms—a clear, fresh skin.

An authority on the skin has said: "Whatever your difficulty is, you can remedy the trouble, if you will only give your skin intelligent care and attention."

The following treatment brings the blood to the surface and stimulates the small muscular fibers. Begin it tonight and see how it will improve your skin.

Just before retiring, wash your face and neck with plenty of Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. After rinsing your face with warm water, rub a fresh lather of Woodbury's into your skin, using an upward and outward motion. Do this until the skin feels just a little sensitive. Then rinse the skin well in warm water, then in cold, finishing by rubbing for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Always be careful to dry the skin thoroughly.

Make this treatment a regular habit, and in a much shorter time than you would imagine, your skin will take on the greater loveliness that it can have.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs. You will find Woodbury's on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. A 25-cent cake will last a month or six weeks.

GOODRICH SAFETY TREAD

DEVOTED TO THE BUILDING OF THE TIRE THAT IS Best in the Long Run

The Testimonial that TELLS

AGAIN AND AGAIN we receive letters telling of extraordinary mileage delivered by Goodrich Tires.

The enthusiastic writers testify to figures that read like a prosperous bank balance.

They run so high that we would no more exploit them in advertising than we would make them our adjustment basis.

They stir our pride, but they do not sway our reason.

The testimonials which mean most to us tell of the high average mileage Goodrich Tires are delivering to thousands of drivers—not the few.

This consistent quality and dependable performance enable Goodrich to maintain its adjustment basis.

You owe it to your sense of thrift to use Goodrich Tires.
